Nixon—Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's principal domestic-affairs adviser said Saturday that if re-elected the chief executive will press next year for major simplification of individual and corporate tax structures.

John Ehrlichman, head of Nixon's Domestic Council, made the disclosure as he attacked what he called Democratic presidential candidates' "platitudinous approach to tax reform" and declared that "the President has been the taxpayer's friend."

Ehrlichman reported, too, that Nixon has reached general agreement with Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, that no tax-reform legislation would be pushed in Congress this election year.

Nixon and the head of the tax-writing House panel agreed over breakfast at the White House last week that it was "bad business to ask Congress to act" on complex tax reform proposals "in a political election year," Ehrlichman told a White House briefing.

The briefing was held Friday, but its contents were embarrgoed for release Saturday evening. The ostensible purpose of the briefing was to release letters Nixon is sending to House Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma, House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs of Louisiana and his Republican counterpart, Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, urging House floor action this month on the administration's revenue-sharing bill.

But after discussing revenue sharing, Ehrlichman switched the subject to tax reform and distributed a Treasury Department chart he said would "put the lie to a lot of phony tax facts running around the primary campaign circuit."

The chart showed that individual income-tax liability has been cut by $11.2 billion a year under the 1969 Tax Reform Act with the bulk of the cuts coming in the lower-income brackets.

In an obvious reference to Democratic presidential contenders, Ehrlichman told newsmen to be "cautious about people telling you that taxes on individuals are going up while corporations are getting away scot free."

Patman—Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to reorganize wage-price control machinery, create a new Office of Consumer Counsel and trim the power of the Cost of Living Council was promised Saturday by Rep. Wright Patman.

The Texas Democrat, chairman of the House Banking Committee, said he will introduce the bill and consider it at hearings already planned for a review of the economic-control program.

"My mail and conversations with people all over the nation have convinced me that the great majority of our citizens do not feel that the program is either effective or equitable as presently administered," Patman said in a statement.

The congressionally appointed consumer counsel he proposed would be charged with representing consumer interests before the Pay Board, Price Commission and the courts.

His office, staffed with lawyers, economists and accountants, would have access to all books and records of the two regulatory bodies.

Agnew—Hirohito

TOKYO (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew had lunch Saturday with Emperor Hirohito and the imperial family and met with Japanese leaders who expressed "general agreement" with President Nixon's efforts to cut off the flow of war material to North Vietnam by land and sea.

Agnew arrived in Japan Friday night to represent the United States at ceremonies Monday on the return of Okinawa to Japanese rule after 27 years of U.S. occupation and administration.

Japanese authorities have ordered stringent security precautions and plan to mobilize 50,000 police Monday in anti-protest of violent demonstrations against the terms of the reversion. One of the major sore spots is the continued presence of nearly 50,000 U.S. soldiers on the western Pacific island after Japan resumed control.

About 400 students went on a firebomb rampage in a university section of Tokyo, about three miles from Agnew's hotel, Saturday afternoon. Three automobiles were destroyed and about 100 demonstrators were arrested.

Agnew's hotel, which is across the street from the U.S. Embassy, was virtually surrounded with buses filled with police in the event of trouble.

Laird—Draft

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird announced Saturday a ceiling of 35,000 on the number of men to be drafted in the last six months of this year.

Speaking to a meeting of the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference, Laird said: "During the last two quarters of this year we will have a maximum draft call of 35,000, and that represents a cut of one half from last year."

No men were drafted in the first three months of this year. The draft call for the April-May-June quarter was 15,000. Thus the total number of draftees this year would come to 50,000, compared with 96,000 last year and a Vietnam War high of 364,600 in 1966.

The 50,000 draft call would be the lowest since before the Korean War when 10,000 men were called in 1949. Since then the lowest draft call was 76,500 in 1962.

Thus far, Selective Service has ordered up men with lottery numbers 1 through 35 to fulfill the 15,000 draft call. Draft officials said they cannot yet predict the highest ceiling number likely to be called this year but did say it would be "much lower" than last year's number 125.

Attack Provincial Capital

North Viets Hit Kontum

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. Marine helicopters ferried more than 1,000 South Vietnamese marines into Quang Tri province Saturday for the first counter-drive of the Communist offensive, but the North Vietnamese retaliated Sunday with an attack on the provincial capital of Kontum City in the Central Highlands to the south.

The Communists, spearheaded by 12 of their biggest Soviet-built tanks, drove at government defense lines less than two miles north and northwest of Kontum, 260 miles north of Saigon, field reports said. It was their first attack in strength against the city.

UPI reporter Mat Franjola reported from the Highlands that ground troops and missile-equipped U.S. helicopters teamed up to destroy 10 tanks, but Communist infantrymen pressed the attack on Kontum's inner defenses.

Military spokesmen said 125 Communists were slain in the first five hours of fighting at the city, now deserted by most of its civilian population.

An attack on Kontum had been predicted since all the city's outer defenses were overrun in a lightning Communist drive April 16.

The North Vietnamese also launched sharp attacks south of Kontum near the Highlands capital of Pleiku, 240 miles from Saigon, Franjola reported. They blew up two bridges on the road linking the two cities and seized an artillery base on the highway.

The U.S. Marine helicopters which carried 1,000 government troops up to five miles into Communist-controlled Quang Tri province, had not been seen in the Vietnam war in more than two years.

The government troops in short order killed 340 Communists and captured three villages in the spoiling operation, aimed at hindering North Vietnamese advances on the former imperial capital of Hue. It was the first South Vietnamese counter-attack since the offensive began March 30.

Four waves of U.S. B52 bombers "softened up" Communist troop positions before the helicopter raid. Three more waves Saturday night aimed their bombs at North Vietnamese soldiers reportedly pulling back from the villages toward Quang Tri province capital, seven miles to the north.

Rogers Says Nixon Journey To Moscow Still On Track

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers said Saturday that preparations are going ahead as planned for President Nixon's visit to the Soviet Union May 22-29.

"We have no negative signs from the Soviets," he said. But as for the Paris peace talks, Rogers saw no encouragement for their quick resumption in Friday's remarks by Hanoi envoy Le Duc Tho.

The North Vietnamese negotiator rejected Nixon's newest peace bid while demanding renewal of the weekly Paris parleys, which the allies broke off May 4.

Asked in an interview about the outlook for resumption of the talks now, Rogers said, "particularly in light of his (Le Duc Tho's) statement, we don't see any immediate prospects."

"Our position remains the same," Rogers added, referring to the stand taken at Paris by U.S. ambassador William J. Porter—that the United States is ready to re-open the parley when useful or when the enemy appears to be seriously interested.

Nixon's measures last Monday to choke off North Vietnam's supply lines from Russia and Red China raised doubts among some high administration officials that the Soviets would go ahead with the Moscow summit. Their fears eased when Nixon's North Vietnam port mining deadline passed without a tough Soviet response.

Rogers said "we are proceeding with plans" for the Moscow visit and that schedule arrangements are "being worked out as we expected."

Nixon is expected to leave for Salzburg, Austria, next Saturday, then fly on to Moscow the following Monday. An advance U.S. team has been at the Soviet capital working on arrangements.

Other sources noted a wide range of U.S.-Soviet negotiations are going ahead without interruption from the Vietnam issue. But they said it still is uncertain what agreements will be completed by Moscow summit time.

Antiwar Demonstrators Walk Through City Streets Again

By United Press International
Antiwar demonstrators walked through city streets and held rallies across the nation Saturday, bringing to a peaceful close a week of sometimes turbulent demonstrations.

An estimated 5,000 marched up Broadway in New York City and as many as 10,000 demonstrated in Minneapolis, Minn. Groups varying in size from a few hundred to a few thousand also held marches or rallies in Washington, Chicago, San Francisco, Denver, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, Calif., Cleveland, Ohio, Portland, Ore., Pittsburgh, Atlanta and Houston.

In contrast to demonstrations earlier in the week, which centered mostly on college campuses, there were no clashes with police and few arrests.

There had been more than 2,500 persons arrested and scores of policemen and demonstrators arrested since a flurry of protests sprang up Monday night against President Nixon's order to mine North Vietnam harbors and bomb supply routes.

San Francisco Sheriff Richard Hongisto told nearly 2,000 demonstrators at the Civic Center that President Nixon and California Gov. Ronald Reagan were "committed to violence and bloodshed. I denounce them as warmongers, violent and hateful people pursuing violent and hateful politics internationally and domestically."

In Minneapolis, where three units of National Guardsmen were activated Wednesday to help control demonstrations at the University of Minnesota, 10,000 persons participated in a 10-mile march from the campus to the state capitol in adjacent St. Paul.

The New York marchers chanted antiwar slogans and carried placards denouncing "escalation" of the Vietnam War.

In Chicago, about 2,500 persons marched down State Street to a rally in Grant Park. The front ranks of marchers carried a coffin and the protesters walked silently to a drumbeat until they reached the center of the Loop area where they began chanting "Peace Now."

Between 1,500 and 2,000 protesters in Washington marched from a point near the White House to the Capitol for a noon rally. In Denver, 2,500 antiwar demonstrators gathered at the state capitol for a rally that included a speech by poet Allen Ginsberg.

In Santa Barbara, Calif., more than 1,500 persons, mostly students, marched from the University of California campus through the center of town. Sponsors had expected 10,000 marchers.

Five hundred persons marched from Cleveland State University about 24 blocks to that Ohio city's public square where they held a rally. In Portland, Ore., about 350 marchers walked from the Battleship USS Oregon, across Burnside Bridge to Laurelhurst Park where they joined by about 250 others for a rally.

Gunbattles, Explosions Take North Irish Toll

BELFAST (UPI) — A bomb explosion outside a crowded Roman Catholic pub Saturday and gunfire from a Protestant neighborhood into a Catholic streets touched off a three-sided gunbattle between British troops and snipers, the British Army said.

Five persons were killed by gunfire throughout Ulster. The blast in the explosives-laden car outside Kelly's bar in the Catholic Ballymurphy area of Belfast wounded 57 persons, five of them seriously, an army spokesman said. Some of the wounded were children.

Sniper fire killed a soldier as he patrolled outside the pub, scene of the explosion that occurred while the bar was crowded with persons watching the internationally televised Germany-England football match.

Gunfire from the adjoining Protestant Springmartin housing estate into the Catholic crowd that rushed to the scene of the blast hit the bartender, Joseph McIlroy, 40, the spokesman said.

Amid continuing outbursts of gunfire, police reported two more men dead of bullet wounds in the Ballymurphy area.

The other person to die was a 19-year-old youth who was shot during a series of duels with British troops in Londonderry. The army identified him as John Starks, a resident of the Catholic Bogside district. An older man, about 40, was wounded in both legs.

The deaths brought to 324 the number of persons killed in almost three years of Northern Ireland violence.

Another British soldier was shot in the face while patrolling in the Catholic Andersonstown district, adjacent to the Ballymurphy main battle zone, the army said. His condition was reported "quite serious."

The shootings and bomb blast sparked sporadic gunfire in the Ballymurphy and Springmartin neighborhoods. Troops in one gun duel reported hitting an attacker.

British troops sent to the area had to fight their way through rock-throwing Catholics to reach the pub, the spokesman said.

Irish Republican Army (IRA) gunmen converged on the scene before the British troops arrived and guided neighborhood residents to safety. IRA men with rifles, tommyguns and pistols patrolled the streets in cars.

The pub bombing followed three shooting incidents in Belfast during the night which a British military spokesman said may indicate a violent split in the ranks of the IRA.

In Londonderry, British troops reported hitting two gunmen in firefights. Soon afterward a 40-year-old man and a teen-ager were admitted to a hospital with gunshot wounds.

OSAKA, Japan—Cabaret hostesses, their faces smeared with smoke and their clothes torn, come down a fire engine ladder late Saturday. Scores of persons jammed into a seventh-floor night club were trapped by fire which broke out on the third floor of a closed department store below. Police said at least 118 persons were killed. Japanese Fire Kills 118 People Saturday

OSAKA, Japan (AP) — Fire raged through a seven-story department store building Saturday night, killing 118 persons and injuring more than 40 others, police reported.

Most of the dead and injured were in a cabaret on the top floor of the Sennichi Department Store, police said. Many fled to the roof and tried to jump across to nearby buildings but fell to the ground.

Witnesses said the building became "an inferno with trapped men and women screaming for help from the windows and the roof."

Police said the department store occupying the lower floors of the building was closed and there was only one emergency exit from the top floor.

The blaze began on the third floor and spread quickly upward, destroying the third, fourth and fifth floors.

Dozens of fire engines responded to the alarm; and, for nearly 3½ hours, firemen fought the flames and tried to rescue those trapped inside and on the roof.

About 60 persons were saved, but others were killed or injured when some of the emergency chutes failed to work. Some were smothered inside.

Authorities speculated that the death toll could rise as rescue workers probed the rubble on the burned-out floors.

Fourteen Perish In Tragic Crash

BEAN STATION, Tenn. (AP) — A Greyhound bus carrying 28 persons and a cargo truck crashed in flames in mountainous east Tennessee early Saturday. Fourteen persons were killed and 15 injured, three critically.

There was no immediate explanation of the cause of the accident which occurred on dry pavement on a relatively straight stretch of the highway in the foothills of the Great Smoky Mountains.

The road—U.S. 11W—is heavily traveled and more than 100 people attended a recent meeting in nearby Scaggsport to protest the traffic. A second meeting had already been scheduled when the accident occurred.

The drivers of both vehicles were among those killed. Jesse Coffee, 27, whose house is about 100 yards off the two-lane road, described the accident this way:

"It sounded like a case of dynamite went off. It jarred the whole house. Then everything was quiet and all we heard was a baby crying."

Three children were among the dead; a baby was among those treated and released at Morristown-Hamblen Hospital 16 miles southeast of here.

Greyhound officials at Knoxville, Va., where the bus was due later in the morning, identified the bus driver as Frank Flick of Roanoke. The bus driver was identified as Robert G. Garrison, believed to be an employee of the Malone Trucking Co. of Gadsden, Ala.

The bus had left Knoxville earlier in the morning.

Among the injured was Lynn Delaney, a nurse at Holston Valley Community Hospital in Kingsport, who suffered a fracture. "I remember going to sleep and the next thing I was outside on the ground," she said.

In Washington, the State Transportation Safety Board said it was sending experts to investigate.

State troopers said the bound truck bore evidence of a cargo of explosives and dynamite glue used to apply vinyl and the caught fire after the Screen Violence: Is It Contagious?

The recent Surgeon General's report on the effects of TV violence on children is being supported in several ways by the research of a University of Utah psychologist.

The psychologist, Dr. Victor B. Cline, adds motion pictures to the list of media that may be leading Americans into an era of unrelenting violence and exploitive sex devoid of love and responsibility.

"Evidence is mounting that motion pictures and television can alter behavior patterns, influence values and attitudes and possibly contribute to changes in life styles," Cline remarked after conducting a recent study of theater fare in his home town.

"By making violence appear glamorous and exciting and illicit sex normal and desirable, these media are setting the stage for a society based on aggression and irresponsibility," he added.

To examine some of today's theater offerings, Cline and four of his research assistants sat through 37 movies in one week in Salt Lake City. After carefully analyzing the films' contents, themes, values, behavior of heroes, etc., they found the following in the 37 films:

- 833 aggressive acts.
- 566 sexual acts or displays.
- 59 murders.
- 89 "justifiable killings."
- 76 attempted murders.
- 11 massacres.
- six bombings.
- 168 nude scenes.

It all averaged out to some 23 acts of violence and 15 episodes of sex per film. And these weren't "skin flicks." Cline says, because there are no hardcore pornographic theaters in Salt Lake City. Breaking down the films by ratings, 16 per cent were "X," 24 per cent "R," 46 per cent "PG" and 14 per cent "G."

In 57 per cent of the films the movie-watchers found that dishonesty was presented in a heroic light. In 38 per cent, criminal activity was made to "pay off," and was presented as a successful, exciting pastime with no negative consequences.

In 43 per cent of the films the heroes were lawbreakers or antisocial characters. In 60 per cent of the films, premarital and extra-marital sexual relations were presented as "normal, acceptable and desirable."

Only one film out of the 37 depicted sexual relations between a man and a woman legally married to each other.

According to the Surgeon General's report, there is a causal link between the exposure of some children to television violence and subsequent aggressive behavior.

"Psychologists have for years demonstrated, for example, that you can overcome a person's fear of snakes by gradually exposing him to others who casually play with snakes," Cline noted. "It stands to reason that you can also change attitudes and emotional responses to violence, sex and various antisocial behavior by repeated exposure."

The real question raised by all of this research, however, is this: Is the violence in television and the movies the cause of troubles in our society? Or is the trouble in our society, perhaps, being accurately portrayed by these media?

It all boils down to the chicken or the egg riddle, and since we don't know where these behavior patterns come from, we are hard put to find ways to stop them.

By RAYMOND LAHR
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Vietnam war, which appeared to be vanishing as a Presidential campaign issue, now is back at the top alongside or above unemployment.

For the short run at least, this shift should be a plus for

Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota, an early critic of the war and one of the first sponsors of legislative proposals to force withdrawal by a fixed date of U.S. military forces from Vietnam.

Having already upset conventional political thought in 1972,

McGovern is now out in front in the contest for delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

If nominated, his long-run chances against President Nixon in the Nov. 7 election would depend much on whether and how well the President's new policy works. Meanwhile, McGovern will be the best recognized spokesman for anti-war students and like-minded voters.

Two-Man Contest

Competition for the Democratic nomination has shaken down to a two-man contest between McGovern and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, who is approaching the senior statesman age bracket in his third campaign. He was a loser in the pre-convention race in 1960 and the defeated nominee, by a closer vote, in 1968.

Although the Democrats still must choose more than half of their delegates, the presidential primaries will end June 20 in New York, where McGovern is likely to collect a fat bloc of supporters in a state with 278 convention votes.

The more important primary comes two weeks earlier June 6 in California, which has 271 votes. The winner gets them all.

McGovern and his staff already have compiled a potential delegate list in excess of 1,200 votes of the 1,509 needed to win the nomination. They include California.

Not until or close to the convention will it be known whether there are enough delegates opposed to Humphrey and McGovern to prevent the nomination of either. These would be delegates wanting to draft Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts or a compromise other than the left wing McGovern or Humphrey, the old face with many scars.

No Real Chance

They also would include the sizable number of delegates pledged to Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, who still is not regarded to have any real chance of being the nominee.

On the left fringes of the Democratic party, there is talk of a new liberal party being formed if Humphrey should be nominated. No matter how much he may attack Nixon's present Vietnam policies, he cannot escape his own association with the Johnson administration's war effort while he was Vice President.

There are Republicans who believe that a new liberal party would drain away Democratic votes from Humphrey to give Nixon a plurality in close states even if the new party ran a relatively minor figure as its candidate.

Out Of The Mouths Of Babes...

Washington South Viet's Ills Rooted In Thieu

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA)—South Vietnam's early May military defeats are rooted in Nguyen Van Thieu's one-man presidential race last year.

This election, in which all opposition was eliminated or eliminated itself, shocked many Americans. As things have turned out, it proved even more disastrous for Thieu himself.

There are signs the results eroded much of his confidence. Friends say he is not sure of himself or of his position, that he doesn't feel he knows where he stands. He isn't certain of his public backing or his strength. He is afraid of making enemies, particularly among men who might possibly be able to mount a coup, which means the military. Frequently he waits to act until his back is against the wall—as now.

Fourteen months ago this reporter was told by a Saigonese close to Thieu that he, Thieu, had made up his mind that 10 to 15 per cent of South Vietnam's generals, colonels and majors were so inefficient, corrupt or unaggressive in battle that they must be replaced.

Thieu was determined to act. But he didn't. He kept putting off the hard decision.

Yet the current military defeats, directly the result of incompetent generals, colonels and majors, illustrate how tragic Thieu's procrastination was.

According to word reaching this reporter, Thieu has again informed his friends that he is determined to go through with the purges. Hopefully these firings of incompetents will be carried out in depth. But don't count on it.

His friends say that in this crisis it will be easier for Thieu to act. He knows what he must do and that he can no longer delay. The problem is that Thieu may only half do the job. He may fire those generals he finds he must—as on the Quang Tri-Hue front—and a few more. Then grow cautious, saying that the middle of battle is no time to sack high officers.

He will be encouraged in that caution by all the relatives, friends, political sponsors and other patrons of these men.

In Vietnam, where family is so important, one man, even a president, requires a great deal of courage indeed to demote, or even to fail to promote a relative, especially a relative of his wife's family. Or to do the same for the family of an important associate or other key military or political figure.

There was a time when Thieu seemed to be gaining in confidence. American advisers, and even Vietnamese who were not on his side politically, were agreed he was starting to make strong and courageous decisions in the right direction. There was considerable agreement that he had the correct instincts in key areas—on elimination of political military officers, on wiping out corruption and on making the rough economic reforms necessary for progress.

Then came the one-man election. Thieu seemed to lose his nerve. As noted above, friends assert he began to wonder who would hold with him in the crunch and to question what power he had to enforce decisions.

Thieu has been pictured at times as a military dictator, a strongman. But the evidence these men present is the opposite. They describe a man unable to make up his mind, who keeps checking, rechecking and then double rechecking before taking action—then often as not deciding after all to wait for another time.

Now the question is will military defeats change Thieu's caution into resolution. If not, the consensus here is that whatever weapons the United States sends, and however much air power the United States applies, the situation will grow steadily worse.

Ann Landers: Adds To Original Rules Of How To Break Up Marriage

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed eight suggestions on how to break up the marriage of a son or daughter. I would like to add two more. These are guaranteed to work. I know because they destroyed my marriage. Here they are:

(1) Whenever your married son and daughter visit with their children, make a point of how thin and tired the kids look. Get across the message that you don't have a very high opinion of the way your beloved grandchildren are being cared for. Intimate that the mother's neglect is detrimental to the health of the youngsters. Ask repeatedly what they eat and why it is that they have so many colds. If the kids break a tooth or is injured during play, get all the details and place the blame on lack of supervision.

(2) If your son has a button off his shirt or if his shirt isn't ironed as well as you used to do it when he lived at home, say something. Also mention the hole in his sock or the spot on his coat. It will fan the flame of self-pity and it could start the final fight that ends in the divorce court.

I hope you will reprint the original eight rules along with the two additional suggestions as a refresher course for in-laws. The divorce lawyers from coast to coast are sure to profit from a re-run. Thank you.—It Happened In New Mexico

Dear N. Mex.: Thank you for two splendid additions to the original eight ways to break up a marriage. For those who didn't see the first eight, here they are:

(1) When a son or daughter lets you know they plan to be married, show open hostility to the person of his choice. After all, marriage means less love and attention for parents and they have a right to resent it.

(2) Expect your married children to spend every Sunday and holiday at your home. Act hurt if they have other plans.

(3) If your married children have problems with their mates, encourage them to come home, no matter what. Listen attentively to all complaints and point out additional faults which may have gone unobserved. Remember, a drop of water at a time can wear away a rock—if you keep at it long enough.

(4) If your married children are having financial problems, rush in with the checkbook. If you are having financial problems yourself, borrow, if necessary, but let them know they'll never have to do without anything so long as you are around.

(5) If a married child has a drinking problem, keep telling him his mate drove him to it. It will make him feel better. Everyone needs someone to blame.

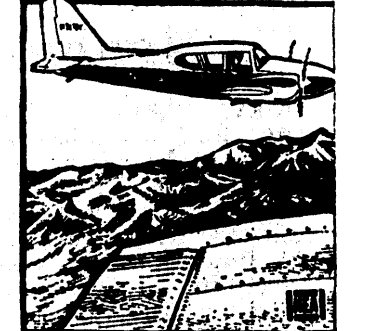

(6) If your married child gets an opportunity for advancement which takes him to another city, tell him family is more important than money and if he leaves, God will punish him for not obeying the commandment, "Honor thy father and thy mother."

(7) If there are grandchildren, smother them with gifts. If the parents object, tell them to keep out of it. After all, grandchildren are to spoil. Sneak money to the kids secretly if you have to. They'll love you for it.

(8) If your married child has a difference of opinion with his mate, get into the act and give them both a sample of your wisdom born of years of experience. What do THEY know? You've lived! If you talk loud enough, maybe you can turn a minor argument into a major hassle and break up the marriage.

Law For Today

Q. You said in a recent column that when an employer and a union agree to a "closed shop" all persons covered by the contract must become union members. We think this will happen soon at our company and, if so, how soon do you have to sign up?

A. Just for the record, we did say "closed shop" but we meant "union shop." If an employer and union representative agree by contract to a "union shop"—and it's perfectly legal for them to do so—all employees who are covered by the contract must join and remain members of the union no later than thirty days after the effective date of the contract. New employees will be required to join and remain members of the union before their employment. No person can be required to join a union BEFORE his employment as that would be a "closed shop" and courts have held this to be illegal. A "union shop" is based on the proposition that it is fair and reasonable to expect those who benefit from collective bargaining, by improved wages, job security and the like, to help support the union that secured and enforces these benefits.

Communication

To the Editor:

More than a million persons in the United States pursue a way of life that is unfamiliar to most of us. They are the residents of long-term health care facilities.

Mother's Day, May 14, marks the beginning of National Nursing Home Week, an annual salute to the aged and ill living in long term health care facilities. It is an opportunity for the community-at-large to familiarize itself with the lifestyle of these persons and the services provided for their care.

Mother's Day "Open Houses" will be held in long-term health care facilities throughout the nation. The May 14-21 observance sponsored by member facilities of the American Nursing Home Association, is designed to arouse community awareness of this too often neglected segment of our society. Ninety percent of residents are over 65 years of age; 33 percent are over 85. Many of these persons have outlived family and friends and community contact is an important factor to their well-being.

"Nursing Homes: We Care" has been selected as the theme for the observance. Demonstrating that this community cares about the aged and ill by visiting a nursing home will increase our understanding of the needs of these residents while awakening our awareness to the role played by the quality long-term health care facility in meeting these needs.

I urge everyone to visit a relative or friend.

QUICK CINNAMON CHOCOLATE CAKE

Combining cinnamon and chocolate is inspired by Mexican cuisine.

1 package (9.9 ounces) coconut pecan frosting mix

1 package (18½ ounces) devil's food cake mix

1 tablespoon ground cinnamon

1 cup water

½ cup salad oil

4 eggs

1 cup chopped pecans

Generously grease a 10-inch ring or bundt pan. Sprinkle pan to coat with 1 tablespoon of the frosting mix; reserve ½ cup frosting mix for topping. In large bowl of electric mixer, combine remaining frosting mix, cake mix, cinnamon, water, oil, eggs and pecans; blend until moistened; beat at medium speed 2 minutes. Pour batter into prepared pan; sprinkle top with reserved frosting mix. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean—50 to 60 minutes. Cool in pan on rack for 30 minutes. Remove from pan; cool completely.

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (UPI)—

Tourism ranked second only to manufacturing last year in its growth rate as an earner of overseas exchange for New Zealand; and may even move into first place in 1972. New Zealand's Reserve Bank reported that in 1972 overseas exchange receipts from tourism came to more than $42 million, compared with $12 million for 1970.

DREAM CREAM
North Main & Walnut

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — If Valerie Perrine had come along 20 years ago, Hollywood would have gone wild. There would have been headlines—"A New Star Comes to Town!"—and she would have dated Tyrone Power and/or Errol Flynn and there would have been a Valerie Perrine Salad added to the commissary menu.

But, in today's Hollywood, there's not much of a ripple. People notice her, of course—after all, she's big and beautiful and she's turned so many heads already there's a boom in lintiment sales from all the stiff necks. Unfortunately, however, stars don't happen overnight any more.

Miss Perrine, in case you haven't heard, is the beauty who decorates "Slaughterhouse—Five," and appears, without any trace of self-consciousness, in the almost-nude throughout most of her appearance in the movie.

There's no reason she should be a very uncomplicated girl, completely devoid of inhibitions or hangups. And, second, she has a lot of experience at being nude.

Born in Texas, she grew up in Scottsdale, Ariz., and is the daughter of an Army officer and an ex-showgirl. In Arizona, her best friend was Peggy Goldwater, the daughter of Sen. Barry Goldwater. And Barry, Jr., now a California congressman, was her "big brother"—"he was the one who told me I was wearing too much make-up and all that."

But when she was in her teens, she found Scottsdale too confining and went to Las Vegas and became a showgirl, nude no less, which shocked Scottsdale out of its cacti. She was looked on as such a pariah that she wasn't even invited to Peggy's wedding, which was a big blow to her, and also a valuable lesson.

She spent 2½ years in Las Vegas and found it an unnatural life—she never saw the sun and it got so serious that her eyes became sun-sensitive and she had to see an eye doctor. Eventually, the whole scene got to her and she bailed out.

"I believed," she says, "that my charisma was in Europe. So I took my life savings, said goodbye to the boy I was living with, and tripped around Europe for nine months."

When her money was gone, she cabled a friend who had a charter airline and was shipped to New York. She told her friend she was in California and another friend slip her a ticket to Los Angeles.

She got here with no money and no job but a host of friends. Her generation doesn't need more. She kicked around for months, living with various people of various sexes and sometimes bunches of them, and she still does. For a while she had her own house and one night she counted 18 people curled up in sleeping bags in the living room.

She got the part in "Slaughterhouse—Five" because somebody she knew knew director George Roy Hill and further knew that he hadn't yet found the girl to play Montana Wildhack in the film. So she went to see him and that was that.

She likes the picture—except for her scenes.

"I was 10 pounds overweight," she says, "and it shows."

Valerie has a slight but noticeable limp. The old Hollywood would have sent her to speech coaches until she lost it. The new Hollywood couldn't care less, and that's good. The limp doesn't bother her.

In the movie, she had a line: "Get me a needle and thread—and also a scissors." When she said it, "scissors" came out "thithth," and they scissored it out.

But, fortunately, they left her in. She adds a lot of zest to the picture and chances are she'll be adding zest to movies for a long time.

WOO, WOO: IT'S Woody Allen hiding behind that towel in a scene from a new movie. He worries about over-exposure, with too many films that is, and plans to hold "Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex . . . But Were Afraid to Ask," until after "Play It Again, Sam," and "Everything," are released this spring and summer.

Woody Allen Has 'Sex' Under Wraps

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—Who ever heard of a nude under wraps?

Well, there may or may not be any nudes in Woody Allen's next film, "Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex . . . But Were Afraid to Ask," but there are plenty of wraps. The whole film is being shot on the QT. Nobody gets into the set without a clearance from the FBI, dispensation from the Pope and a note from your parents. The set has more guards than Howard Hughes' shower.

I had a date with Woody for lunch so they let me inside the door. But there were some flinty-eyed toughs watching me every minute. I am able to report two facts about the film with certainty.

In one scene, at least, Woody wears the costume of a court jester—bells, pointy shoes and all that. And, in that same scene, he's playing opposite the ghost of his father, who says he can't rest until his son has seduced the queen. Which queen is a mystery, of course.

"The film is being shot under wraps," Woody says, "because there's no point in talking about it now—wait until later. There have been all sorts of rumors and most of them are wrong."

He seems to think it's coming along all right, although slowly. As the writer-director-star, he's taking his time. The film (only the title comes from the best-selling book) is Woody's biggest budget picture so far—around $2 million—and he's being careful.

He's also a little worried that it will be released too soon on the heels of his previous one, "Play It Again, Sam." That one is due for release near the end of May. "Everything" is set for summer release and he's afraid that'll be too much for Woody Allen in too short a time.

He says that "Play It Again, Sam" was a calculated departure for him. His earlier films—"What's New, Pussycat?" "Take the Money and Run" and "Bananas"—were all wild and nutty.

"I have a good and devoted audience for that kind of movie," he says, his bells clanking as he moves, "but I wanted to reach a broader audience."

I think "Sam" will do that. But I don't want to lose the "Bananas" fans, so "Everything" is back in the old groove.

Woody, whose face looks like a worry come to life, is worried about filmmaking. He says he doesn't really enjoy it. He much prefers the stage, although his biggest success (and, presumably, biggest profit) has come via film.

"But the stage is more fun for me," he says. "You get to the theater about eight, spend a couple of hours with your friends on the stage, and then go home. But, in movies, you have to get to the studio early in the morning, you work all day, you see rushes at night and then you have to plan tomorrow's shooting. The only advantage film has is that when you're done, you have something tangible—on stage, after the run is finished, you have nothing."

Robert Vaughn Turns Author

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—There have been a lot of Hollywood actors who have turned authors lately. Generally their books have about the same impact as a large powder puff against a herd of elephants.

There are some exceptions—Tom Tryon's "The Other" was one and now we have a volume called "Only Victims," written by Robert Vaughn. This isn't fiction. It's a study of the effects of the House Un-American Activities Committee and the ensuing blacklist on actors and on the theater.

Vaughn, the ex-Man From U-N-C-L-E, wrote this first as his doctoral dissertation, when he got his Ph.D. from the University of Southern California. He's probably the only actor around who can use three degrees—B.A., M.A. and Ph.D.—following his name. It might look pretty jazzy on a marquee.

He says he wanted the Ph.D. not for any practical purpose—he doesn't plan on teaching—but merely for the personal satisfaction of having it. The book is an expansion of his dissertation.

Vaughn has always been interested in politics. The book is tangentially involved with that field. But, as he has done in the past, he denies having any personal political ambitions although now he does say that he might accept some appointive office but will never run for elective office.

He is currently very active in support of the candidacy of South Dakota's Sen. George McGovern for the Democratic nomination. And, in fact, he has it written in his contract—he's doing a series in England

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation changed its male-only policy Friday to let women apply to become special agents.

J. Edgar Hoover, who died May 2, had vehemently opposed hiring women for the crime investigating jobs when he was FBI director because he said the work was too dangerous.

In announcing the new policy, Acting Director L. Patrick Gray III said the intensive 14-week training course will remain unchanged.

It includes firearms training requiring the applicant to become qualified in the use of a .38 caliber revolver, shotgun and rifle. It also contains a physical fitness program and requires the special agent applicant to become proficient in defensive tactics.

Gray first announced the abandonment of the men-only policy at a meeting Thursday with the bureau's 15 assistant directors.

He also ordered a staff study of how the bureau can increase the number of blacks, Spanish-speaking Americans and American Indians among its corps of 8,600 agents. Now there are little more than 100 agents from minority groups.

Gray also named three young lawyers to be his special assistants. One of them is a woman.

They are David D. Kinley, 30, Barbara L. Herwig, 27, and Daniel M. Armstrong III, 30. All three were on his personal staff while he was assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's Civil Division.

Last Aug. 4, two women filed suit in U.S. District Court in an effort to order Hoover's men-only policy to be declared unconstitutional.

One of the women, Sandra R. Nemser, said Friday in Denver the policy change is "just amazing."

She said she would submit her application as quickly as possible and estimated that "hundreds, if not thousands, of other women will do the same."

"I would really like to meet Mr. Gray and shake his hand,"

Gray said he was changing the policy because of President Nixon's anti-discrimination executive order and the Equal Employment Opportunity Act, which was signed by Nixon on March 24.

As assistant attorney general, Gray was responsible for defending Hoover against the lawsuit filed by the American Civil Liberties Union.

North Vietnam, U.S. Ready To Resume Talks

PARIS (AP)—The United States and North Vietnam said Friday they are ready to resume peace negotiations, but the conditions each side demanded left prospects bleak for a resumption of the talks.

The U.S. delegation issued a statement saying it "reaffirms its readiness to return to the talks" on the basis stated at the last meeting on May 4.

That was when the United States suspended indefinitely the talks, charging that the North Vietnamese were not prepared to negotiate on substantive issues.

U.S. delegation chief William J. Porter said Friday that whenever the North Vietnamese are ready to deal with such issues as the invasion of South Vietnam, the talks could be resumed.

North Vietnamese Politburo member Le Duc Tho, holding his first news conference since his return from Hanoi April 30, replied:

"What we want is a resumption of the negotiations without conditions."

Tho said in a prepared statement issued before the U.S. communique that, "We will not negotiate under military pressure. We demand that the U.S. government stop sabotaging the Paris conference on Vietnam and resume the weekly plenary sessions as usual."

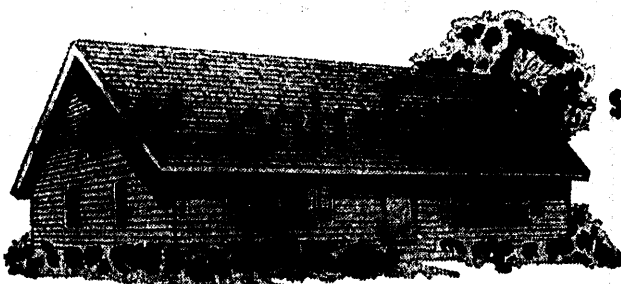

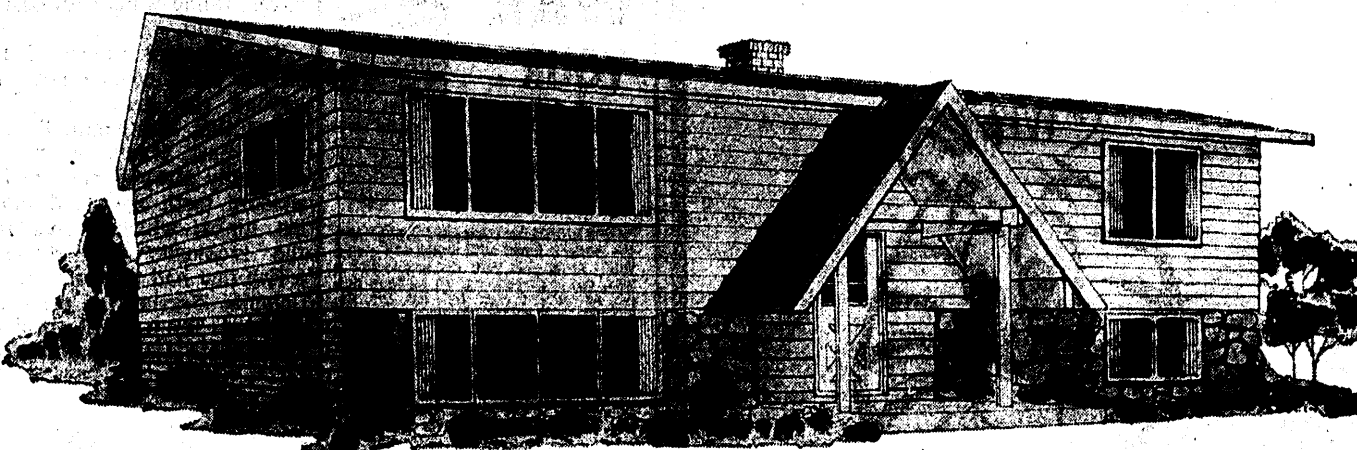

At his news conference, Tho rejected Nixon's offer to withdraw all American troops with possible and estimated that in four months of a cease-fire and the release of all U.S. war prisoners, saying it was "of no significance." Tho insisted that the United States set a definite withdrawal date.

Jacksonville Library Reviews — New Books

Harry Heusted

NOT FROM THE APES, by Bjorn Kurten. This book by a practicing paleontologist offers the thought that man's fossil remains show that he did not really evolve from the apes in the manner that Darwin described. Modern traits were discovered by Raymond A. Dart in the fossils of "Dartians" unearthed in Botswana (then called Bechuanaland) decades ago, and his studies have since been enlarged by successors through dating of lava and tuff. The deposits reveal that the African Dartians lived four million years in the past; their braincase was one-third the size of our own, and their palate was arched, which is true of Hominidae (man), not of Pongidae (apes). The simian shelf, or prognathic jaw structure, is lacking in Dartians, as is the slim hipbone built into the bodies of apes. Fossiliferous strata uncovered in Egypt revealed a small creature the size of a cat which had hominid teeth and was cautiously guessed to be 35 million years old. It is likely that present-day humans and apes are the branches that this early four-footed specimen spawned into multiple being.

The Dartians, the seed of the fissure in Egypt, were toolmakers faced by aggressive ho-tuskers—large elephants tusked with two hoelike extensions—and avatheres, edible antlered giraffes, which were hunted and slaughtered for meat. Bone weapons like jawbones and legs were in vogue for the "bite" or the "kick" they retained. Genera of carnivores no longer extant assaulted the hominid units. Felinoid dogs with the teeth of a cat and perverse pal-hyaenas that traveled together made life a predaceous adventure. Our pre-Dartian forebears of Miocene times were the size of a five-year-old modern-day child and were furry tree-dwellers who nibbled young birds and the insects and fruits of the land. Their puberty surfaced at eight years of age, and they must have stopped growing at ten. When they moved to the ground on a permanent basis, their body hair shrank but the hair on their heads became thicker to soften the sun.

After long glaciations, a creature that showed many singular facets evolved. Joachim Neander, a popular hymnodist, would have been startled to know that his valley would furnish Neanderthal Man. The valley in Germany yielded a skull which suggested a brain that was large in the back but not spaci-ously wide in the front. Cro-Magnon remains found in Dordogne, France, showed a much higher forehead, a much flatter chest, and a prominent chin from a man who was judged to be 35,000 years old. Neander-thals slew woolly rhinos and mammoths, and Cro-Magnon men practiced art in their caves, filling walls with descriptive graffiti.

The possible future of man on the earth could extend well beyond the gray millions of years that the hominids touch in the past. Man's toes will undoubtedly atrophy soon, and his wisdom teeth also, and maybe his limbs, which derive from the crossoterygian shape of a fish that had two pairs of fins. Colonial Martians, if we should produce them, will probably grow to spectacular size in the very low gravity present on Mars, as will species of animals with them. The next glaciation is not far away, so the surgical ice will again have its course in the fortunes of human endurance.

SUMMER SOLSTICE, by Elizabeth North, a novel. The stale English marriage of Hannah and William has floundered in Dorset where William is farming with wife-disobliging absorption. When not hauling fodder through ruts to the farm, he is preaching his dream to his wife and three children, informing them that they must grow more efficient to merit a place in his plans. Cool irony welling in Hannah's subconscious assesses firm William and finds him pathetic, a muddling subverter of life. Hannah would like to succeed on her own as a person, not rot as a dupe. She contacts her sister to get enough money to finance enrollment in college. However, a new couple enter the picture, and Hannah thinks Iris, the woman, is blessed with a William far better than hers. The book's second William leads Hannah astray, reconverting her militant feminist soul to the bonds of submissive observance.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen E. Engelbrecht

MURRAYVILLE — Miss Mary Evelyn Loneragan and Stephen E. Engelbrecht were united in marriage Saturday, April 29th, at the St. Bartholomew Catholic church here, the Rev. William Keohane officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent J. Loneragan of Murrayville and the groom is son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Engelbrecht, 355 West Beecher avenue, Jacksonville.

Mrs. William Clancy was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Angelo and Miss Geraldyn Lemon.

The bride wore an organza gown featuring ruffle trim at neckline and cuffs of the long tapered sleeves, empire waistline and chapel train bordered with a flounce. Venice lace adorned the bodice, sleeves and skirt. A fitted lace headpiece held her illusion veil and she carried a cascade of white gladiolus.

The attendants were identically gowned in floor-length apricot chiffon. Each carried an apricot gladiolus bouquet.

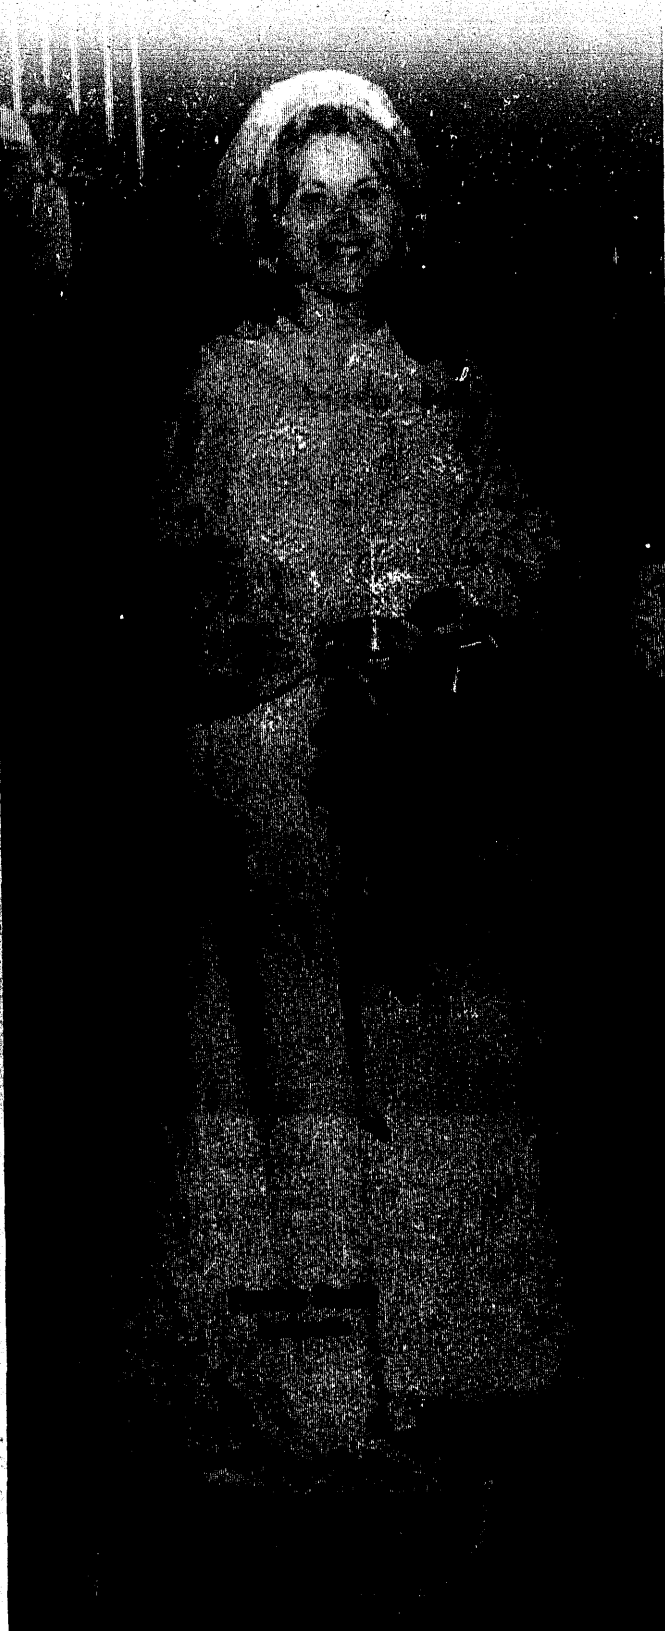

The best man was Steve Mathena of Fort Madison, Iowa. Groomsmen were brothers of the groom, Eric and John Engelbrecht, Michael Loneragan, brother of the bride, and William Clancy, brother-in-law of the bride, seated guests.

The bride's mother wore dusty rose lace with a green cymbidium orchid corsage. The mother of the groom chose aqua lace and a yellow cymbidium orchid corsage.

A reception at the Beef and Bird in Jacksonville followed the afternoon ceremony. Assisting were Mrs. Dorothy Harper, aunt of the bride, Lorene Thaxton, Jean Loneragan, Sue Ellen Langdon, Margaret Gruter, Barbara Doyle and Virginia Farmer.

Having returned from a short wedding trip, the couple is residing in Murrayville. Mrs. Engelbrecht, a 1970 graduate of Routh High School, is employed at Morgan County Abstract Co. in Jacksonville. The groom, a 1965 graduate of Jacksonville High School, served a year in Vietnam with the U.S. Army. He is employed at Howard Hembrough Volkswagen Agency in Jacksonville.

Among guests was the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Merrill Ferguson of Niota.

Mrs. Richard T. Scott

Janice Lair weds Richard J. Scott at Winchester

WINCHESTER — Miss Janice Lair and Richard J. Scott were married Saturday evening, April 29th, at the Winchester United Methodist church with Rev. David Deal officiating.

The bride is the daughter of the Harry Lairs and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Scott, all of Winchester. The bride wore a gown of organza on empire lines with Venice lace at the collared empire bodice, marked with pink satin ribbon, and cuffing the Bishop sleeves. Tatted lace edged the hemline of the long skirt and the chapel train. A Juliet headpiece with pearl trim held her illusion veil. She carried a cascade of pink roses and baby's breath.

Miss Janet Smith was maid of honor and Miss Diane Cloninger and Miss Sharon Howell, bridesmaids. All were identically dressed in full-length pink dotted Swiss, trimmed with lace and pink ribbon. Each carried a colonial bouquet of pink carnations, white poms and baby's breath.

Dan Butler of Springfield was best man. Groomsmen were Dawn Kleinschmidt, Jacksonville, and Merle Brown. Ushers were Jeff Lair, brother of the bride, and Richard Knutson, New Canton.

A reception was held in Sibert Hall at Winchester. The mother of the bride wore mint green lace with matching sleeveless coat. Her corsage was a pink orchid. The mother of the groom was in pink silk shantung with a white orchid corsage. Assisting at the reception were Becky Wisdom, Debby King, Dava McKinney, Janice Moore, Elaine Evans and Mary Linda Scott.

The newlyweds will be living in Springfield. The bride graduated from Winchester High School in 1971 and attended Lincoln Land Junior College in Springfield. The groom graduated from the same high school in 1964 and attended Northeastern State in Kirksville, Missouri. He is employed by the U.S. Postal department at Springfield.

Among the many guests were Mrs. Italee Summers and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lair, Jacksonville, grandparents of the bride, and Mrs. Ethel Summers, Benton, great grandmother of the bride.

Hakodate, the chief seaport on the northern Japanese island of Hokkaido, was founded in the 13th century.

united at Grace

Grace United Methodist church was the setting for the late April wedding of Miss Linda Eighinger and James Stephen Matthews. The pastor, Reverend Ronald Colton, received the vows the afternoon of Sunday, April 29th, before a large gathering of family and friends.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Eighinger, 3 North Crescent Drive; and the groom is the son of Mrs. William Williams, 424 Pendik Road, and James A. Matthews of Cape Girardeau, Missouri.

The bride wore a gown of satin with pearl and sequin trimmed brocade lace flowers, trimming the bodice, empire waistline, cuffs of the empire sleeves, and applied on the flowing train. A pearl and rhinestone embellished lace headpiece held her veil of illusion. She carried a cascade of white roses centering an orchid.

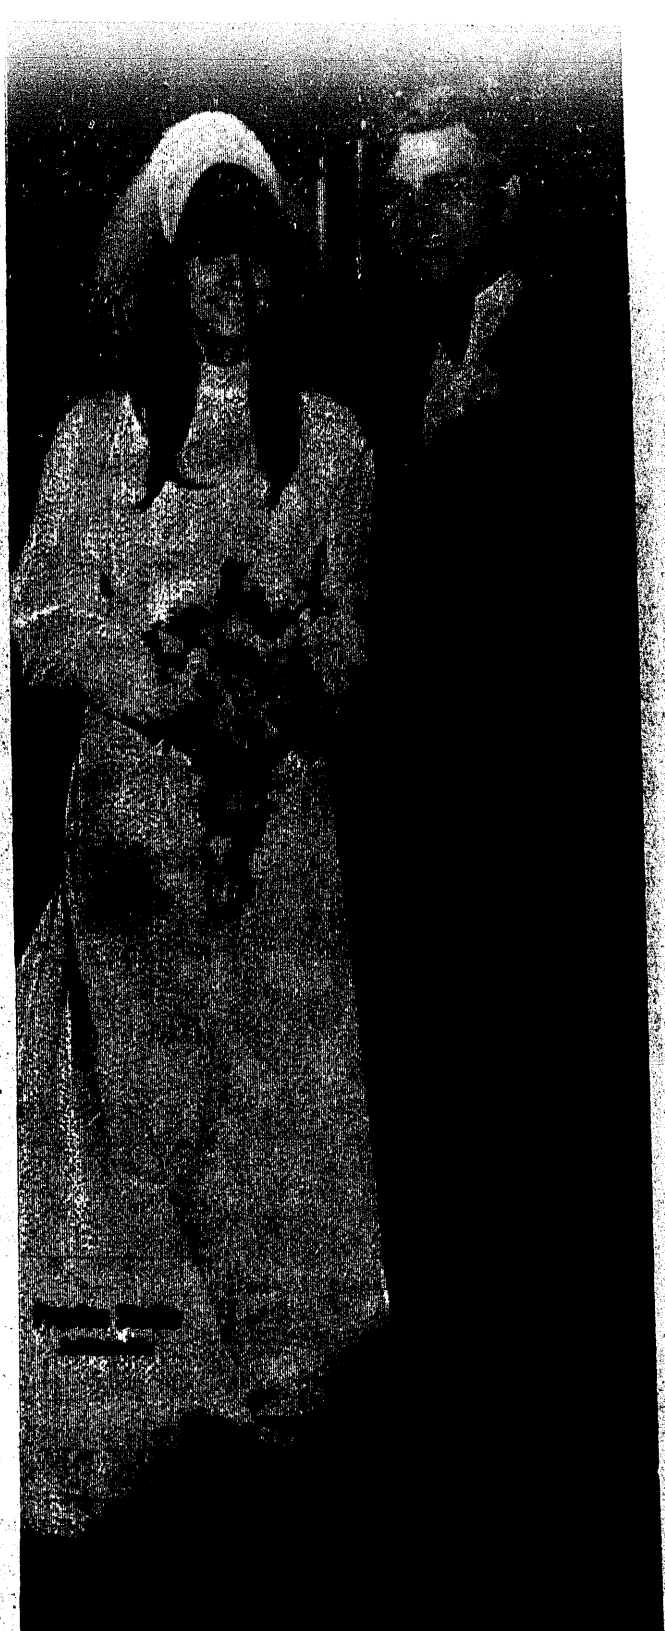

Miss Joyce Edwards was maid of honor and Mrs. Harry Copeland of Cape Girardeau, sister of the groom, was bridesmatron. They were dressed alike in ice blue nylon lace and each carried a nosegay of white roses with pale blue carnations. The attendants' gowns were fashioned by the mother of the groom, Mrs. William Williams.

Ushers for the ceremony were James Birdsell, Dale Newby and Jeff Matthews, brother of the groom.

The mother of the bride wore a ruffle-trimmed pink knit dress and the groom's mother, a white knit sheath with navy trim. Each wore a corsage of gardenias and stephanotis.

A reception was held at the church where Mrs. James Birdsell, Mrs. Larry Hoots, Miss Karen Carlton and Miss Debbie Gray assisted. Since returning from a wedding trip South, the couple is residing in South Jacksonville where the groom is assistant water superintendent.

Among the many guests was Mrs. Helen Poinsett of Cape Girardeau, grandmother of the groom, who also wore a gardenia corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. James Stephen Matthews

Mrs. Stuckmeyer new president of Lioness club

Jacksonville Lioness club met April 28th at the Beef and Bird with 14 members present. Marie Barton, president, was in charge of the meeting which opened with the pledge to the flag. Invocation before the meal was offered by Grace Furry.

Tables were attractively decorated with tulips, dogwood and greenery. The arrangements were awarded to Marlene Stuckmeyer, Ann Knowles and Mary Bailey.

Mary Bailey reported for the nominating committee and the proposed slate of officers was elected:

Marlene Stuckmeyer, president; Catherine Taylor, vice president; secretary, Dorrice Fulkerson; treasurer, Charlene Strubbe and three year board members, Opal Waggoner and Margaret Brewer.

Following business a silent auction was held as a money making project.

The annual May Brunch was held the 7th with Catherine Taylor serving as president, in absence of Marie Barton. The May theme was carried out in decorations with baskets and bowls of lilacs and dogwood, arranged by Lucille Walters. Lucille Eberhardt installed the new officers.

Josephine Eddinger

WINCHESTER — Announcement has been made of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Josephine Eddinger of Winchester to David Roy Gregory, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Gregory of Bluffs. A June 17th wedding is planned.

The bride-elect is the foster daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nott of Winchester. She graduated from Winchester High School and is employed at Hertzberg New Method, Inc., at Jacksonville. She is presently residing with Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Wade, Sr., at Winchester. Her fiance graduated from Kirkwood High School, served with the U.S. Army and is employed with the Police Department, City of Winchester.

Sister Neri is Altar Society's speaker May 8

The Altar and Rosary Society of Our Saviour's parish met Monday evening, May 8, in the Martha Routt Room. A Living Rosary in Our Saviour's church preceded the meeting. A large number of members participated in the impressive candlelight ceremony at 7:15 honoring the Blessed Virgin Mary.

President Dorothy Brooks opened the business meeting with prayer. Guests introduced were Mrs. Raul Mendigutia and Mrs. Michael Roach. Minutes were read and the treasurer's report heard.

Various committee reports were given. Wanda Tiemann asked for a volunteer to fill a vacancy in a visiting group of the nursing homes. Regular monthly visits are being made to the local nursing homes.

Maria Panella, social chairman, reported on the possibilities for the June dinner meeting and it was decided to hold it at the Blackhawk Wednesday evening, June 14, at 6:30 p.m. Betty Pine, communications chairman, said reservations may be made with her committee.

Blanca Velasco stated a need for more workers on her sacrificial committee and thanked her regular workers.

Joy Gosse reported on the diamond pendant sweepstakes. Recipient of the pendant was Miss Mary Welsh, Lynville; one hundred dollars, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Hadden, R.R. 2; and fifty dollars, Mrs. Kenneth Kirkback, 520 W. Beecher Ave.

Peg Flynn, ways and means, announced the society hopes to hold a rummage sale in the Martha Routt Room during the next month. Definite plans will be announced in the parish bulletin.

The society will serve a breakfast on May 21 in the Martha Routt Room to members of the First Communion Class of the School for the Deaf and their parents. Volunteers are needed to deliver Doorbell Dinners during the month of June. Donna Mattan, program chairman, introduced the speaker, Sister Philip Neri, consultant for the Diocesan Board of Education in Springfield. She spoke eloquently about the Blessed Mother and the devotion of the Rosary, one of Sister's favorite subjects. She stated that if Christ were to give us a summation of the best plan for our salvation it would be "Love Me, Love My Mother."

We need to understand more about the human qualities of Mary, for she was woman, virgin, wife, and mother. Mary has always encouraged the devotion of the Rosary; she taught it to Bernadette at Lourdes and asked the children at Fatima to say it daily. She predicted at Fatima in 1917 that war would destroy whole nations if people did not do penance and change their ways. She asked the three peasant children to whom she appeared to pray the Rosary for peace.

Msgr. Michael O. Driscoll made brief remarks and closed the meeting with prayer for deceased members of the society.

Lenore Rourke thanked the society for purchasing Girl Scout cookies, which were served by the Cadette Girl Scouts of Our Saviour's Troop and the following social committee with Karen Nolan as chairman:

Bernice Mayfield, Beatrice McCaherty, Bernadine McCaherty, Helen McGinnis, Kathryn McGinnis, Kay McGinnis, Helen McGrane, Ida McGrath, Rose McGuire, Betsy Molitor, Katherine Mullen, Gussie Murphy, Alma Murray, Margaret Norvell, and Portia Hoekstra.

Ann Lowrie Simms

Two Illinois College students from Plano, Miss Ann Lowrie Simms and Thomas James Erickson, are planning to be married there on August 18th. The engagement and approaching marriage was announced recently by Miss Simms' parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Glenn Simms, Plano rural route. Mr. Erickson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ardale Erickson.

Both young people are juniors and both graduated in 1966 from Plano High School. The bride-elect is a psychology major planning to obtain an elementary teaching certificate on graduation. Her fiance is majoring in English and sociology. He is a member of Pi Pi Rho literary society.

Country Club Ladies Day Golf News

Now I can say, "Spring and golf have finally arrived." Let's start today's column with the mixed event of last Sunday. We played the front nine backwards and believe me it was something I never saw so much rough rough. But it didn't seem to bother some people. Don and Joyce Craddock won first place. Second went to Mrs. Gene Schneider and Merle Wade, Schneider and Merle Wade, third went to Mr. and Mrs. L. Ruby.

The first clinic given by Pete Kuklinski for the beginners was given last Wednesday. There were fourteen women to take advantage of the helpful teachings. From all reports it was very successful. The Clinic for the Intermediates will be the 17th of May and the Advanced will be the 24th, both at 9 a.m. The Intermediate group consists of handicaps over 25, the Advanced between scratch and 25.

Later on in this column you will find the pairings for Wednesday, the 17th. If you do not find your name, it is because you have not paid your golf fee of $7.50.

This pairings list is made from the paid list. The pairings are as follows:

Back Nine—18 holes: Lillian Bunch, Leona Bailis and Ellen Gross. Irma Carbone, Fran Chumley, Maureen Zachary.

Delores Floreth, Gert Hohmann and Gracia Coultas. Helen Little, Rigi Fay, Sally Harris.

Mildred Pinson, Betty Krushas and Betty Brown.

Back Nine—18 holes: Edith Elliott, Trudy Walker and Marion Doyle.

Emma Grant, Betty Price and Sarah Warner.

Nicki Murphy, Maxine Cumby and Donna Roehrs.

Front Nine—nine holes: Betty Dawdy, Ruth Wilson, Vera Sue Schneider and Margaret Bellatti.

Jean Rammelkamp, Dorothy Floreth, Wilma Jackson and Johnny McNaughton.

Front Nine—nine holes: Margaret Hills, Helen Colvin and Greta Snow.

Jean Newman, Joyce Steagall, Ann Caldwell.

Bev Blue, Jean Mathews and Ruth Linebaugh.

Front Nine—nine holes: Evelyn Gonzalez, LaDora Ruby, Dorothy Ware.

Helen Foote, Carolyn Colton and Neva McKula and Mary Lou Murphy.

Next Wednesday the play for the day will be Low Gross, Low Net, by age class. When you arrive at the Pro Shop, there will be a sheet to sign your name under the proper category — 20-29, 30-39, 40-49, 50 plus.

Don't fret, if you should win, we won't print in which age group you were under, after all, no matter which age group you do fit into, there is a 10-year span you have in your favor.

As you noticed the 18-hole golfers will tee off on the back nine while the nine-hole golfers will go off the first hole.

Every Wednesday look for the sheet that will be posted for you to sign, entering you for the event for the day, also, please note the tee your group is to use for that day. They will alternate each week.

Just a word to all our new golfers. When you have golfed, be sure and write your score on the sheet. If your name doesn't happen to be on the sheet, write it on so a handicapper can be figured for you.

A special note for all of you, DON'T forget to close the glass doors. If you see them open, please take a second and close them. The wind and the rain sure play the devil with the handicap sheets and the special notices.

Now for the winners of Wednesday, May 10th (low ball twosome): 18 — Hole — Dolores Floreth and Betty Krushas with a 73. Nine-Hole — Vera Sue Schneider and Margaret Hills with a 43. Low putts, 18-hole — Gracia Coultas, Helen Little and Ellen Gross, 31. Low putts, nine-hole — Judy Grojean, 17. Chip-In — Dorothy Ware, Ellen Gross and Mildred Pinson. We have three new Birdies on our tree; they are Dolores Floreth on No. 7, Betty Brown also on No. 7, and Irma Carbone on No. 8.

I am not going to give you a rule of golf this week, I am going to find some good simple rules that pertain mostly to women, and so look for them next week. But I will tell you when you hit your golf ball and put a smile on it, you have put that smile somewhere between 336 dimples. Have fun golfing and

See you there, Fran Chumley

Tia Juana club in Daugherty home

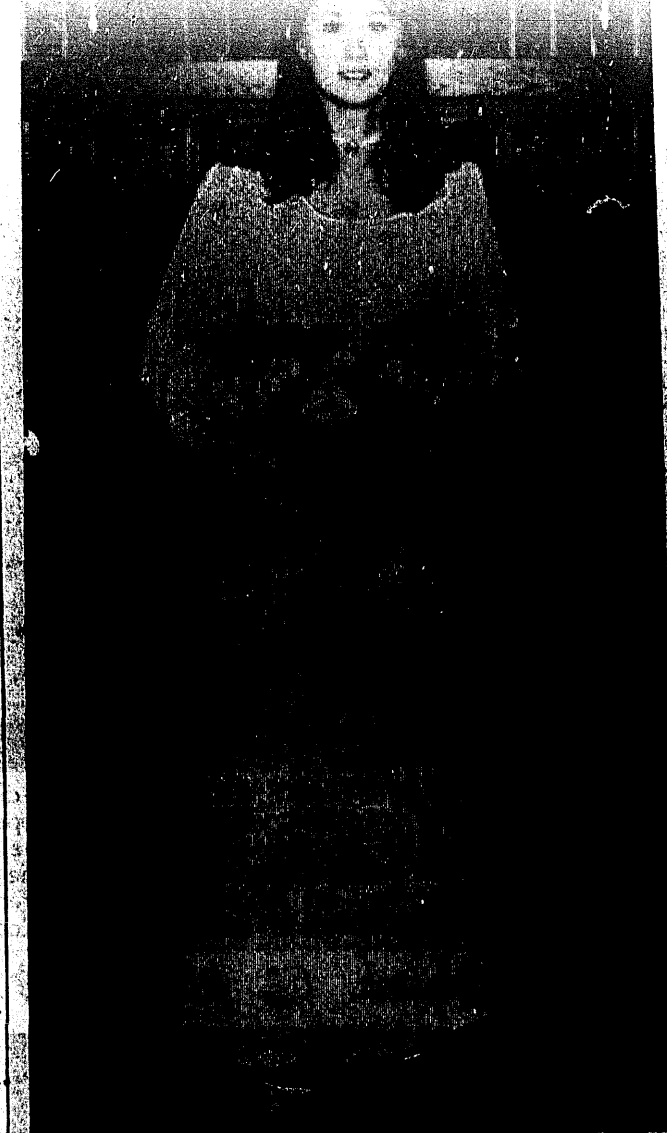

Members of the Tia Juana club were entertained last week at the home of Mrs. Martha Daugherty on East Railroad street. All members of the social club were present.

Secret pals provided mother's day remembrances in an exchange. Bridge was in play with the following prizes, first, Marguerite Whitaker; second, Elmore Holt; consolation, Cornelia Carter and floating, Martha Daugherty.

The May 23rd meeting will be with Elmore Holt.

Mrs. Deane Rogers

Rogers-McLeon vows in Cass

VIRGINIA — A ceremony at the United Methodist church in Virginia united in marriage Miss Joanne Kay McLeod of near Ashland and Deane Rogers of Virginia. The Reverend Beuy officiated and a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother following the mid-afternoon ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth McLeod, Ashland route two, and the late Joseph McLeod. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Rogers of Virginia.

The bride wore a mint green flocked batiste dress, floor length with empire waist and long full sleeves. Ribbon and lace trimmed the gown. Her flowers were pastel daisies, carnations and statice.

The groom's cousin, Mrs. Gary Beard of Arenaville and Danny Dearing of Jacksonville attended the couple. Mrs. Beard wore a full-length flocked pink batiste and her flowers were a miniature version of the bouquet carried by the bride.

Guests were seated by Dennis Wubker and Don Reynolds. The mother of the bride wore a green knit and the groom's mother chose a white knit. Each wore a corsage of white carnations. Assisting at the reception in the McLeod home were Mrs. Ed Tribble, Miss Lora Chilton, Miss Marilyn Noe, Mrs. Gordon Spencer and Miss Monica Devlin.

The newlyweds are living at 150 West Monroe street in Virginia.

gins. The bride formerly attended Virginia High School and is now employed at Capitol Records in Jacksonville. The groom graduated from the same high school in 1966 and is employed at the Chapla Locker Service.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Haggerty, 1406 West Lafayette avenue, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Carolyn Kay, to Anthony J. Newcomb, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Shuler of Boliver, Missouri. The couple plans to be married July 8th at Lincoln Avenue Baptist church in this city.

The bride-elect graduated from Jacksonville High School in 1970 and is attending Southwest Baptist College in Boliver. Her fiancé graduated in 1971 from Southwest Baptist College and is employed by Craft in Springfield, Missouri.

Dorothy E. Crowe

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Crowe, 228 West Morton avenue, of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Dorothy, to Edward J. Racila, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph V. Racila, 406 Southville Drive. The couple plans to be married Saturday, September 9th.

The bride-to-be graduated from Jacksonville High School in 1970 and later from Browns Career College at Springfield where she is now a private secretary at the Land of Lincoln Bank. Her fiancé graduated in 1969 from Routt High School and is a junior at University of Illinois, majoring in civil engineering.

Roberta Meek is new president of ABWA Chapter

The College City Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association (ABWA) held a dinner meeting Tuesday, May 2, at the Beef and Bird. Invocation was offered by Marcel Belzer, followed by the pledge of allegiance.

Delilah Newell introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Thomas J. Stevens, Department of Education director at MacMurray College. Topics discussed by Dr. Stevens included problems faced by public schools, teacher education, integration versus segregation, school identification namely, reform, accountability and culture system. He also pointed out ways in which the Jacksonville public schools were particularly good. A question and answer period followed.

President Cathryn Reynolds greeted members and guests. The vocational speaker, Mildred Prewitt, told of her duties at the Hertzberg New Method Book Bindery.

Roberta Meek gave the secretary's report and executive board report. Carol Batty read communications and the National communications were given by the president. Miriam Robinson gave the treasurer's report followed with standing committee chairmen reports.

Motion passed to pay the Stephen Bufton Memorial Fund and offer a donation to the American Field Service.

Miriam Robinson gave an interesting summary on A Day in Court, project of Jacksonville Woman's club.

Mary Virginia Brewer volunteered to serve on the advisory Park recreation committee to represent ABWA.

Mayor Dan Lahey has proclaimed May as scholarship month for the American Business Women's Association. The proclamation copy will be posted in the scrapbook by chairman Sally Geisler.

President Cathryn Reynolds attended the North Central District meeting, May 5, 6, 7 at Rapid City, South Dakota.

The audit report and recommendation submitted by Rose Mary Jarvis and committee was accepted.

An invitation was extended by Virginia Watt for the September meeting to be held in Winchester.

Officers elected for the upcoming year are: President, Roberta Meek; vice president, Doris Tomlovich; recording secretary, Virginia Watt; corresponding secretary, Mary Lee Brennan; treasurer, Bernadine Hyatt. The slate was installed by the retiring president, Cathryn Reynolds.

Mary Virginia Brewer, retiring vice president, presented Mrs. Reynolds with a past-president's pin.

The meeting closed with benediction by Louise Sooy.

The June 6th dinner meeting will be held at the Blackhawk.

Miss Fischer of Cass engaged to Phillip Murray

BEARDSTOWN—Mr. and Mrs. William J. Fischer of Beardstown announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Jane, to Phillip R. Murray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Murray, also of Beardstown.

Miss Fischer, a member of the class of 1969 of Beardstown High School, graduated Friday, May 12 from the Pasavant Memorial Hospital School of Nursing. She is employed at Schmitt Memorial hospital.

Her fiancé, a graduate of the same high school in 1968, is presently serving with the U.S. Navy at Milton, Florida.

Oklahoma's Panhandle was called No Man's Land for many years. It had no local law since it belonged to no state nor territory. It thus became a rendezvous for outlaws and the only authority was that of the gun.

Barnett couple

WHITE HALL — An estimated three hundred attended the musical and reception held Sunday afternoon at the First Christian church for Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Barnett, who are moving soon to Florida to reside.

Mrs. Reginald Williams was in charge of the guest registration. A choir of thirty voices, all former musical students of Mrs. Barnett, presented a program of This Is My Country, Battle Hymn of the Republic, and the Hallelujah Chorus, directed by Mrs. Navana Hope Ahrends of Pontiac, Ill., a former pupil of Mrs. Barnett's also, with Don Spangenberg at the piano for all numbers. Mrs. Ahrends sang "The Holy City."

Rev. William Belko, pastor, welcomed those attending and Rev. and Mrs. Robert Ricks of the Maplewood, Mo., Christian church gave a history of the Barnetts, with both humorous and serious events of their life in the community. Their daughter, Mrs. Marshall Sterns, was also presented.

From a beautifully appointed serving table, centered with aqua blue and white flowers, punch, tea cakes, coffee, nuts and mints were served.

The committee for the affair included Frank Hopkins, Don Spangenberg, Alene Love, Karen Fitzjarrell, Lois Whitney, Pearl Jolly and the service committee, Dorothy M. Young, Ruth Rochester, and Jessie Williams. Others assisting were Mrs. William Belko, Miss Ethel Culbertson and Mrs. John Neece.

A tape recording made by Mrs. F. N. McLaren was given, and John B. Pratt, chairman of the Church Board, presented the Barnetts with a tape recorder and two beautifully made boxes, by Mrs. May Turnbaugh, with "Love Offerings and messages."

Anderson, mental cruelty; Sharon Prewitt vs. Willard Prewitt, mental cruelty.

Mrs. Bunnetta Deatherage, R.N.

A forty-four year career in the nursing profession will terminate when Mrs. Bunnetta Deatherage, R.N. officially retires June 1st as Director of Morgan County Visiting Nurses and Home Health Aid Services. The HHA was organized in Morgan County in 1967 under a federal grant and grew from a small endeavor to a very necessary home health service for residents of this area. A total of 99 Aides have been trained in the program over the years.

Mrs. Deatherage supervised enrollment of classes, carefully screening the applicants, and enlisted instructors and speakers from the field of medicine, business and other professions to lecture. Classes were held at night and the 'students' were to a great extent of retired age, both women and men. There was no cost for the instruction and after successfully completing the course these trained Aides would be sent into homes to care for people wishing to leave the hospital or a nursing home, for the comforts of their own home. Tome Health Aids were available for any specified need: hours; half or full days, or longer. The service is arranged only through the agency and is a boon to elderly, ill and handicapped.

Mrs. Deatherage is a graduate of Presbyterian Hospital School of Nursing in Chicago. For a number of years she was an industrial nurse for Marshall Fields store in that city. She is the widow of Dr. Charles F. Deatherage. The couple moved to the mid-west in the 1930's, locating in Springfield. She has served in many levels of professional nursing and recruited nurses during World War Two for both the U.S. Army and Navy. Mrs. Deatherage will travel and spend time with her son, David Deatherage and family at Memphis, Tennessee, during immediate months of her retirement.

Dating May Be Dated On College Campuses

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

On today's college campuses the dating game is dead.

More than 150 interviews on a dozen campuses across the country—with students, faculty members, administrators, physicians, psychiatrists and sociologists—disclose that young people generally are rejecting the rituals of dating as artificial, impractical and strained. The young see themselves engaged in a search for more meaningful friendships in which men and women celebrate each other for their ideas and thoughtfulness instead of their money, manners, family and good looks.

Liz, Sherri and Ted have never met, but they agree on the demise of dating.

Sherri, a sophomore at the University of Michigan, says her idea of a good time is to invite a few friends to sprawl on the waterbed in her room, listen to music, eat crunchy food and smoke pot.

Liz, a junior at Boston University, has been living off campus with her boy friend for almost a year. They have no plans to marry, and she keeps her own room on campus so her parents don't find out about the arrangement. When Liz and Pete go out, usually to a movie, they go dutch-treat.

"My ideas toward girls have changed," said Ted Benoit, a Harvard sophomore. "Now I like to talk to a girl to share ideas. I feel no qualms about treating her as an equal. That's why the traditional dating situation is losing ground. It implies inequality."

Sherri agreed. "I never liked the concept of dating anyway. I used to worry whether he'd kiss me good night once or twice. It was ridiculous."

Liz said she began to question her ideas about dating when she was packing her bags and moving from her boy friend's apartment to her room at the University of Mississippi. "It seemed absurd," she said. "Sometimes, I feel bad about it because my parents are still paying for the room, and in our family, money doesn't come easily. But I decided it was worth the sacrifice."

Bob, a pre-med student at the University of Mississippi, is more conservative than Sherri or Liz or Ted. But his views are changing too. Bob said he was raised "to be a Southern gentleman" who always called weeks in advance for a date. A lot of girls at Ole Miss still expect it, he said, but they no longer interest him.

"We're at a pivotal point," said Bob. "It's been a long time since any change has come here. But it has to be that couples would go to the Grove to make out. Now groups gather there to listen to tapes."

It's tough," he said. "There aren't as many parties. You have to get out and hack it by yourself."

But it's a good thing. There aren't the old vehicles to rely on. In the past, what many girls enjoyed were the times a boy showed her, not the boy himself.

Other things changed while "Ed" was away. Status now is owing a good stereo. Marijuana, in many places, is commonplace.

Roll through dormitories in Cambridge, Mass., Ann Arbor, Mich., Storrs, Conn., and Chapel Hill, N.C., and you'll find single beds pushed together to make a double, after-hours loitering on the same shelf with perfume and the odor of marijuana hanging in the air.

At more conservative schools—in Liberty, Mo., Memphis, Tenn., and Oxford, Miss.—the changes aren't as sweeping, but they're there. The Big Weekend and beer-drenched fraternity parties still exist, but they appear to be on the wane—unhip, uncool.

At Ole Miss, things appear much the same on the surface. A dark-haired junior named Tish said she never leaves the dorm without her boy friend's fraternity pin attached to her sweater. Her room is decorated with sorority insignia, Confederate flags and pictures of herself and friends in formal attire.

But taped to her mirror hangs a hand-lettered sign: "Take Your Pill."

She is not alone. On many campuses, student health centers provide contraceptive counseling and devices. Some have added gynecologists to their permanent staffs.

"I can't prove it from statistics, but I don't think there's been a real change in student behavior in terms of involvement with premarital sex," said Dr. Julian S. Kaiser, director of health services at the University of Connecticut.

"It's just more open. They don't have to go to Lover's Lane anymore. They can go to each other's rooms."

Kaiser echoed the views of several physicians, but many students disagreed, insisting that The Pill has replaced the fraternity pin as a sign of commitment.

"From the number of calls we get, I can't believe there isn't more sexual activity on campus," said Bob Wilson, director of the student-operated Human Sexuality Counseling Service at the University of California. "It's not so much, 'What will my parents do?' but, 'What will they think?'"

"I'd like my parents to know," said one freckle-faced sophomore who sleeps with her boy friend every weekend. "I love him, and I'd like it to be open. But they don't ask. They take the attitude, 'What I don't know won't hurt me.'"

"I want to be a lawyer. I don't want complete responsibility for the house. And I don't want to jump into marriage the way a lot of people do just to legalize sex."

Women from Harvard's sister college, Radcliffe, have recently been allowed to live in Harvard housing.

One Radcliffe woman was assigned to her fiancé's dorm. They live in her room and use his as a study. For the times when their parents call, they have rigged a telephone line to go out her window, twice through the ivy along a trench they dug up through the ivy on his side of the building into his window. Now the phone rings simultaneously in both rooms.

Many college officials know students are breaking rules but only wink at it. At a small college outside Boston, the assistant dean of women is living with the dean of men.

"We walk to work together. We go home for lunch. Most of my co-workers know, but I'd sure hate the trustees to find out," she said. Asked if she would discipline male and female students for living together, she shook her head no.

Many colleges and universities have relaxed their rules, making it easier for men and women to see each other on a daily—and nightly—basis. Curfews have been abolished at a growing number of schools, including Smith College in Northampton, Mass., Colby Junior College in New London, N.H., and the University of Miami.

The Association of College and University Housing Officers reports that 70 per cent of the nation's residential campuses have coeducational living quarters. At Harvard, Boston University and the University of Michigan, men and women can choose to live on the same floor in select dorms.

"It's like a big family," said Dennis Burdick, a junior at the University of Michigan who dates several girls but no one on his floor.

"It would be like taking out your sister."

According to the university's housing information director, John Finn, an advantage to this coed arrangement is that many women students say they feel more secure having males around to protect them from prowlers. Almost all rooms on campuses are starting to look like a dorm. The other is only 75 per cent full.

"The girls I talk to don't even want open visitation," said Carole Taylor, a resident adviser in a girls dorm at Memphis State. "They don't want to have to get all dressed to go to the shower."

Carole, a 25-year-old graduate student, said it doesn't bother her that she can't entertain men in her room. "I don't run around in my makeup all the time, and I don't want to break any illusions."

Off-campus apartment complexes are flourishing near the larger schools. In a shabby boarding house in Cambridge, two Harvard students share four rooms with a Radcliffe coed named Pat. They each pay $72 a month for rent and about $8 a week for food.

"When I lived in a dorm," Pat said, "men would call up and ask for anyone who didn't have a date. It was really artificial. I'm down on that kind of romantic life. I prefer to be with a lot of people who really care about me."

The traditional off-campus living quarters, fraternity and sorority houses, appear to be losing their appeal. At the University of Michigan, five fraternity houses are up for sale. The University of Connecticut had 20 fraternities four years ago. Five remain. There were seven sororities, now there are three.

John Vibert, president of the University of Connecticut Interfraternity Council, complained that the losses "have destroyed social life" on campus. But at the University of North Carolina, where the number of men pledging fraternities this spring dropped 25 per cent from last year, rush chairman Bill Griffin said:

"Fraternities aren't needed as social organizations anymore. We're going to see an emergence of fraternity life again, but it will be more oriented toward solving community and campus problems."

"When I was a freshman, at least a third of my brothers dated every night. Girls were impressed with fraternity status, the environment, the bands. You don't see that anymore."

What one finds now are small groups gathering in dormitory rooms and apartments, openly questioning traditional ideas of dating, love, marriage and careers.

"I used to look at dating as a social means to an end," said Muff Winter, a senior at Radcliffe. "Marriage—settling down—was the goal. Now, seeing that I can have a career makes me look at men in a different sense."

"I don't think of everyone I go out with as a potential husband or wonder what he'll be like in 10 years. It's more care-free now, more casual."

Marriage also was the primary goal of Nancy Brennehan, a junior at William Jewell College, a small Baptist school in Liberty, Mo. "When I started school, I thought I'd go for a couple of years and get married," she said.

Nancy still plans to marry, but now she wants to finish school and teach. Not a radical change, but one she hadn't considered a few years ago.

Now, if Nancy wants to see a movie her "engaged-to-be-engaged" boyfriend can't afford, she offers to pay. Two years ago, they probably would have skipped it.

For many, the new social patterns are confusing.

"How do you go from friends and this group stuff to getting more involved with a girl?" asked Steve, a Michigan sophomore. "In the old days, you'd see a girl you liked and ask her out. Now she'd laugh at you."

Here To Honor Gold Star Parents

Mrs. Hazel Deahl

Mrs. Theodore Quick

The annual banquet honoring Morgan County Gold Star Parents, sponsored by the American War Dads' and Auxiliary Chapter 28, was held May 9th at the Ranch House. Special guests were the National Auxiliary president, Hazel Deahl of Kansas City, Missouri, and her fellow state auxiliary officers present. Mr. Fanning introduced the national officers of the Dads attending the meeting.

Rev. Dale Robb, speaker for the evening, offered invocation before the dinner, and Mrs. Thomas Ruby led the pledge to the flag followed with group singing of God Bless America.

War Dad John Chambers was master of ceremonies and Mrs. Chambers welcomed the Gold Star parents. William Graubauer represented the Gold Star parents in response, thanking the organizations for the honor.

Mrs. Marie Hart, accompanied by Miss Alice Dour, sang. Following brief remarks Mr. Fanning introduced his fellow state officers present and Mrs. Quick spoke calling attention to her slogan, "one step at a time." She also introduced her fellow state auxiliary officers present. Mr. Fanning introduced the national officers of the Dads attending the meeting.

Rev. Robb, pastor of First Presbyterian church, spoke on Heritage, touching on the Statue of Liberty and what it represents. Mrs. Hart and Miss Dour concluded the program with another number.

Guests from Macomb included Mr. Quick, husband of the State auxiliary president; Mrs. Christine Nabors, Danville State auxiliary secretary and Mrs. Sylvia Erickson, Kansas City, Missouri, sister of the National auxiliary president.

The May 2 meeting of the Welcome Wagon Club of Jacksonville featured Don Hardesty of the local YMCA. Mr. Hardesty spoke of the benefits of exercise and physical conditioning and gave club members hints on dieting and good health.

During the business meeting Mrs. Ernie Stainton formed a committee to organize the family picnic to be held June 18 at Nichols Park. Welcome Wagon will use the pavilion next to the ferris wheel. Organized family games will be one of the highlights of the picnic. Mrs. Stainton is club social chairman.

Mrs. Richard Fernandes is babysitting co-op secretary for the month of May. The program for the June meeting is one which had been postponed, a discussion of sex education in the Jacksonville schools. Hostesses for the May meeting were Mrs. Terry Brown, Mrs. Bruce Cassens, and Mrs. Ron Lindsey.

The winner of the lovely candle-lab was Mrs. Harry Pirtle, and Mrs. Ken Swanson took home the centerpiece of candles and fresh flowers. Table centerpieces were won by Mrs. Bob Schuette, Mrs. Robert Bradley, Mrs. Gary Heusel, and Mrs. Terry Heimlich. The most important item of business was the May 20 Pick-a-Dilly bazaar sponsored by Welcome Wagon. Gem Weight Original meaning of the term "carat," used in weighing gems, was "bean" or "seed." The seeds of carob trees were once used as weights for precious stones, which are described as being of so many "beans' weight" or "carats."

PIKE SOCIETY ASKS COURTHOUSE, JAIL RESTORATION

PITTSFIELD — At the May meeting of the Pike County Historical Society a resolution was adopted regarding several pieces of property which have historical significance.

Included was the Pike County courthouse, now in need of dome repair; Pike County jail, a building with heavy brick walls, stone trim and stone sills and needing interior repair and new cellblocks. The Society feels the county should retain the buildings which depict the age of Pike and the examples of early craftsmanship and planning by early citizens.

Copies of the resolution were sent to members of the Pike County board, county clerk and area press.

Complete Sale
Band students at North Greene Junior High School have completed a successful sale of Stuckey's pecan roll, with a profit of $670.

Tim Pratt, Vickie Prather, and Kimberly Jameson were top salesmen. The students, with Miss Tamra DeVault as their director, plan to use the money for music purposes.

Frances Woodrum new president of local BPW club

The May 4th meeting of the Jacksonville Business and Professional Women's club was held at the Beef and Bird. Prayer was offered by Mrs. A. B. Applebee preceding dinner. Tables were decorated with spring flowers by the dinner committee, Irene Duffer, Blanche Spall and Lois Wells. Minutes of the last meeting were read by secretary June Schell. The treasurer's report was given by Elizabeth Hardy and correspondence read by Marie Hamey.

An auditing committee, Jennie Hughes, Marian Patterson and Irene Duffer, was appointed to audit books. Mrs. Lola Hickey was introduced as a guest. The nominating committee proposed the following slate of officers approved by the club for the ensuing year:

President, Frances Woodrum; first vice president, Eloise Tholen; second vice president, Lois Wells; secretary, June Schell; corresponding secretary, Marie Hamey; and treasurer, Elizabeth Hardy.

Marian Patterson reported on Career Day. Frances Woodrum represented the local club at the Illinois State BPW convention at the Marriott Motel, Chicago. She was accompanied by Thelma Pinson.

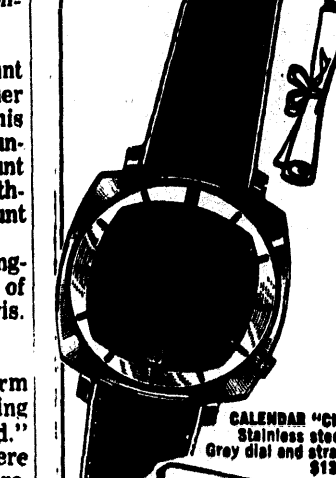

Installation of officers was conducted by Mrs. Irene Duffer in an impressive candlelight ceremony. Retiring president Lucille Chandler thanked her officers and committees for co-operation during her term of office. She was then presented a past president's gavel pin and the year's scrapbook. Mrs. Chandler presented the club's gavel to incoming president Frances Woodrum accompanied with a beautiful carnation corsage.

The club will meet Thursday, June 1st, for dinner and program at the Beef and Bird.

'Hanging Loose' For Awhile

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) —
"... Hanging loose ... standing tight ... we'll just have to wait and see."

That's the way many of the 59 Democratic convention delegates pledged to Edmund Muskie, described their position this week now that the Maine senator has left the primary campaign trail.

Angelo Geocaris, Muskie's Illinois campaign manager, who is attempting to keep the Muskie delegates together between now and convention time, declared, "I don't know of one that wants to defect yet."

Nevertheless, there are indications that like a spinster on an ocean voyage, Muskie delegates are quietly searching for another namesake, Sen. George S. McGovern and Sen. Hubert Humphrey have wooed them and some delegates say privately they once again are looking toward Mayor Richard

J. Daley of Chicago for leadership. When Muskie campaigned across the state his aides said he hoped to have the mayor join his bandwagon if things went well. Although he won in Illinois things didn't go well and now some observers say it is the Muskie delegates who may join the Daley bandwagon.

"In this confused state (of affairs) without any one guy dominating in the pre-convention picture, a lot of the delegates might want ... to look and see what the mayor wants to do," concedes Geocaris.

He adds that at this time there is little difference between an officially uncommitted delegates, he says, are now probably uncommitted, whereas the ratio was about one in five two months ago.

"I've talked to the mayor and a few of his lieutenants at length," Geocaris says. "They say what's the difference. You're Muskie pledged so stay Muskie pledged. When the time comes we'll talk business. When we all know what's going on better."

Daley already has control of at least 60 of 88 uncommitted delegates and should he get into his camp a sizeable portion of the Muskie people, his control of the 172-member delegation would be back where it has long been in conventions past.

"It's back to politics as usual," says one observer who recently analyzed the Muskie delegate picture. "Most of the Muskie delegates are regular Democratic party people. Now with Muskie out it takes away the pretense of the whole thing."

If Daley arrives in Miami with most of the delegates in his pocket it could once again bring him to his reported role as presidential kingmaker in any closely divided convention.

Although Daley's control is nothing new to Illinois delegations, reform-minded Democratic party leaders have sought to avoid domination any delegation by one man or one faction.

Muskie leaders are asking their delegates to hold fast for the Maine senator. To emphasize the point, a meeting has been scheduled for Saturday in Chicago of all the 59 delegates. High on the agenda is passage of a resolution spelling out an intent by the delegates to stay with Muskie.

Many of the Muskie delegates indicated this week that they do not intend to go to the Chicago meeting, although emphasizing their continued support of Muskie. Many also said they would not approve of a resolution of intent.

The delegates would rather sit back and take more time to look at the picture from their seats as "free agents."

"I'm hanging loose," said Doug Kane, a Muskie delegate from the 20th district. "I want that they would lean toward McGovern while others said Humphrey is their second choice after Muskie. But generally the Muskie people have little enthusiasm for either of the present frontrunner candidates.

Jeanne Wycoff, a delegate from the 19th district in west-central Illinois, says she has somebody in mind as a second choice, but won't reveal it because "we don't even know who the players are yet."

The nonplaying player may be Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts who is thought to be Daley's favorite. Asked if she would favor a shift toward the Chicago Mayor she replied, "I would not be against it."

Meanwhile Geocaris, who is trying to get three Muskie oriented delegates among the 10 at large delegates still to be selected, says the Muskie group is still "a very cohesive 59."

He adds, however, that "the only thing that we have in common as 59 pledged Muskie delegates is Muskie and it's up to me to emphasize the common ground and not emphasize the conjectural or hypothetical dispersals."

Virginia Wright Maguire, Dies

FRANKLIN — A Morgan county native, Mrs. Virginia Wright Maguire, 59, died Thursday morning at Spokane, Washington.

She was born July 29, 1912 at Franklin, daughter of the late Burley and Gertrude Wood Wright. She attended Franklin schools.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Burlene Nickel of Bloomington, and four sons, Donald Taylor of Morton, Ronald Taylor of Concord, Keith Taylor of Loveland, Colo., and Gerald Taylor of Jacksonville. There are 17 grandchildren.

Graveside rites will be conducted at 11 a.m. Monday at the Franklin cemetery with the Rev. Kenneth Junk officiating. The Neece Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements. There will be no formal visitation.

MEREDOSIA STORE BURGLARIZED

Thieves broke into the Shoe Center in Meredosia early Friday morning and took 11 pairs of boots.

According to Morgan County sheriff's deputies, the burglars entered the store through a rear window.

The Annual Spring Bird Census of how many birds of each species we saw might be more stable than many of ours, and we trusted him to send to the state official reports.

Some Side Lines
We were surprised at our total number of species, for we met some nature handicaps. High water covered some of our good bird territory. Since there were very few flats, there were few shore birds. We searched and searched in vain. Then, ironically, as one of our groups was returning to Jacksonville at dusk, we found the most shorebirds of the day right at home: the sewage plant on route 78; and we didn't have to hike to find them. We counted them from our car. Occasionally we faced another handicap: sandstorms in spite of high water.

What were some of the species which we identified? We found 3 kinds of herons, 6 kinds of ducks, 3 kinds of hawks, 8 kinds of sandpipers, 6 kinds of woodpeckers, 5 kinds of flycatchers, 4 kinds of swallows, 3 kinds of mockingbirds, 5 kinds of thrushes, 7 kinds of vireos, 36 kinds of warblers, 6 kinds of finches, 12 kinds of sparrows, and others. Our best birds undoubtedly were a Harris' Sparrow, a Blackthroated Blue Warbler, a Connecticut Warbler, and a Pine Warbler. Wood Ducks were plentiful. After we had failed to find a Belted Kingfisher along any body of water, it decided to come out in the open and flew across the highway in front of our car. Dickcissels chanted their name from telephone wires, fences, and clover fields. As we were hiking a tree-bordered trail along a part of Crane Lake, a whole flock of Yellow Warblers flew around us, singing their cheerful "tsee-tsee-tsee-tsee-ti-wees." And many more birds made May 6 a rewarding day in bird history.

Apt Ideas

By JIM HUFNAGEL
Written for Associated Press
If you live in an apartment, you probably are concerned with sound control and privacy. Sound conditioning is conspicuous only when it's absent. There are, however, a number of clues you can look for, as well as some perceptive questions you can ask when you are apartment hunting.

Start with the apartment door. Has it a rubber or plastic threshold closer like those that seal refrigerator doors? Are the edges weather stripped and is the door hollow-core or solid? (To find out, give it a thump.) If the apartment building has an indoor corridor, notice whether or not the doors are placed in tandem. By staggering entrances on each side of the hall, rather than cutting them opposite one another, builders can greatly reduce noise transmission.

Also, easement windows should be placed so that your open window doesn't deflect sound into your adjacent neighbor's open window. If the windows are double-paned you don't have to worry too much about street noise or racket from the swimming pool.

Unless you watched the apartment building which you are moving into go up, you obviously have no way of knowing, or examining, the builder's structural sound control techniques. So all you can do is ask.

Consider party walls and floors. Find out what was done to minimize sound transference. If an apartment owner tells you that the building has solid concrete block party walls then you can assume that it might be sturdy, but it's not going to do a very good job of deadening noise.

One of the best systems is the "staggered stud" technique—2 x 4's staggered so that any member touching apartment A never touches apartment B. Insulation is woven between them, and plasterboard is placed over sound-deadening board on both sides of the wall system.

If electrical outlets backup to each other, even a good partition wall has been rendered pretty ineffectual. Why? Because small leaks tend to amplify noise.

Concrete floors covered with a good pad of carpet do only a fair sound control job. A better method is a multi-layer system—floor joists covered with plywood covered with pad and carpet. The ceiling below should be plasterboard or suspended from resilient clips. An ideal job would be to have had a sound-deadening insulation poured between the joists.

Friday Circuit Court Fines Two, Exonerates Two

Two defendants were fined on charges of illegal transportation of liquor Friday afternoon in Morgan county circuit court. The charges stemmed from separate arrests by city police.

Gary L. Westrope, 25, of 1227 Center St. entered a plea of guilty to illegal transportation of liquor and was fined $100 and $10 court costs.

Presiding Judge Gordon Seator accepted a guilty plea from Michael F. Yates, 18, of Troy, route one, to a charge of illegal transportation of liquor and assessed a fine of $100 and $10 court costs.

James R. Stambaugh, 20, of Browning appeared before court for a trial without jury. He had earlier entered an innocent plea to a charge of driving too fast for conditions and had requested a bench trial. He was charged by State Trooper J. W. Millik following a one car accident on U.S. 36 1/4 mile west of Orleans.

Stambaugh told the court that he was driving to Springfield at the time of the accident, maintaining a speed of about 50 m.p.h. due to the rainy weather and wet pavement. After passing another car, he was returning to the right side of the highway when he hit a puddle of water. He lost control of the vehicle and slid off the right side into a sign post.

Testifying for the State, Trooper Millik told the court he arrived at the scene after the accident had occurred. Judging from the damaged post and vehicle, he believed the defendant had apparently been driving too fast for conditions.

The court found the defendant innocent of the charge.

James A. Olive, 1008 West State St., appeared before the court for ruling on his not guilty plea to a charge of shoplifting. After reviewing testimony by the State and the defendant, Judge Seator found him not guilty.

Students participating included Kimberly Jamison, fifth grade, in a cornet solo; Mila McCaherty, seventh grade, flute solo; Tim Driver, 7th grade, cornet solo; Peggy Martin, eighth grade, flute solo.

Presiding over the meeting was the president, John Finnell, and giving the invocation preceding the dinner was Rev. Bob Williams. Guests included Todd E. Clark, Milwaukee, Wis., who presented the club with a banner from his home Rotary club, and Miss Tamra DeVault, White Hall. Rev. Williams conducted the night. Mr. Chapman received social hour.

At the meeting, the men journeyed to the dining room where the center of attraction was a beautiful birthday cake with eight candles, baked and donated by Mrs. Sawyer. Mr. Chapman was given the seat of honor and the birthday song was sung to him. The men enjoyed refreshments during the social hour.

The Big Thicket: Snarl Of Emotion

By ROBERT HEARD
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Big Thicket of Texas is a snarl of human emotions as well as of vegetation.
Proposed as the site for a national park, it is crisscrossed with violent politics, greed, nature lovers and a subculture of rustics called "dog people" who will defend to their death their right to hunt here.
The thicket is in a three-million-acre basin in Southeast Texas where eight ecological systems come together in nature's giant greenhouse, or, depending on your point of view, in a wasteland good only for timber.
Orchids and cactus growing side by side captivate admirers of botanical gardens.
Standing water and mud, mud everywhere, suggest to the more practical-minded a search for the plug to drain this place.
Lumber companies own "claim," say the dog people—most of this land.
This is home to the dog people, so named because they hunt with dogs. It is a passion, a way of life.
The dog people hate the lumber companies and the private wardens they hire to keep dog people from hunting on lands leased to sportsmen's clubs in Houston and elsewhere.

Many of the dog people are squatters whose families have been in the Big Thicket a century or more. They say the lumber companies have no deed on record for most of the land the companies claim, and therefore the land is still in the public domain.
"That's just fantasy," says Jack Giberson, chief clerk of the Texas General Land Office. "We know what lands we have. We keep pretty close tabs on it."
One of the dog people, I. C. Eason, 47, with wrinkled, leathery face and all his upper front teeth missing, answers the question of where he hunts this way: "Anywhr I take a notion."
I. C.—everybody calls him I.C.—says his 400 acres are "one part of the country that ain't gonna change. The guns on my rack say it won't change."
The Big Thicket is not an area like the Grand Canyon, where agreement on what should be preserved is easy.
Lumbermen realize some kind of national park probably is inevitable, and they support a 35,000-acre "string of pearls" concept, with several units separated from each other.

Three bills calling for a 100,000-acre park are pending in Congress. No action has been taken on any of these bills, and conservationists say more trees are cut every day Congress delays in appropriating money to buy the land.
Ollie Crawford, of Jasper, chief spokesman for the lumber companies, says no cutting has taken place in the "string of pearls" since it was proposed a park site by the National Park Service in 1957.
The 100,000-acre park conservationists want is not a solid block of land.
It is a spiderweb laid over the three-million-acre, with the web running along water courses—the Neches River and nine of its western tributaries.
A bill by Rep. Bob Eckhardt of Houston specifies the areas to be preserved. This is the legislative conservationists support.
The Big Thicket river bottoms contain the only virgin stands of timber left in the thicket. It is more profitable for the lumber companies to work in flatlands than to take heavy logging equipment down steep inclines into the river bottoms.
Sixty inches of rainfall a year nourish 40 species of orchids and nine species of carnivorous plants in these bottoms.
Here you will find more than 200 species of trees and shrubs and 300 species of birds including perhaps the ivory-billed woodpecker, long thought to be extinct.
There are beaver, otter, deer and alligators, crawfish and fire ants, and mosquitoes that push their swords through clothing as easily as a man's foot sinks in Big Thicket mud.
A group toured the Big Thicket recently. Their guide was Geraldine Watson of Silsbee, who has lived in the thicket all her life and is acknowledged by botanists to know more about it than they do.
Geraldine—everybody calls her Geraldine—is a pleasant-looking mother of five, whose husband is a lab technician for an oil company.
Her serene expression changes to one of pain when she sees lumber company survey marks on large trees.
"It always upsets me," she said, "because the next time I go in there everything is on the ground."
One of the areas still uncut—and perhaps the most beautiful spot the touring group saw in four days—is the Petty Preserve on Village Creek.
Wooden steps descend into a world of cypress, magnolia and tupelo trees over 100 feet tall. Cypress knees—hard, knobby extensions from the roots—protrude above the shallow water like platoons of soldiers.
A thick layer of wet leaves hides the ground between stands of water. Purple mushrooms peek out from beneath ancient trees felled by lightning.
"No plant or animal is unique here. And many people want here now," she said.

One of the highlights of her tour is a eutrophic lake, a body of water that to the untrained eye looks like any other lake but to the scientist is a thing of wonder.
In a sense, it is a dying lake, cut off from sufficient movement of water to prevent the diminution of oxygen. This causes mineral and organic nutrients to multiply and thus promote plant life.
"This may not be interesting to the average person," Geraldine said of the lake, "but scientists just flip over this place."

The Care Of Elderly Sidewalks

By MR. FIX
Sidewalks are pretty durable but they don't last forever. A rough winter, heavy spring rains both take their toll. Cracks turn into large breaks and loose dirt underneath may wash away causing the sidewalk to settle or break or both.

The result is a sidewalk that is unsafe. Let someone trip over it and you may have a lawsuit on your hands.

If you want to avoid the heavy job of lifting and leveling, then repair cracks as soon as they appear. This will prevent them from getting bigger, will also keep water from getting underneath, which in turn loosens the base.

Enlarge the crack so that it is larger at the bottom than the top. Use a hammer and cold chisel. Clean out loose material. Wet thoroughly and fill with concrete patch.

Make the patch slightly higher, then level it. Keep wet for a few days until the patch is thoroughly hard.

If the rest of the sidewalk is smooth, use a wood float to make the patch smooth. If the sidewalk is rough, then use a metal trowel.

When a sidewalk has settled so that it is out of level with the rest of the walk, you will have to lift it and add material under it to raise the level of the base.

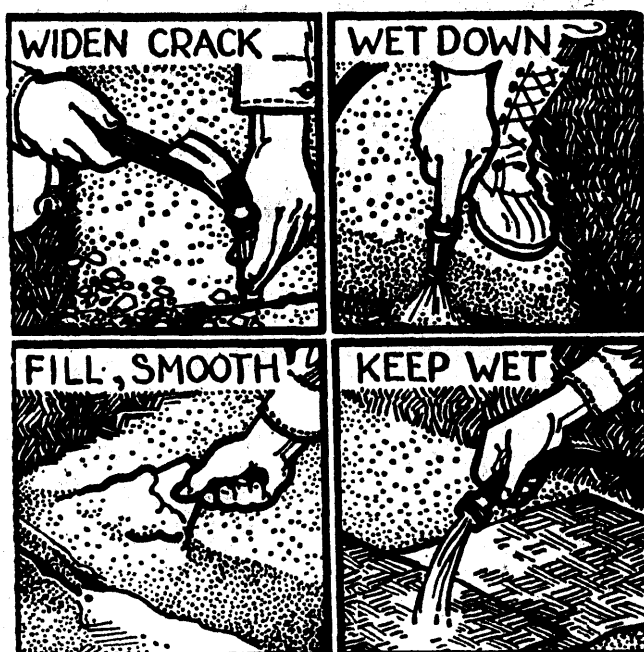

Don't try to lift more than one section. Several sections may be in one slab about 12 feet long. If the slab has not cracked at one of the cross lines already, you will have to crack it with a cold chisel.

Loosen the soil along the edge and remove from under the walk a strip of dirt the same depth as the sunken slab and a few inches wide. Use a crowbar to raise the edges all around. Don't lift, just free the edges.

Then lift one edge and work a block underneath it. Get it up about a foot or so and prop it with short lengths of two-by-fours.

Use gravel or cinders for fill. Shovel them under the slab and spread and level with a rake. Never reach under the slab. Break up chunks.

Repeat the process all around. For lifting, use a two-by-four with scrap lumber for leverage. If you've done a good job loosening with crowbar, you should have little trouble. It's smart however to get someone to help you with the job. And keep youngsters away from the site.

12. When Something Is Wrong

Gestures that communicate a condition of nervousness or anxiety require patience on our part because we must wait out the other person. In his own way and time, he may start telling us what we have already been aware of and are waiting to hear. A person who realizes something is wrong and attempts to prove it verbally by asking "What's wrong, etc.," can alienate the person who is uptight.

There are some gestures that form the clusters dealing with nervousness and-or anxiety. These include constant clearing of the throat to signal a person is uncertain and apprehensive. Men use this also with women and children as a signal to behave. It is an admonishing gesture. A "whew" sound usually indicates some task or obstacle has been overcome. The way a person whistles can indicate happiness or fright.

Buys hot-pants after losing 72 lbs.

There's nothing like reaching 30 and weighing 214 pounds. When she got off the scale, Dee McManus said to herself: "You're over the hill, kid." But deep inside, she didn't believe it. She knew she had to try to look her age—by losing weight. That's when she tried Ayds® Reducing Plan Candy. Dee wasn't born fat. Fact is, food didn't agree with her as an infant, so her mother had to force her to eat. Well she learned to like to eat, all right... too much. Incredibly, at the age of 20, she married a man who was as thin as she was fat. But that didn't help her weight problem... and neither did having children. After each child was born, she'd gain instead of lose—until she was the biggest parent at Parent Teachers meetings. But the day she heard a friend say, "You don't want to look like Dee, do you?", she decided she had to do something about her weight. She'd read about Ayds Reducing Plan Candy, so she bought a box. It contains vitamins and minerals, no drugs or artificial sweeteners. You take one or two Ayds as directed and it helps curb your appetite. Following the Ayds Plan, you eat less because you want less, so you lose weight. Now, after losing 72 pounds on the Ayds Plan, Dee McManus has a figure good enough for hot-pants. And she's going to be the first one in her home town of Butler, Pennsylvania, to wear them. Ayds comes in four great flavors: chewy vanilla, caramel, plain chocolate fudge, chocolate mint fudge, and butterscotch fudge, the latest Ayds flavor.

POPIEL PLANS TO STAY ON ICE

Poul Popiel isn't sure what his address will be come next hockey season, but he feels certain he will again be skating on the ice of professional hockey rinks. Although having what he termed a disappointing season, the summer resident of nearby Franklin is virtually assured of continuing his major league hockey career and is anxiously awaiting another three years or so on the ice before hanging up the skates.

"OVERALL, this year was not as good as last season," commented Popiel this week. "I was kind of disappointed. Last year I had 32 points, but dropped off to three or four points this year. However, I felt I had made contributions to the team that couldn't be counted only as points. Perhaps I just expected too much this season."

Popiel, who has played for the expansion Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League the past two seasons, explained, "I played mainly utility all the way around, and got a lot of playing time in before I got hurt, as much or more than many of the regulars. I played left wing, penalty killer on left wing, regular shift on left defense and penalty killer on left defense. Then I suffered a broken bone in my ankle against Minnesota in November and was out ten weeks."

"When I returned I saw considerable action, then was dispatched to the farm club at Rochester for three weeks to help out. We needed to win the last game to make the playoffs but finished in a tie."

Commenting on the year as a whole and the future with Vancouver, Popiel added, "I think they were satisfied with the year I had when they saw I wanted to help the organization. They gave me the guarantee of being protected in the draft in June. Each team is allowed to protect 19 players. I felt good about that. I feel like a part of the organization as compared to the other teams I have been with. It was two years with them, but this will be my third year with Vancouver if I return. It means something, that even though they are going with youth quite a bit to protect me for the draft. I think you have to have a happy medium with youth and experience."

EVEN THOUGH the Canucks finished in last place in their league, the franchise appears to be in very solid standing. The Vancouver stadium was packed for each home game and the Canucks even played before full arenas for ten exhibition games, according to Popiel. As for their immediate future on the ice, Popiel feels, "I think Vancouver has revamped everything. They moved one coach out and they are hoping to change the attitude of the club, which they feel is one of the key factors. I feel they have the potential, but I don't feel they can move four or five notches up the ladder in one year. They can move closer to a playoff position than they did this year."

While Popiel feels he is assured of playing at Vancouver next season if he so chooses, here enters a possible change in plans. Popiel explains, "The WHA (the newly-formed World Hockey Association) has contacted me. I was a late draft choice by Houston and have negotiated with them the last three or four weeks. They have gone after five or six Vancouver players, but none of them have signed yet as far as I know. I am definitely interested. I would want a three-year guarantee and I would want it put in escrow for me. If the league folded I would still get paid. I will just have to wait and see what they offer."

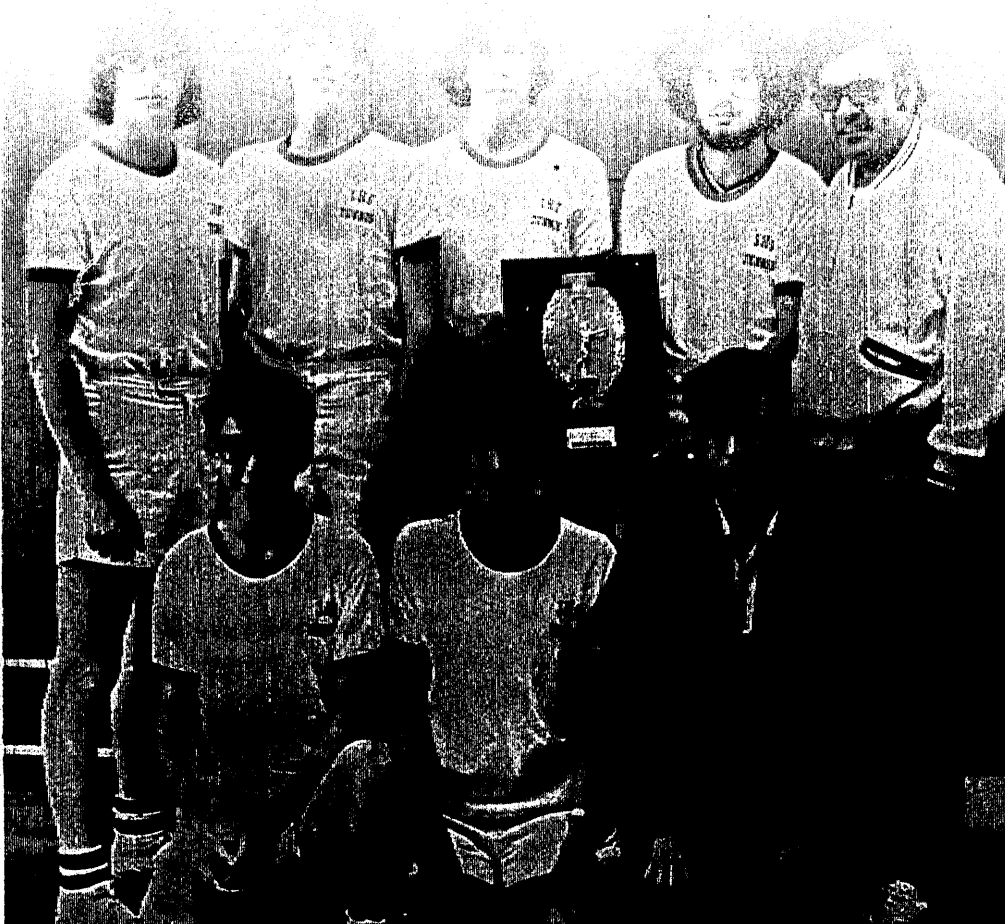

ON THE SUBJECT of the WHA, which has been trying to lure the NHL stars away, Popiel feels, "I think that seven or eight clubs in the WHA have a good chance of surviving. The cost of the franchises are considerably less than the $6 charged by the NHL. It doesn't cost anything to draft these players from the NHL, they are just out the expenses for the franchise and the players salaries. I don't think they will put the same price tag on these new franchises. I feel that someday the two leagues may merge."

Quite expectedly, the NHL isn't too fond of the latecomers picking off their established stars. "They (the NHL) made it known that the first guy to jump would have a lawsuit brought against him. Wayne Connolly jumped to Minnesota for quite a contract, and I think he is under the gun now. The NHL feels that it isn't right for an expansion club, watered down like it is, to take the older players that have three or four years left."

On another subject, Popiel commented on the attempt by NHL Commissioner Clarence Campbell to cut down on the violence this past year. "They cut down in one area of fighting. In the past, as soon as a fight started, there seemed to be a third party in there helping. Now, the third party is immediately given a game conduct penalty and is out for the rest of the game. It seemed to cut down on roughhousing. But, I think it would cut down on the interest if all the violence is taken out of the game. I think these men are big enough to take care of it man-to-man."

HERE 'N' THERE: Former Jacksonville High School standout Abe Brown may try his athletic talents in the Big Ten next year. Brown, now attending Lincoln Land Junior College in Springfield after short stints at Eastern Illinois University and Illinois College, reports Purdue has indicated the Boilermakers offer a full scholarship ride for football and track next year. "I have had a lot of offers for track, but I want to play football again," commented Brown this week. "If Purdue does offer the full ride, I will definitely consider going there." Brown says he would have two full years of eligibility remaining. JACKSONVILLE HIGH School has finally filled its first

Crimsons Share District Title

SPRINGFIELD — Bill Vanter and Dan Kant made it to the top of their doubles bracket to highlight the effort of Jacksonville High as the Crimsons shared top team honors with Southeast in the Springfield District tennis tournament Saturday.

Jacksonville and Southeast both compiled nine points to tie for first place in the team standings. It marked the third year in a row that JHS had finished first in the district. Quincy Senior finished second with eight points, followed by Quincy Catholic Boys with six, Lincoln with four, Lanphier two and Springfield High zero.

Vanter and Kant drew a bye in their first round, and moved to face Mike Barnes and Paul Polechla of Southeast in the second round. They downed Barnes and Polechla 3-6, 6-2, 6-2 to advance to the finals. There they met and defeated Pat and Joe Costigan of Quincy Catholic Boys 6-1, 6-2 for the championship.

Bob Fernandez picked up two points for JHS in singles play as he opened with a 6-1, 6-0 count over Jeff Chew of Lanphier. He next faced and downed Bob Knepler of QCB 6-4, 6-3 to gain the finals where he was eliminated by champion Bruce Franks, 6-2, 6-2.

Don Armstrong and Jim Lukeman added to the Crimsons total as they worked their way to the finals in the other doubles bracket. They defeated Sam Rinneua and Jeff Ropp of CBQ in the first round, 6-1, 6-0 to move to the semi-finals against John Harris and Keith Knockle of Lincoln, whom they eliminated 6-0, 7-5. Greg Mason and Dave Shaller of Quincy then met Armstrong and Lukeman in the finals and outlasted them 6-4, 6-3 to give them second place.

Bill Brockhouse of JHS lost his first round match to Bill Frank of Southeast 6-3, 1-6, 8-6, with Franks advancing on to the finals.

CUBS RAINED OUT

ATLANTA (AP) — Saturday night's National League baseball game between the Chicago Cubs and the Atlanta Braves was postponed because of rain. The Braves said it would be rescheduled at a later date.

Schillerstrom Lets IC Split Finale

Bob Schillerstrom's three-hit shutout in the first game allowed Illinois College to gain a non-conference split with Rose-Hulman of Terre Haute, Ind., on the Blueboy diamond Saturday afternoon.

Schillerstrom's hurling guided IC to a 2-0 count in the opener, but a throwing miscue opened the gates for the only runs in the nightcap as Rose notched a 2-0 margin.

IC, which finished the year at 6-11, scored the only run Schillerstrom needed in the first inning as Paul Burton, Don Petefish and Ken Belden slapped singles. An insurance tally crossed in the third on a single by Burton and walks to Rich Orr, Larry Lasody and Stan Messmore.

Schillerstrom fanned five and allowed three walks in going the distance.

An infield throwing error with one out in the top of the first inning of the finale let both Rose runs score. Rose's Zapp gave up six hits, fanning four and allowing one walk, pitching out of a bases loaded jam in the sixth and a first-and-third situation in the seventh. Losing hurler Don Steers allowed only two singles, fanning six and walking a pair.

Badgers Capture 4th Dual Meet

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin's track team defeated Northwestern 97-57 Saturday in its first home appearance of the season. It was the Badgers' fourth dual meet victory without a loss.

Marcel Mangual and Patrick Onyango were double winners for the Badgers, who won 10 of 18 events. Mangual won the shotput with a heave of 50-feet-6 and the discus, 143 feet.

Onyango won the long jump, 23-4, and the triple jump, 49-2.

Pat Matzdorf, world record holder in the high jump, did not compete because of a continuing back ailment.

Dell Bethel, a native of Minneapolis, is the new baseball coach at City College of New York.

Perez, Reds Bomb Cardinals By 11-2

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds jumped on St. Louis southpaw Lance Clemmons for three runs in the first inning, then poured across five more in the third—three on Tony Perez' home run—and battered the Cardinals 11-2 Saturday night.

Clemmons, 0-1, the first left-hander to start against the Reds in 18 games, was making his National League starting debut. Perez' fourth homer of the year knocked him out of the game.

The first four Cincinnati batters in the game reached base safely as Pete Rose led off with a single, moved to second on a walk to Joe Morgan and scored on Bobby Tolan's single. Morgan came home on a wild pitch and Tolan scored on George Foster's single. Cincinnati broke the game open in the third when the first six batters reached base. Morgan walked for the second time and Tolan was hit by Clemmons. Both scored on Perez' wrongfield home run to right center.

The Reds added two more runs off Tony Cloninger in the third. They scored twice in the seventh on an RBI-double by Tolan, who later came in on Foster's grounder, and once in the eighth on a pair of wild pitches by Dennis Higgins.

St. Louis 001 000 100—2 5-0. Cincinnati 305 000 211—11 11-2. Clemmons, Cloninger (3), Higgins (8) and Simpson, McNertney (7); Simpson, Borbon (7) and Bench, Plummer (9). W—Simpson, 1-0. L—Clemmons, 0-1. HR—Cincinnati, Perez (4).

Haley, Russell Lead JHS To 2nd

SPRINGFIELD — Only one point separated the top three teams, with Jacksonville High School having two of the three double winners in the meet, in a tight Capitol Conference track meet Saturday.

Host Springfield Southeast and Decatur MacArthur tied for team honors with 49 points, only one point in front of Jacksonville High. Following were Normal 32, Centennial and Eisenhower 18, Griffin 15 and Lanphier 11. Since the meet was started in 1964, MacArthur has won four times and Southeast and JHS twice each, with this year's deadlock.

Seven new records were established in the meet, including two by Jacksonville's outstanding hurdler George Haley.

Haley turned a :14.5 in the low hurdles to better his own mark of :14.9, and breezed over the lows in :19.9, bettering the previous best of :21.0 set by JHS' Rod Jackson in 1968.

Teammate Gary Russell broke the two-mile mark of 9:47.

Lolich, Freehan Guide Detroit To 3-1 Victory

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mike Lolich became the major league's first six-game winner with a five-hitter, and Bill Freehan drove in all the runs with a single and two-run homer as the Detroit Tigers beat the Kansas City Royals 3-1 Saturday.

Dick Drago, 2-2, who has never defeated the Tigers, was the loser, allowing eight hits before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

The Tigers scored in the first on Al Kaline's two-out double and Freehan's single. In the third, Kaline walked with one out, and Freehan batted his second homer over the fence in left.

Lolich, who struck out nine and walked three, lost his shut-out in the fourth after retiring the first nine Royals. Fred Patek tripled and scored on Cookie Rojas' pop-fly single. Lolich has lost one game.

Chicago Cruises Past Baltimore By 9-3 Count

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox pounced on Baltimore's Pat Dobson for five runs in the third inning, three of them on Bill Melton's home run, and cruised to a 9-3 victory over the Orioles Saturday night.

Dobson was breezing along until Pat Kelly got the White Sox first hit of the game, a two-out single that triggered the decisive outburst.

Mike Andrews drew a walk and Carlos May beat out an infield single to load the bases before Dick Allen lined a two-run single to left and Melton followed with his second homer of the year, a blast into the upper left-field stands.

Stan Bahnsen, meanwhile, held the Orioles hitless until Merv Rettenmund's leadoff double in the fourth, then yielded a sixth-inning single to Boog Powell before Baltimore broke through for two runs in the seventh on Paul Blair's single. Dave Johnson's triple and Mark Belanger's sacrifice fly.

When Powell drove his third home run of the season with two out in the eighth, Steve Kealey took over for Bahnsen, 3-4, to preserve the victory.

The White Sox capped their scoring with four runs in the eighth on singles by Andrews, May, Allen, Jay Johnstone, Rettenmund's error in right and Ed Herrmann's sacrifice fly.

Capra, McGraw Extend Marichal Loss Skein, 1-0

NEW YORK (AP) — Rookie Buzz Capra and Tug McGraw combined for a three-hitter and Capra singled home the only run in the second inning as the New York Mets edged the San Francisco Giants 1-0 Saturday and extended Juan Marichal's losing streak to six games.

Cleon Jones singled to start the Mets' second and, with two out, Duffy Dyer outlegged a slow roller down the third base line. Capra then lined a single over short, scoring Jones.

Capra's biggest jam came in the third when one-out singles by Marichal and Chris Speier put runners on first and third. But Capra flied Tito Fuentes' comebacker and started an inning-ending double play. The Giants' only other hit was a one-out double by Garry Maddox in the fifth.

Southern Keeps Illinois Track Championship

NORMAL, Ill. (AP) — Southern Illinois University successfully defended its Illinois Intercollegiate track and field championship Saturday, amassing 193 points to 166 by runner-up University of Illinois.

Trailing among 13 teams that scored were Eastern Illinois with 80.5, Illinois State 64 and Northern Illinois with 60.

SIU and the Illini dominated the 4th annual meet, Southern winning eight firsts of 20 events and Illinois capturing six.

Five meet records were set: Rich Bilder of Northern tossed the shot 59-4, breaking Illini Jeff McLellan's 1969 mark of 58-0.

Ivory Crockett of Southern ran the 200 yard sprint in :20.3, breaking the :21.2 mark he set last year. Crockett tied his :09.3 mark in winning the 100-yard dash but it was disallowed because of a trailing wind.

Also breaking its own record was the SIU 440 relay team of Ed Sutton, Terry Erickson and Stan Patterson and Crockett. The new mark is :40.6, the old was :41.

Ron Phillips of Illinois ran the 880 in 1:50.1, lapping one-tenth of a second off the record.

Another SIU star, Mike Bernard, did 6-11 in the high jump to break Illini's Brad Richardson's 6-10 1/2 mark set in 1969.

Other events, their winners and marks:

Javelin — Mike Batina, NIU, 208-2.

Discus — Larry Dykstra, Illinois, 188.

Pole Vault — Randy Ullom, SIU, 15-6.

Triple Jump — Jim Harris, SIU, 50-4 1/2.

Hammer Throw — Steve Borchert, Illinois State, 150-11.

Six mile run — Rick Gross, Illinois, 30:03.7.

Three mile run — Dave Hill, SIU, 13:59.5.

3,000 meter steeple chase — Larry Cobb, Illinois, 9:10.2.

Five mile — Lee LaBadie, Illinois, 4:05.5.

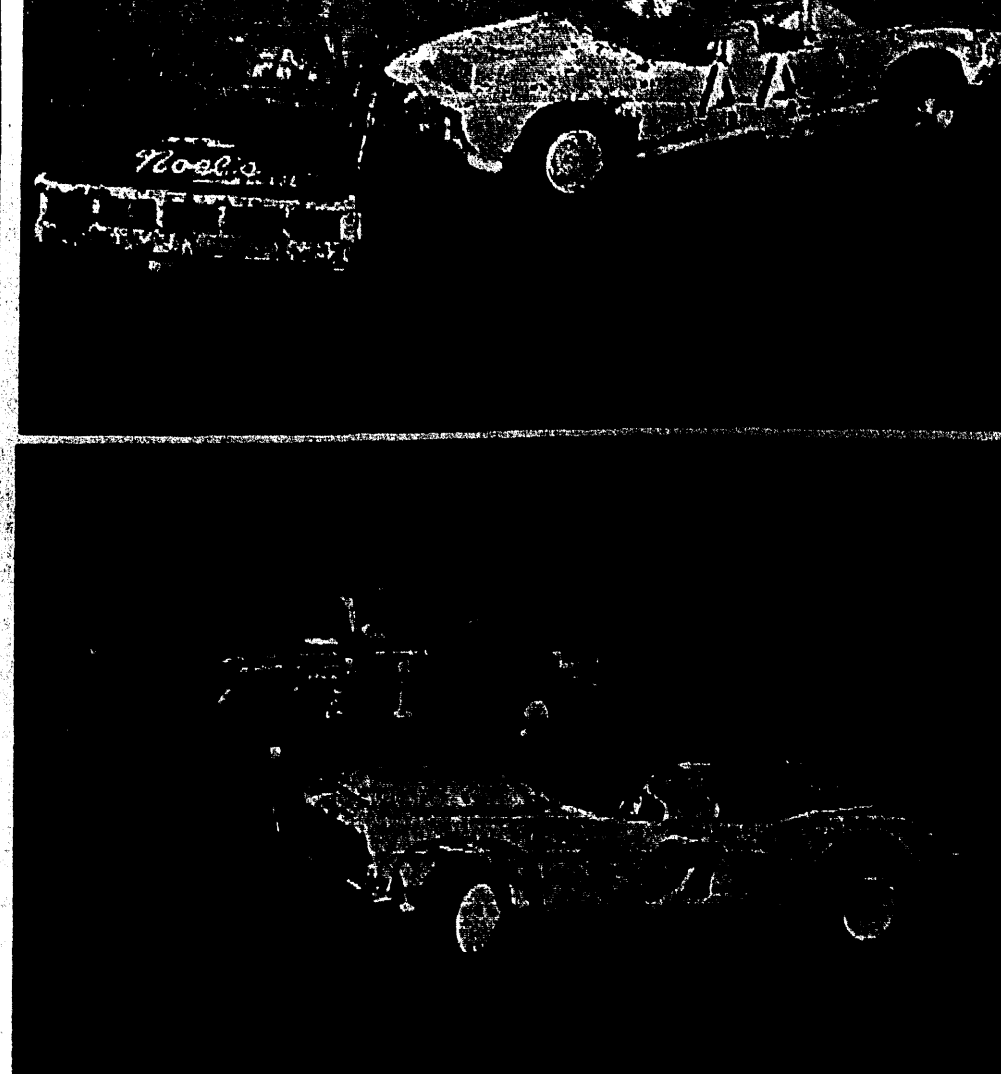

120 high hurdles — Adeola Aboye-Cole, Illinois State, 1:17.

Keller Gives OS Third In State

PEKIN — Chris Keller scored all 12 points to allow Our Saviours grade school to finish third in the team standings in the Grade School State Track Meet Saturday afternoon.

Joliet Washington took first place with 17 points, followed by Charleston with 12 1/2 and Our Saviours with 12. Hopkin Park was fourth with 11 points.

Keller took first in the shot put with a toss of 51'7 1/2" to grab six points, and added a first place finish in the discus with a heave of 142'2 1/2".

In Class B action, Joe Ineich of Our Saviours ran his best time of :62.5 in the 440 yard run to take seventh place.

Joliet Washington also won the Class B team title with 14 points, followed by Rantoul, Urbana and Myna Thompson with 8 1/2.

Carrollton swept the meet with an 82 1/2 team total, followed by Pittsfield with 33, North Greenfield 30, Pleasant Hill and Winchester 26, Southwestern 23, Greenfield 22 and Calhoun two.

Collin Meyer of Southwestern captured both hurdle events while Ron Ghrist of Pittsfield took first in the shot put and discus.

New records were set in the two mile run, high hurdles, 880 relay, low hurdles and the existing 220 mark of :23 was equalled.

Rain Halts Time Tries At Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A.J. Foyt Jr., shooting for a record fourth victory in the 500-mile Indianapolis Motor Speedway race, apparently blew an engine Saturday in the only run of the rain-marred opening time trials session.

The five-time national champion started the 10-mile qualifying run in the last few minutes of the session but blew an engine on the first lap.

A mixture of rain, oil and fuel scrubbed most of the scheduled opening session of time trials.

After an overnight rain, the cars couldn't get onto the track until 11 a.m. (EST) opening.

They ran at relatively slow speed until the 2 1/2 miles of asphalt was dry. Then most of the remaining 90 minutes was consumed by cleaning up after cars that sprayed fuel and oil on the track while practicing.

The coveted pole position for the race—the No. 1 starting spot—remains open for the second scheduled qualifying session from noon to 6 p.m. (EST) Sunday.

The 10-mile record of 179.686 m.p.h., set last year by Peter Revson, is expected to be broken repeatedly when the track is finally in good running condition.

Police estimated a crowd of 175,000 at the old track Saturday in spite of the rain which fell most of the day.

Before Foyt made his interrupted run at one of the 33 starting positions, Denny Zimmerman and Roger McCluskey went on the track but did not take the green flag for official trials.

No official qualifying attempts are charged against a driver unless he signals for a green flag with his arm at the end of his practice laps. Three tries are permitted provided the car does not go the full 10 miles on the first two attempts.

Any completed run is final.

Illinois Captures
Double Shutouts
Over Purdue

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Pitchers Dave Engle and Gary Anderson hurled a pair of shutouts Saturday to lead Illinois to 2-0 and 3-0 victories over Purdue in a Big Ten baseball doubleheader.

Engle stopped the Boll-weavers on six hits and fanned 10 in the opener which the Illini won in the bottom of the seventh on Dave Wickham's two-run homer with two out.

Anderson limited Purdue to four hits in the nightcap and fanned five.

The only run Illinois needed came in the first inning without the benefit of a hit. Bob Pollack was hit by a pitch, took second on a passed ball, third on a wild pitch and scored on Jim Rucks' sacrifice fly.

Six of Wake Forest's 11 football games will be played at home in Winston-Salem, N.C., next season.

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Sophomore fullback Jim Trimble did the heavy work and scored one touchdown Saturday to lead the Purple to a 21-7 victory over the Whites in Northwestern's annual spring football game.

Trimble, the son of former Philadelphia Eagle football coach Jim Trimble, gained 94 yards on 22 carries and scored in the third period on a three-yard run.

ELMHURST — Ron Summers and Dave DeShasier finished one-two in the shot put, with Summers bettering his own Illinois College mark, in the 38th Annual Elmhurst Invitational track meet Saturday.

Summers heaved the shot 52'2" for first place with DeShasier following with a toss of 48'5". Summers threw the shot over fifty feet in four out of five times in the event.

DeShasier also added to the IC scoring with a fourth in the discus at a distance of 135'8". Jack Messmore made it 15 points for Blueboys as he went 13' even in the pole vault for third place honors.

football date for next season. JHS Athletic Director Bob Kraushaar reports that a verbal agreement has been reached for Chicago Bowen to play in Jacksonville on the opening date of the 1972 season, with a monetary guarantee involved to the Chicago club. Bowen has an enrollment of close to 4,000, and will have an all new coaching staff next year. The game gives the Crimsons four home dates and five on the road.

DAVE MYERS, an important man behind the scenes in MacMurray athletics the past four years, reported his final activity to this department Friday. Myers, who served four years as trainer for Clan athletic teams, was always prompt and factual with phone reports of Mac contests to this department, a most helpful and appreciated effort in reporting such events.

THE 93-MEET track meet streak of Rushville that was broken by Beardstown this week was certainly one of the most impressive records in the department in this area in some time. Another such noteworthy streak is Jacksonville High School's home meet card since Al Rosenberger took over the Crimson track reins in 1958. Since then the Crimsons have won 130 of 134 home meets; from dual gatherings up to multiple-team events, with several good streaks in the process.

Set Game Marks

ST. PAUL—MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Mike Ferraro's run-scoring single with two out in the 22nd inning gave the Milwaukee Brewers a 4-3 victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday in the completion of a game suspended Friday night after 21 innings.

The regularly scheduled game then went 15 innings, setting an American League record for most innings in two consecutive overtime games by the same teams, with the Twins winning 5-4 on Eric Soderholm's two-out, two-run homer after Ferraro put the Brewers in front in the top of the 15th with his first major-league home run.

The 37 innings—in less than 24 hours—wiped out the old AL mark of 36 set by the Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox on July 12-13, 1951. The major-league mark for the most innings in two consecutive games by the same teams is 40 by the Boston Braves and Chicago Cubs on May 14 and 17, 1927.

Although the final inning of Friday night's game was played Saturday afternoon, the 22 innings matched the longest night game in American League history and was only two short of the major-league night mark. The longest game ever played was 26 innings, a 1-1 tie between the Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Braves on May 1, 1920.

Both teams sent their regularly scheduled starters to the mound in the suspended game, Bert Blyleven for Minnesota and Jim Lonborg for Milwaukee.

Ron Theobald led off for the Brewers with a bouncing single up the middle and Dave May sacrificed. After Bob Heise popped out, George Scott was purposely passed, but Ferraro slashed his hit off Carew's glove into center field as Theobald raced home.

The Brewers had tied the game 3-3 in the seventh inning Friday night on Tommy Reynolds' pinch two-run single off Dave LaRoche after starter Dick Woodson loaded the bases.

The Twins had broken a 1-1 deadlock in the fifth off starter Bill Parsons on Carew's run-scoring single and a bases-loaded walk to Bobby Darwin.

After the seventh—relievers Earl Stephenson, Ken Sanders, Frank Linzy and Jim Colborn for Milwaukee, and LaRoche, Wayne Granger, Ray Corbin, Bob Gebhard, and Tom Norton for Minnesota—matched scoreless innings until Blyleven and Lonborg took over in the 22nd.

Soderholm broke up the regularly scheduled contest with his first home run of the season after Jim Nettles drew a two-out walk from reliever Jim Slaton.

Milwaukee tied the game in the eighth as pinch-hitter Dave May opened with an infield single, took second on a sacrifice, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on Bob Heise's grounder. Third baseman Soderholm had a chance for May at the plate, but bobbled the ball.

George Scott's two-run homer gave Milwaukee a 2-0 first-inning lead. The Twins tied it in their half as Rod Carew's single scored Cesar Tovar from second and Rich Reese hit into a double play on which Danny Thompson scored from third.

Minnesota went ahead 3-2 in the second on Tovar's single after Soderholm had singled and moved to second on a fielder's choice.

OAKLAND (AP) — Reggie Smith's two-run homer put Boston ahead in a three-run fifth inning, and John Kennedy, who drove in five runs, delivered a three-run shot in the seventh to pace the Boston Red Sox to a 9-6 victory Saturday over the Oakland A's.

It marked the first time this season the Red Sox have won three in a row and the first time the A's have dropped that many in succession.

The A's held a 4-3 lead on Reggie Jackson's three-run homer in the first inning and Dave Duncan's RBI single in the third when the Red Sox went to work on Kent Holtzman in the fifth.

Luis Aparicio singled and Smith cracked his second home run of the season for a 5-4 Boston lead. Duane Josephson then doubled and eventually scored on a sacrifice fly by Kennedy.

The Red Sox had scored twice in the first on RBI singles by Josephson and Kennedy and once in the fourth on singles by Kennedy, Doug Griffin and pinch-hitter Rico Petrocelli.

In the seventh, with Joe Horlen pitching for the A's, Smith singled, Josephson walked and Kennedy unloaded his first home run of the season and his third hit of the game.

Jackson hit his second homer of the game in the ninth with the bases empty.

Johnson Trying To Alter Image

CLEVELAND (AP) — Alex Johnson is known as one of baseball's bad boys. But the American League batting champion is trying to change that this season for the Cleveland Indians.

He was suspended by the California Angels last June after a series of run-ins with management, writers and teammates. He had been benched by Angels' Manager Lefty Phillips for lack of hustle before the suspension and charged that teammate Chico Ruiz threatened his life with a gun.

He came to the Indians in an off-season trade involving Vada Pinson and was a property that few teams except the lowly Indians wanted to gamble with.

Johnson, who blamed some of his problems of last season on writers for inaccurate accounts, still is shy of the press. Reporters who travel with the team say Johnson answers yes-and-no questions but avoids the others.

But that apparently is one of the few similarities between the Johnson of 1971 and the Johnson of 1972.

When the Indians were off Thursday, Johnson was the one regular who, strictly on his own, joined reserve players in workouts at Municipal Stadium.

"He's the other silent leader," Manager Ken Aspromonte said proudly of Johnson. He said veteran pitcher Gaylord Perry, obtained in the off-season from San Francisco, was the other quiet leader of his young squad that is fighting for the lead in the American League's East Division.

"Everybody here was watching him to see if he was going to have the same problems as before," Aspromonte said, adding that Johnson has turned in a "good effort" that has earned the admiration of teammates.

"That's the beautiful part about it," said Aspromonte. "He's getting along with everyone on my ball club."

And, in what seems as completely out of character with the Johnson pictured in previous years, Aspromonte adds, "He's happy. He's laughing."

Johnson missed 3½ months of the 1971 season due to the suspension and hit only .260 in 65 games early in the season. He had only two home runs and 21 runs batted in.

Johnson, who has been with five clubs in eight years, sharpened his batting by playing winter ball in Puerto Rico and has been hitting like the man who won the AL batting crown in 1970 with a .329 average with 14 homers and 86 RBI.

After 19 games this year, Johnson had a .307 average with three homers and 12 runs batted in. He had an 11-game hitting streak during that period.

The Indians traded for a hitter and apparently have received an extra bonus in his effect on younger players.

"The players are awed by his talent," Aspromonte said. "Talent is leadership, not talk or back-slapping."

Fans Will Cheer For Goliath Wilt

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Wilt Chamberlain is wrong.

He says "let's face it, nobody likes Goliath," and he firmly believes that, too, because at 7 foot 2 it's rather easy for him to identify with the legendary giant out of the Old Testament who went in an odds-on choice against David and came out with nothing left.

Chamberlain has this feeling that his height alienates people, makes them resent him.

This could be purely in his mind. There are others as big as he is in basketball and they don't seem to feel the way he does. Besides, I've never seen people show any resentment toward the tall man in the circus. If anything, they seem to feel for him.

The only reason this comes up now is because of some of the sentiments expressed since the Los Angeles Lakers beat the New York Knicks for the NBA championship Sunday.

Most Sentiments Pro-Wilt

Most of these sentiments are heavily pro-Chamberlain. And all of them aren't necessarily concerned with his showing on the court.

As the performer designated MVP in the playoffs, the bearded Chamberlain will receive a new car from Sports Illustrated but I think he has won far more than that.

He has won the people.

They don't seem to feel Goliath is such a bad guy at all. That's a little more important, the way I see it, than winning a car.

Winning the title did wonders for Jerry West, a fellow who never had really experienced anything like that before. It did even more for Wilt Chamberlain, who had.

Jerry West is the same to the Los Angeles Lakers as Brooks Robinson is to the Baltimore Orioles. The rest of the guys on the ball club are crazy about him.

But if you ask most of them whom they feel was primarily responsible for bringing the Los Angeles Lakers their first world championship they pretty much agree it was one man—Wilt Chamberlain.

"Finest Guard"

"I think Jerry West is the finest guard I've ever played with, especially as far as 'quarterbacking' a club is concerned," says Happy Hairston. "But I think when we've needed performances outside the so-called glamor areas, like blocking shots, intimidating players driving down the lane and things like that, it was always Wilt who did it for us. My feeling is simply this: In the NBA you can only go as far as your big man takes you. Everybody knows who our big man is. He took us all the way, and he did it by completely and totally sacrificing himself."

Sacrificing himself how?

"Offensively," answers Happy Hairston.

"Once again he led the league in rebounds," he elaborates. "People take a thing like that for granted. It's a phenomenal feat. I don't care what anyone says, Wilt isn't only our captain, he's the leader of our club in every sense of the word."

Many Adjustments

Chamberlain has been obliged to make many adjustments the past few years. Alex Hannum wanted him to play one way, Bill Van Breda Kolff another, Joe Mullaney another and Bill Sharman still another. All those adjustments took something out of him. He says so.

"I don't know any other athlete, you know, major athlete, who has been forced to change so much and then get ridiculed for doing it," Chamberlain says. "I am forced to change this, change that, change this. You know, if you're a scorer and you're asked not to score, then you're asked to score, then not to score again, it gets a little ridiculous. I know changes like that are necessary sometimes, but the point is it doesn't make it any easier."

That's absolutely true. Maybe others realize that too besides Wilt Chamberlain. Maybe that's why they don't feel Goliath is such a bad guy anymore.

JERSEYVILLE WINS FROSH TRIANGULAR

Jerseyville Illini captured team honors Saturday morning in a freshman track meet on the Jacksonsville High School cinders. Illini totaled 74.3 points to 44.6 by Jonathan Turner and 37 by Armstrong Junior High.

Pickett won the 100 and 220 to lead the way, as Illini captured 11 firsts in the meet with a three-way tie in the pole vault.

Fearson was first in the 180 hurdles and Vanier first in the high jump for Armstrong, while Turner got seconds from Bettis in the 100, Mullen in the 440, Hawks in the mile, Bettis in the low hurdles, Garner in the discus and in the 880 and mile relays. Armstrong seconds were Foote in the 220, Brown in the 880, Fearson in the high hurdles, Taylor in the shot put, Harney in the high jump and Taylor in the long jump.

RAIN CANCELS GOPHERS, BADGERS

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Rain cancelled Saturday's scheduled doubleheader between Minnesota and Wisconsin, officially eliminating the Gophers from the Big Ten baseball race.

The Gophers closed out the season with a 9-5 season.

NFL Oldtimers Angry At Players

DETROIT (AP) — Some of the most illustrious names in the annals of professional football are lining up to form a flying wedge aimed squarely at the National Football League Players Association.

Most football fans affectionately refer to these players as NFL "oldtimers." They include familiar names such as Leon Hart, Doak Walker, Bill Dudley and Whizzer White. They also include such ex-heroes as Slingin' Sammy Baugh and Don Hutson.

Officially, however, they represent the National Football League Alumni Association (NFLAA).

The NFLAA represents every player who hung up his cleats prior to 1959—about 1,200 players. As a group, they are more than a little put out by the actions of the current NFL Players Association.

The bad feelings are based on the Players Association's reluctance to cut the old timers in on their pension program. No player who retired prior to 1959 is eligible for a pension.

Feelings were strained even further this past week when Ed Garvey, president and executive secretary of the Players Association, testified before the federal Pay Board that professional sports should be allowed to remain exempt from board control.

Hart, the former Notre Dame All-American and Detroit Lion star, said Saturday he believes the current NFL players are making enough money.

Speaking on behalf of the NFLAA, Hart said: "We recommend the Pay Board reject the requested exemption."

The NFLAA strongly feels that, if the demands of the current crop of pro griders are accepted, the "golden goose" will have laid its last egg, according to Hart.

"We're not only concerned for the ex-players," said John Panelli, a fullback who played with the old Chicago Cardinals. "We're concerned for the fans too."

Panelli said the rising price of tickets is going to drive the fans away from professional sports. "This thing has got to be put back in perspective. We've got to get our priorities in line and help to stabilize the economy," Panelli said.

Hart, 42, now a heavy duty fleet manager, will receive no pension from the NFL. Nor will Panelli, now the president of the construction equipment company.

"It was the people prior to 1959 who actually formed the present Players Association," said Hart. "Charter membership was taken out in 1957. But there was no money back then. When money became available in 1967, the association was incorporated. But, too late, we learned that we could not belong to the association we formed."

"Instead of going back and picking up a few years as money became available," Hart said, "the current players chose unilaterally to lower their pension age from age 65 to 55."

TEAM TO ORGANIZE

The Elks Club Slow Pitch Softball team of the YMCA Service Club League will hold an organizational meeting Tuesday evening. All interested players are asked to meet at the Elks Club at 6 p.m. Tuesday, with equipment.

Former catcher John Roseboro will be a bullpen coach with the California Angels this season.

For NBA All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerry West of the Los Angeles Lakers reaped another reward from the National Basketball Association season Saturday when he was named to the All-Star team. But teammate Wilt Chamberlain was relegated to a second-term berth.

West, who joined Chamberlain to lead the Lakers to the NBA championship in a final playoff victory over the New York Knicks, was the leading vote-getter for the first team. Chamberlain, however, was beaten out of a first team spot by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Milwaukee.

Rounding out the first team were John Havlicek of Boston and Spencer Haywood of Seattle at the forward spots and Walt Frazier of New York at guard with West.

With Chamberlain on the second team were Bob Love of Chicago and Billy Cunningham of Philadelphia at the forwards and Nate Archibald of Cincinnati and Archie Clark of Baltimore at the guards.

Iowa Loop Has Approval For Shooting Clock

STORM LAKE, Iowa (UPI)—The commissioner of the Iowa Conference Friday night told the league's faculty representatives that the conference has tentative approval to use a 30-second clock in basketball games next season.

Commissioner Wayne Lichty of Waterloo said the tentative approval came from the research subcommittee of the National Basketball Rules Committee. Lichty said if the conference plan on how the rule

Heard Pulls Out To 3 Stroke Lead

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Easy-going Jerry Heard, gunning for his second victory of the year, shot a three-under-par 67 Saturday and pulled away to a three-stroke lead in the third round of the $125,000 Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament.

Heard, 25, had a 54-hole score of 202—eight-under par on the Colonial Country Club course and the best ever for three rounds in this old tournament.

Veteran Phil Rodgers and Fred Marti were three strokes back at 205. Rodgers had a 68 despite a bogey on the final hole, and Marti clipped one stroke off par with a 69 in the warm, sunny weather.

Dave Stockton, a former PGA champion who shared first place after 36 holes, slipped to a 71 and was alone in fourth at 206.

Julius Boros, 51, a former United States Open champion, bolted out of the pack with a brilliant 65, the best round of the day, and moved into position at 207, five strokes back.

Lee Trevino, one of the few of the stars competing in this prestigious event, finally broke par with a 69 but remained far back in the field at 213—11 shots behind the leader.

Heard, back in action after a two-week rest, is in only his fourth year on the tour. He broke through with a victory in the American Golf Classic on the tough Firestone Course last year, won more than $100,000 and this season has a title in the Citrus Open and some $31,000 in winnings.

"I don't think I'm playing quite as sharp as I did at Firestone," the casual, relaxed young man from Visalia, Calif., said. "But my short game is real good, and I'm not throwing any shots away."

Heard's total—on rounds of 69, 66, 67—broke the old tournament record of 203 for 54 holes.

Tied with Stockton after Friday's second round, Heard took the lead when he chipped up to six feet and made the putt for a birdie four on the first hole.

He rolled in a 10-foot birdie putt on the third hole, then bogeyed the fourth from a bunker. He got the stroke back on the next one, however, halting out from a sand trap about thirty feet from the flag.

Playing with machine precision, he hit every fairway, and every green and parred the next 10 holes.

He stretched out to a two-stroke lead over the challenging Rodgers when he hit a beautiful four-iron shot to within a couple of feet of the flag on the 200-yard, par-three 16th. Heard was bunkered again on the 17th and hit the flagstick with his explosion shot for an easy par.

He lipped out a 10-foot birdie putt on the final hole after Rodgers had bogeyed it from behind a tree on the right.

Jim Leighton is in his 10th year as Wake Forest tennis coach.

Routt, Winchester Advance To Finals

WINCHESTER — Routt edged North Greene 6-3 in the opener and Winchester bombed Calhoun 12-1 in the second game before the rains came to cancel the Routt-Winchester contest after two and a half innings in the Winchester Tournament Friday.

The Rockets came from behind to take the lead for good in the third inning in their three run victory over the Spartans. North Greene scored twice in the first and once in the top of the third to take a 3-1 count into the bottom of the third as Routt picked up a lone tally in the second.

In the decisive third inning, winning pitcher Hugh Whalen led off with a walk and moved over on John Vahle's single. Chris Yording hit a deep single that scored Whalen and Vahle and came home moments later on a wild pitch after he had executed two steals.

In the second game of the day, Winchester, now 10-4, roared to a 7-0 lead in the bottom of the first on three hits, two walks and five Calhoun errors for the easy win.

Rodney Nicholson and Jim Lockman hit triples for the Wildcats, with Don Hankins contributing a double.

Hawkeyes Take Doubleheader From Badgers

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — The Iowa baseball squad swept a doubleheader from Wisconsin 10-2 and 4-0 Friday to put the Hawkeyes only two games away from the Big Ten baseball championship.

Iowa is to play Northwestern twice Saturday and, should the Hawkeyes win both contests, they will capture the championship no matter the outcome of other Big Ten games.

In the first game Friday, Mark Tachopp pitched a four-hitter and slammed a three-run homer to aid the Hawkeyes' victory. Tachopp boosted his season mark to 6-2.

Also aiding the Hawks was a three-run homer by rightfielder Larry Schutzius.

In the second game, Bill Heckforth pitched his third Big Ten shutout the last four outings in posting a two-hit victory. Heckforth has a season record of 7-2 and a league mark of 5-0.

Iowa scored an unearned run in the fourth inning—all that was needed for victory. Three insurance runs came in the sixth inning on five hits.

McGinnis Lifts Pacers Over Nets

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — George McGinnis fired in 30 points and grabbed 20 rebounds as the Indiana Pacers raced to a 114-108 victory over the New York Nets Friday and took a 2-1 lead in their American Basketball Association championship series.

An ABA playoff record crowd of 15,241 watched the Pacers regain the home-court advantage they had lost by splitting the first two games of the best-of-seven series in Indiana. Game four will be played Monday night here at the Nassau Coliseum.

The standout performance by McGinnis, 6-foot-8, 235-pound rookie from Indiana University, enabled the Pacers to overcome a 44-point effort by the Nets' Rick Barry.

McGinnis gave the Pacers the lead for good, 62-61, with 2:19 gone in the third quarter. The Pacers remained in control the rest of the way, building their lead to as much as 12 points in the final period.

Freddie Lewis, the Pacers' leading scorer with a 27-point average in the series first two games, added 22 points and veteran Roger Brown had 20.

The Pacers, helped by McGinnis' 16 points and 12 rebounds, led at intermission 54-52.

The final contest was called because of heavy rains.

New Jersey Group Seeking To Get Celtics

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — David "Sonny" Werblin, said Friday there is a chance that a National Basketball Association franchise, possibly the Boston Celtics, will be coming to New Jersey.

Werblin, chairman of the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority, said that he has talked with NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy about the prospects for moving the Celtics to the proposed new sports complex in the Hackensack Meadows.

Werblin said there have not been any direct negotiations with Celtics' management.

The Celtics team is the only franchise "floating around," Werblin said. But he added that Kennedy expressed an interest in putting another team, perhaps a new franchise, in New Jersey if the Celtics prove to be unavailable.

Werblin is former owner of the New York Jets' football team.

Kennedy was on vacation and unavailable for comment.

The management of the Boston Celtics was recently reported to be considering a move to San Diego, Calif.

But the owners of the team, Irving H. Levin and Harold Lipton, said they had assured General Manager Red Auerbach that they would not take the Celtics out of Boston.

Mays Takes First Swings As A Met

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Mays took the first four pitches before he tagged a soft line drive to center field. An outfielder floated toward the ball and stabbed it.

Mays fled to right, fouled one off, singled to right and then hit his first home run. The ball sailed over the 371-foot mark in left-center field at Shea Stadium.

It was only batting practice, but it was Willie Mays' first batting practice Friday night.

Foreman Scores 33rd Knockout As Paez Falls

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Unbeaten heavyweight contender George Foreman scored the 33rd knockout of his professional career — and one of the quickest — Thursday night by stopping Argentine veteran Miguel Paez at 2:39 in the second round of a scheduled 15-round bout.

Foreman, weighing 217 pounds, trapped the 32-year-old South American in a corner and pounded him with combinations of punches throughout the second period.

Paez dropped to his knee once and took a nine-count. About half a minute later, he went down to his knees again and couldn't make it up before referee Tony Bosnich counted him out.

The 23-year-old winner from nearby Hayward made his pro record 36-0. He is ranked third among the heavyweight challengers to champion Joe Frazier.

Kline And Jacks On To Sectional

QUINCY — Bill Kline of Jacksonville High tied for individual honors while the Crimsons finished second in the team standings behind Quincy Senior in the District Golf Tournament at the West View golf course Friday afternoon.

Quincy took top team honors with a low total 313 over the par 70 course, with the Crimsons posting 320 and Quincy Catholic Boys 325. All three teams advance to the Galesburg Sectional this Saturday.

Kline shot a 38-75 to tie with Tim Eaton of Quincy for the individual low score. Mike McCulla of Quincy and Dan McLaughlin of QBC both shot 78's. J. D. Evans was the tenth highest shooter with a 37-44-85, as five players shot 80's.

With the top three district teams advancing five man squads to the sectional, Jim Keating, Tony Ward and Mike Gonzalez will accompany Kline and Evans to the Bunker Links golf course this weekend. Keating and Ward shot identical 41-42-82, with Gonzalez posting a 42-41-83, winning a play-off with John McGonaght, who also fired an 83. Also competing for JHS was Tom Murphy with a 38-45-84.

The Galesburg sectional, considered one of the roughest tournaments in the state, attracts District qualifiers from the Peoria, Quad-City and Galesburg areas.

Competing for Routt High school on an individual basis, Pat Bonjean shot a 49-51-100 in the meet.

Other team scores in the order of the finish Friday were Macomb in fourth place with 338, Rushville with 347, Hamilton 359, Carthage 361, Pittsfield 369, Brown County 371, Southwestern and Macomb Western 376, Beardstown 379, Camp Point Central 385, Nauvoo-Colusa 389 and Sciota 397.

Gophers Bounce Wildcats Into Conference Tie

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Gophers, virtually eliminated from the Big Ten baseball race by falling 8-4 in the opener, came back to whip Northwestern 1-0 on Bob Turnbull's two-hitter Friday in the nightcap and knocked the Wildcats into a tie with Iowa for the conference lead.

The split left Iowa and Northwestern tied at 9-3 with their doubleheader Saturday at Iowa City possibly deciding the championship. Minnesota has a 9-5 record heading into its final doubleheader Saturday against Wisconsin.

Iowa swept a doubleheader from Wisconsin 10-2 and 4-0 Friday.

The Gophers got the only run in the nightcap when Gary Hobman singled in the fourth inning, stole second and raced home on Dave Schelling's single.

Turnbull, making his first start in several games, retired the first 13 men he faced. The Wildcats got singles in the fifth and seventh innings.

Losing pitcher Steve McMullen allowed only four hits.

In the opener, Bob Arsenko, 4-0, scattered seven hits and survived a solo homer in the seventh by Minnesota's Rick Schoener. Bill Bauer and Bob Dekas led the Northwestern eight-hit attack with two hits and three runs batted in each.

Hands' Five-Hitter Stops Atlanta 2-0

ATLANTA (AP) — Bill Hands fired a five-hitter as the Chicago Cubs whipped the Atlanta Braves 2-0 Friday night. Hands, 2-1, retired 11 Braves in order during one stretch and didn't allow any runners past second base. He fanned three and walked one.

The Cubs scored in the second inning when Rick Monday doubled down the left field line and scored on Jose Cardenal's single. It was Cardenal's eighth RBI in four games against Atlanta this year.

Randy Hundley singled in the Cub third, reached second on Hands' sacrifice and scored when Glenn Beckert laced a double into the right field corner.

Braves starter Ron Reed suffered his fourth defeat in five games. He allowed six hits, walked one and fanned six be-

Leron Lee Lifts San Diego Past Montreal By 5-3

MONTREAL (AP) — Leron Lee blasted a three-run homer off Carl Morton in the fifth inning and the San Diego Padres went on to defeat the Montreal Expos 5-3 Friday night.

Morton, 1-2, breezed through the first three innings until he faced Lee to lead off the fourth. Lee singled and later scored San Diego's first run on a single by John Jeter. Dave Campbell also delivered a fourth-inning run with a single.

Montreal got a run back in the bottom of the fourth but Morton ran into control problems in the top of the fifth, issuing successive walks to Derrel Thomas and Enzo Hernandez before Lee hit his home run.

Montreal rallied for two runs in the same inning when Mike Jorgensen followed Ron Woods' pinch single with a homer.

Sutton Pitches 4 Hitter, LA Tops Phils, 6-1

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Unbeaten Don Sutton hurled a four-hitter, Frank Robinson hit a three-run homer and Bill Russell belted a solo shot as the Los Angeles Dodgers trounced the Philadelphia Phillies 6-1 Friday night.

Sutton, who entered the game with an earned run average of 0.42 and allowed Montreal only one hit in 10 innings in his last start, raised his record to 5-0.

Robinson connected off loser Dick Selma, 1-3, for his third home run of the year following singles by Bill Buckner and Willie Davis in the fifth inning.

The Dodgers took a 1-0 lead in the second when Billy Grabarkewitz singled, moved up on a wild pitch and scored on a single by Bobby Valentine.

Russell connected for his third home run of the season in the sixth off reliever Ken Reynolds.

Sutton had a two-hitter and a string of 31 scoreless innings until the Phillies scored in the ninth on Tim McCarver's infield hit and Greg Luzinski's double.

May's Single Carries Pirates Past Astros 4-2

HOUSTON (AP) — Milt May's tie-breaking single triggered a two-run ninth inning that carried the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 4-2 victory over the Houston Astros Friday night.

Manny Sanguillen's single opened the decisive rally off Houston starter Larry Dierker, 2-2.

He moved to second as Bob Robertson walked and took third on a wild pitch. May then broke the 2-2 deadlock with his single to right that sent Robertson to third and knocked Dierker out of the game.

Reliever Jim Ray then permitted the second run with another wild pitch. Steve Blass got the victory.

Lee May scored from second base on an error by shortstop Gene Alley and hit his sixth home run of the season to account for the Astros' two runs.

Grote's Hit Lets Mets Tip SF 2-1

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerry Grote's tie-breaking single with the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth inning gave the New York Mets a 2-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants Friday night.

Cleon Jones began the winning rally off reliever Jerry Johnson, 1-2, with a one-out walk. He scampered to third on Jim Fregosi's hit-and-run single to left through the vacated shortstop spot.

Ed Kranepool was given an intentional walk to load the bases, setting up Grote's hit through the middle that gave reliever Danny Frisella the victory.

The Mets, unable to reach San Francisco starter Steve Stone through the first seven innings, finally tied it at 1-1 with a run in the eighth on Ken Boswell's two-out double.

Pinch-hitter John Milner walked with one out and went to second on Bud Harrelson's topped grounder before racing home on Boswell's belt.

Highlanders End Year On 13-2 Win

Jerry Seibert fired a five-hitter and collected three hits as MacMurray closed its baseball campaign in impressive fashion Friday afternoon. The Highlanders blasted Rose-Hulman of Terre Haute, Ind., 13-2 on an 18-hit attack that was the Clan's biggest offensive explosion of the year.

Seibert fanned three and walked four in going the distance as Mac closed out a 9-16 slate. The only runs allowed by Seibert came on a two-run homer by Manuszak in the second frame.

Mac jumped into command early with four in the first via the long ball. Dain Meyer reached on a fielding miscue and Curt Grote drew a two-out walk before Ron Striker blasted a long home run to left center.

Larry Sample followed with an even longer solo shot to the same spot.

The hosts added a solo tally in the third as Phil Bennett and Grote singled and Sample drilled a double.

The Highlanders exploded for four more in the fifth. Striker singled and Rick Pretz doubled before Pete Pinoties legged out an infield single to load the bases. Seibert then chased in a pair with a single to center.

After Meyer sacrificed, Scott Murphy, one of the finest hitters in Clan history, fired a two-run single up the middle.

A single by Seibert, Brian Dusenberry's double and a wild pitch added a run in the seventh. Three runs in the eighth finished scoring for the day.

Joe Rajcevic walked, Pretz doubled for one run. Pinoties singled for the second and two fielding boos added the third.

The loss dropped Rose-Hulman to 6-11 on the campaign.

Bennett, Murphy and Pinoties were playing in their final game for the Highlanders.

Morgan's Home Run Drops Cardinals 5-4

CINCINNATI (AP) — Joe Morgan cracked a two-run homer that carried Cincinnati to a 5-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Friday night, snapping the Reds' four-game losing spin.

Ross Grimsley, making his first start since being recalled from the minors, went seven innings for the victory, only the second Cincinnati starter to catch a win this season.

Morgan's homer off Reggie Cleveland, 3-1, his fourth, followed Pete Rose's two-out single in the fourth and snapped a 3-3 tie.

The Cards took a 2-0 lead in the first but the Reds struck back for three in the bottom of the inning.

St. Louis tied it in the fourth on Donn Clendenon's first homer and added its final run in the eighth on Clendenon's single, an infield out and Matty Alou's single.

Battling Bruins Ready To Boast

BOSTON (AP) — The mighty Boston Bruins reigned as Stanley Cup champions for the second time in three years Friday just waiting for the question they heard all last summer: "What happened?"

"I'm just waiting to be asked that darn question we heard all last year after the playoffs," center Phil Esposito said. "This year I'll be happy to tell everybody, particularly my brother Tony."

The high-scoring Boston forward, like all the other Bruins, was embarrassed plenty after being eliminated in the opening round of the playoffs in defense of the Stanley Cup last spring. He was ribbed quite a bit by brother Tony, the Chicago Black Hawks goalie.

The Bruins salvaged their wounded pride by sweeping everything this season. They easily won the Prince of Wales Trophy as East Division champions during the regular National Hockey League season.

Then they finished off what they failed to do in 1971, eliminating Toronto in five games, taking four in a row from St. Louis and then winning the Stanley Cup by blanking the Rangers in New York 3-0 Thursday night in the sixth game of the best-of-seven championship series.

"Now we can hold our heads high," veteran wing Eddie Westfall said. "All last summer, why just last week, the questions kept coming. Everyone wanted to know how a great team like ours could lose. This year we had to win to stop all the talk."

The weary Bruins had little time to rest Friday, returning home at 2:15 a.m. on a charter flight from New York. Most managed to avoid thousands of fans waiting to greet them at the airport.

However, the team received an official reception from Mayor Kevin White and the city later in the day.

Despite the weariness, the Bruins could smile as champions and looking forward to additional checks—$2,500 per player for winning their division and another $15,000 for capturing the big prize.

Superstar Bobby Orr, who led the Bruins despite a damaged left knee, looked ahead to a Florida vacation, and probable surgery early in June.

"The knee feels fine," the 24-year-old defenseman said. "Right now, I don't feel anything. I'm just so happy. This is too sweet."

Kumler, Woods Better Records In Triangular

WAVERLY — John Kumler and John Woods both bettered their own school marks in the high jump and discus to high-light action in a quadrangular meet with Franklin and Portia Friday afternoon.

The Scotties captured team honors with a 95 point total, well ahead of Franklin and Portia with 30 and 28 points respectively.

Kumler jumped 6'2½" to set his best mark to date, while Woods whipped the discus 142' 6" for his finest effort.

Waverly is now 8-3 in competition.

Little League

The victors registered double figures as the Yankees and Giants rolled to wins in the Elks Little League Friday afternoon.

Tom Molitor went four for four at the plate, including a double to help spark the Yanks to a 13-6 victory over the Tigers. Tom Mullen and Jeff Waggoner performed the mound duties for the victors, now 2-0.

Bruce Baldwin struck out 13 batters in five innings and clouted a grand slam home run, pacing the Giants to a decisive 17-1 count over the Dodgers. The Giants collected 11 hits including doubles by Mike Pine and Jeff Turner. Tim Evans hit a triple for the losers.

By way of correction, Tom Maupin of the Red Sox was credited with hitting two home runs Thursday night and not one round-tripper as previously reported to the paper.

Royal Treatment

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — They were giving Willie Mays what he deserves.

That means they were giving him the royal treatment.

First his new employer, the Mets, provided a shiny black Cadillac limousine which took him to Shea Stadium and when he arrived there he was whisked upstairs to talk with the press, say a few words for radio and TV and meet some other people with the club.

Willie Mays did everything he was asked. Everything they wanted him to do.

Then he did something HE wanted to do. He did it without anybody else around. No one from the media.

He walked into the Mets' clubhouse for the first time. He had never been in there before.

Most of the players were out on the field for the opener of a day-night doubleheader with the Dodgers.

But Jerry Grote, the Mets' catcher, happened to be in the clubhouse. He had come in to get something.

"Welcome and good luck, Willie," Grote said, shaking Mays' hand.

Jim Beauchamp, the Mets' pinch-hitter and part-time first baseman, followed Grote in.

"Hey, Jim!" Willie called out, noticing the 24 on his back. "Whaddya doing with my number?"

Beauchamp laughed.

Dave Marshall, who had played with Willie two years with the Giants, also walked into the clubhouse and when he saw his old buddy his face lit up.

"Look who's here!" he laughed, pumping Willie's hand.

Willie Mays originally thought he'd play his first game for the Mets Sunday. His old club, the Giants, would furnish the opposition and Sam McDowell, a lefthander would be going for them and lefthanders always have been a little easier for Willie. On thinking about it, though, he changed his mind and said he'd suit up against the Giants tonight. But in a way, the Mets already had welcomed him aboard.

Not only the Mets, but all those who knew him when—the baseball fans of New York.

As Willie emerged from the ballpark for the trip back to Manhattan, a couple of photographers stayed with him and urged him to pose in front of one of the stadium entrances atop which there was a sign Willie obliged.

There was nobody around now but from 50 yards or so away, a woman happened to spot, Mays and she began walking, not hurriedly but at a rather normal pace, toward him.

When she reached him, she looked at him and smiled happily.

He was still posing for the photographers, and after they had made their picture, she threw both arms around Willie and kissed him on the cheek.

The woman's name was Naomi Smokes and she said she had recently undergone hospital surgery.

"I heard he was here and I just had to come," she beamed. "I can't work and I can't drive, but I had to come. Oh mercy, now I know I'm gonna get better."

On the way back to midtown Manhattan in another limousine, Willie talked about the events of the past hour.

"... That someone still wants you at my age," he said softly, almost to himself. "It makes you feel so good, so wonderful. I wish I could express my feelings. I only wish I knew how."

He looked at a newsman seated in the car alongside him. "You express it for me," he said. "Please."

Willie talked about his former employer, Horace Stoneham, the president of the Giants who, when they asked him how he felt about giving up Mays, had said:

"I'm going to be very lonesome, and very happy because I feel I accomplished something that will make his future completely secure."

At first, Willie explained, he was hurt that Stoneham hadn't called him to tell him about the deal with the Mets. Mays found it out when a newsman called him in Philadelphia.

"But now I understand," Willie said as the limousine tooled through the Midtown Tunnel. "Horace was more concerned for me than I was. He couldn't call me. The kind of emotion both of us have, if he'd have called me before, we'd both start crying. He called me in Montreal yesterday and said 'Come to New York.' He didn't have to say a lot more. I understood what he meant then but I didn't know that at the beginning. I went through a week of hell not knowing anything."

Willie then talked about Don Grant, the Mets' board chairman, about how considerate Grant was of him and how he kept thinking about the Mets' fans all the time.

"He wanted me to play tonight," Willie said. "He asked me to and I said, 'If that's what you want I'll do it.' But it takes 24 hours for the (trade) papers to clear so it couldn't be done. I would've played. If a man comes to you and says, 'Chee, could you come and play tonight for the fans?' I wouldn't care if I went 0-for-10, I'd do it."

Mays feels it will probably work out better this year, anyway, meaning he will have two days to get his things in order before playing for the Mets for the first time.

"Two days will give me time to get myself out of the sky down to the ground," he said. "I'll be much more effective. I'll be able to do more for the fans."

What about that woman who had run up and kissed him?

"I don't want to say anything about the cities because I was treated wonderfully in San Francisco," Willie said. "But I just don't have anything like that in San Francisco. What happened back there, with the people in the ballpark and that woman I mean, that is true love."

NEW YORK — Baseball's superstar Willie Mays gets the Key to the City from New York's Mayor John Lindsay Friday afternoon. Mays was traded to the New York Mets by the San Francisco Giants and returns to the city where he began his career 21 years ago.

Church League

Lynnville Methodist, Nazarene, Lynnville Christian, and Our Saviours were the victors in the Church League Slo-Pitch softball, with two games cancelled because of the rain.

Lynnville Methodist whipped Lincoln Avenue 'B' 16-2, with Steve Patterson clouting a home run for the victors, Paul Hemmrough adding a triple and two doubles and Davell Brown getting a double.

Nazarene got 22 runs on 22 hits to swamp Church Christ 22-8. Claude Smith hit two home runs and two doubles to pace the winners, with Rick Harmon belting two round trippers, J. D. Hawk lofting a solo, Dean Vaniter hitting one home run and two doubles and Mike Haven picking up a double.

Phil Holloway and Steve Retzer hit home runs for the losers.

In the closest contest of the night, Lynnville Christian scored four runs in the final frame to nip Lincoln Ave. 'A' 5-3. Marvin Finch and Reg Mason hit doubles for the winners, while Pete George hit two for Lincoln.

Our Saviours clobbered First Presbyterian 53-5. Jim Durocher, Mick Johnson, Boyd Farmer, Dale Farmer and Dave Eoff all hit home runs for Our Saviours.

The First Baptist and Litterberry Baptist game was rained out at Nichols Park, while the Litterberry Christian and Murrayville Methodist game was washed out at the State Hospital diamond.

Gets Nixon's Go Ahead

By CAROLE MARTIN
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The Nixon administration gave the go-ahead this past week for construction of the controversial Trans-Alaska oil pipeline. But environmental groups vowed to continue their fight against the project.

In another development, President Nixon raised the quotas on oil imports from the Middle East, Latin America and Canada by 15 per cent or 230,000 barrels a day.

Meanwhile, the House of Representatives approved a two-step increase in the minimum wage to $2 an hour, rejecting a proposal to make the jump immediately and to extend coverage to 5.8 million additional workers. The bill was sent to the Senate, where legislation raising the minimum wage to $2.20 an hour and expanding coverage awaited final action in the Labor Committee.

Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton announced Thursday that he planned to authorize construction of the Alaskan pipeline project, which had been stalled for the past two years by a court decision won by environmental groups.

An attorney for these groups said Morton's action would be challenged in the courts.

Alyeska Pipeline Co., formed by a consortium of seven oil firms, applied for the permit to construct the pipeline, 48 inches in diameter, across federal land to carry hot oil from the Prudhoe Bay field on Alaska's North Slope to a tanker port on its southern coast. From there the oil would be transported by tanker to the U.S. West Coast and perhaps other destinations.

The House vote on the minimum wage was a victory for the administration. The Democratic leadership had made an immediate $2 minimum and extension of coverage to government employees and household domestics a key part of its legislative program.

Also in Washington this past week, Treasury Secretary John W. Connally said President Nixon might ask Congress to enact a tax reform bill that could include a value-added tax sometime this year. He emphasized that he was not speaking for the President, and that he doubted a reform measure could pass in the current election year.

In other developments: The Commerce Department reported that retail store sales slipped 1.5 per cent from March to April. Preliminary figures put last month's sales at a seasonally adjusted $35.58 billion. This represented a $36.4 billion drop from March, but was up 7 per cent from April 1971.

General Motors announced it was recalling 350,000 Vegas to correct a possible throttle-sticking problem. It was the second time in recent weeks that GM announced a major safety recall involving the Chevrolet subcompact. The earlier recall was aimed at a possible fire hazard.

International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. announced that it would begin the divestitures required under the anti-trust consent decrees by selling publicly minority interests in some subsidiaries. ITT President Harold S. Geneen did not identify the companies nor give other details.

DETROIT—The Ford Motor Co. last week revealed details and photographs of the Experimental Safety Vehicle (ESV) it is building for the U.S. Department of Transportation. The ESV (bottom) resembles the Ford Galaxie (top). However, the ESV has a longer hood to accommodate the energy absorbing frame and front end and a shorter rear deck, to stay within the 220-inch overall length limit specified by the government contract. RADIO MEN PROMOTED—Two Jacksonville radio executives have been promoted according to B. D. Hunter, president of WJIL. Ron Gray, right, who has been vice president and general manager of WJIL, will become assistant vice-president of corporate communications for AFSCO Corp., of Springfield, and also continue to serve as vice president of the local radio station. Gray will continue to live in Jacksonville. Replacing Gray as general manager of WJIL will be Gordy Fish, left, who has been responsible for the internal operations of the radio station. Fish joined the local firm in 1966. The changes become effective May 15.

World Situation Captures Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The international situation dominated the stock market's behavior all during the past week.

The market paid little attention to economic and business developments.

Monday trading was slow and prices were off a little.

After the president's broadcast Monday night announcing the mining of North Vietnamese ports, Tuesday's trading resulted in a price plunge. The Big Board had 1,380 losers, and only 180 gainers. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 12.72 to 925.12—the deepest descent since last Nov. 1, when it dropped 13.14 to 825.86.

Wednesday and Thursday, prices made small gains in selective buying — yet volume was abnormally low.

On Friday turnover improved a little and the Dow gained 7 points to 941.83, fractionally above the previous week's closing figure of 941.23.

Looking back at Tuesday's drop, some analysts observed that things could have been worse—the volume was 19.91 million shares, which fell in the business-as-usual category, indicating that buyers were not very rattled.

Big Board volume for the week was 71.94 million shares, compared with 72.18 million the previous week.

The NYSE index of more than 1,300 common stocks was off .11 to 59.19 during the week. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index closed at 106.38, off .25. The Associated Press 60-stock average was down 2.0 to 330.2.

Among the 1,920 issues traded on the Big Board, 984 declined and 733 advanced. New yearly highs were marked up by only 47 stocks, while new yearly lows numbered 358.

Of the week's 25 most-active stocks, 13 made gains, 8 were lower and 4 unchanged.

The five most-active issues on the New York Stock Exchange were, in order: Gulf Oil, unchanged at 24 1/4; American Motors, off 1/4 to 8 1/4; Alaska Interstate, up 2 at 44 1/4; American Telephone & Telegraph, off 1/4 to 42 1/2; and International Telephone & Telegraph, down 1 1/4 to 14 1/4.

At the American Stock Exchange the five most-active issues were Banister Continental, up 1% to 25 1/4; Syntex, unchanged at 86 1/4; Kaiser Industries, unchanged at 7 1/4; Teleprompter, ahead 2 1/4 to 35 1/4; and National General new warrants, up 1/2 to 7.

VENDING MACHINES GET SMARTER BUT DON'T SAY THANKS

Once a day every American consumer fishes out a coin and puts it into a vending machine to buy a candy bar, soft drink, sandwich or other merchandise, according to the Illinois Automatic Merchandising Council, a statewide group representing the vending people.

At least that's the average daily transaction based on more than 200 million coins which are deposited in merchandise vending machines every 24 hours, says B. J. Kiley, Jr., the Council's president.

This year American consumers will buy merchandise valued at nearly $7 billion from an estimated five million vending machines, and that's not counting coin-op laundry and dry cleaning services, coin telephones or music machines.

"We Americans are unique in the world in the way we rely on automatic merchandising machines," says Kiley, "and even the Europeans and Japanese often come to the Midwest to learn from American vending service firms."

Illinois and Missouri are in the forefront of the U.S. vending business, with three of the four major machine manufacturers producing equipment here for the domestic and export markets.

Kiley says that vending machine services have developed primarily in the past 20 years, as the American worker has become accustomed to the coffee break and as the entire population looks for snacks and refreshment breaks on the road and at recreation areas.

The American consumer now buys about five times as much from vending machines as he did 20 years ago, when annual sales of vended products already totaled a respectable $1.4 billion.

This year the machines will sell more than 1,100,000,000 cartons of milk, more than 200,000,000 cans of hot food and nearly 700,000,000 pieces of pastry. That amounts to almost 2,000,000 pastries every day.

But life is not all fun and pleasure for the hundreds of vending service firms which shepherd the automatic sales devices in Illinois, says Kiley. Being machines, the vendors do go out of order and in this age of consumer sensitivity vending service firms are redoubling their efforts to keep their machines in good running order and to spot malfunctions as quickly as possible.

Kiley says that none of the machines has yet been taught to say "thank you." It might startle the customers if they did.

Bean Prices Off As Market Eyes World Relations

By BLAINE ROWLEE
AP Business Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures prices scored modest gains during this past week, largely because a government crop report Thursday night indicated a yield of some 50 to 80 million bushels under what the trade had been expecting.

A growing feeling that the U.S. would be able to maintain normal relations and get more export business with Russia despite the blockade of North Vietnam ports failed to offset early week softness in soybean prices, also attributed to war developments in Southeast Asia.

As a result, soybeans finished more than 1 cent down, and off nearly 3 cents in the November option.

At the close of trading Friday, wheat was unchanged to 1 1/4 cents higher, May 1.61 1/4; corn was down 1/4 to 1 1/4 cents a bushel for the week, May 1.23; oats was 1/2 lower to 2 cents higher, May .69, and soybeans were 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 cents lower, May 2.97 1/4.

The trend in soybeans was reflected in its derivatives. Soybean oil prices were 6 to 34 points lower than a week earlier, May 11.43, and soybean meal was down 25 to 100 points in most deliveries, May 99.70. There was only desultory and aimless action in the distant deliveries of meal.

Trends were mixed in the iced broiler pit. May and November options were off 2 points, May 28.42, but late summer and early fall options were up 13 to 18 points.

Good weather for planting and a prospective 1.1 billion-bushel carryover weighted corn futures. A split trend developed in oats pit. Late strength boosted the May option by 2 cents, July by only 1/4, while new crop deliveries dropped fractionally.

YOUR BIRTHDAY AND HOROSCOPE

By STELLA WILDER

SUNDAY, MAY 14 — Born today, you are one of those persons who always enters into any endeavor with tremendous enthusiasm — and then has to work at it very hard to keep the enthusiasm from wearing distressingly thin. It is not so much that you are moody or changeable; it is that you generally expect too much from things. It does not take long, however, for you to realize just how much you will be able to give to and to gain from a given project, and when, as is usually the case, the realization falls far short of the expectation, your enthusiasm immediately wanes.

You have great driving force of your own but are perhaps more inclined to wait for others, particularly loved ones — parents, a husband or wife, children — to urge you on to achievement. Your accomplishments are seldom quite what you had hoped they might be and for that reason you are given to self-disappointment. The fact that your attainments stand now, things should be at others should do much to change your mind about yourself.

Sympathetic to other people's problems, you are somewhat prone to be less than sympathetic to your own. Willing to help others in any way you can, you often save yourself neither the time nor the energy you need to reach the goals set for you. Such an approach to life is marvelous — for those on the receiving end of your generosity. It does little, however, for you and should, perhaps, be thought through once again.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Monday, May 15

TAURUS (April 21-May 21) — A bright day for the Taurus who keeps his eyes on the horizon and not on what's right in front of him. Look to the future for your solution.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21) — A day which is calculated to reassure you about your chances of success. From where you stand now, things should be

A congenial day for the Cancer who is determined to get along well with co-workers. There's no need to feel resentful about another's success.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23) — The incentive you provide others in the doing of good works today should satisfy your desire to make a contribution to the future.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) — Whatever you attempt to achieve on your own should prove highly satisfying — even if the project should fail. It's the effort that counts today.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) — Let your own interests guide you to the making of the right decisions today. Otherwise, you may find that you're in over your head.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — A mentally stimulating day. Take care, however, that you don't become overexcited about new ideas, for if you do you could move too quickly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22) — Take care not to use all your energy on minor morning chores. Afternoon hours present a challenge and a chance for special gain.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20) —

Take advantage of the presence of an expert in a field where you have little knowledge.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19) — Outlook is excellent as far as your financial status is concerned. A relatively tranquil day that should leave you in fine spirit.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21) — Give credit where credit is due. Those who have been of real service to you in the past deserve the chance to do something new and big now.

ARIES (March 22-April 20) — Reveal your own dream to another and you may be sorry. The wise Aries will keep his plans to himself until they are at least partially completed.

Love is a fad?

PENANG, Malaysia (UPI) — Dr. Ool Kee Wan, past president of the Penang Rotary Club, suggested at a recent club luncheon meeting that marriage bureaus be set up throughout Malaysia because "romantic love may be just a passing fad." He believes the age-old method of matchmaking is more suitable for Asians because both parties can weigh the pros and cons before entering into marriage. Marriage bureaus, he said, could provide a wide choice of candidates for pairing.

THELMA BACON PINSON

More than 300 years ago, Sir Edward Coke is known to have said, "A man's house is his castle." In England this is still true. An English village is quiet to walk through. Each house seems surrounded and hidden away by its own hedge and garden. However, the English are a very hospitable people and anxious to make visitors feel at home. Also, if home life is not what you are looking for, there are many opportunities for night-clubbing and theater-going in the larger cities. You can have the best of both worlds! Assessment Begun In Dixon Springs

A. L. NEUMANN
University Of Illinois

University of Illinois beef cattle researchers recently started a beef cow experiment at the Dixon Springs Agricultural Center at Simpson in southern Illinois.

The study will provide answers to some relevant questions being asked today by both those in the cow-calf business and those planning to start a herd.

The study offers a way to compare two management systems. One group of 120 cows will be handled in a conventional spring-calving system. The cows will graze tall fescue pasture from spring until mid-to-late fall.

During the height of the growing season, half of the pasture will be harvested as hay, either in round bale or stack form. The hay will be stored in a fenced area in the pasture. After the calves are weaned in late fall, the dry cows will feed on cornstalks and crop residues for several months. But they will finish the winter and calve on the harvested fescue.

This plan makes maximum use of improved pasture and requires a minimum of cropland and labor.

Fall Calving
Another herd of 120 cows will be bred to calve in the fall. The cows will calve on clean pasture in August and September and will stay on the pasture all winter. They'll be fed corn or sorghum silage and a protein supplement at fenceline bunkers.

Their calves will be weaned in late spring and the dry cows will graze tall fescue pasture during summer at about twice the normal stocking rate.

The plan requires less pasture, but requires about one-fourth acre of cropland per cow for silage production.

Labor requirements will be higher in winter, but it is possible that overall labor needs will start a short time before term. And this plan avoids labor requirements that conflict with labor demands for crop production.

Perhaps Better
The fall-calving plan offers the possibility of producing a higher percent calf crop. Recent research shows that the requirement for energy level in a nursing cow's ration may be higher than even the best spring pastures provide.

Apparently cows reestablish their estrus cycles sooner and conceive more readily at first breeding when extra energy is provided. The timing makes sense because silage feeding will start a short time before the bulls are turned in on about Nov. 1.

The beneficial effect of "flushing" ewes and sows has been observed for years, but the practice has been studied only recently in beef cows.

Crossbred Study
To take advantage of the well-demonstrated fact that crossbred cows are more efficient calf producers, the study will also compare the reproductive efficiency of several kinds of crossbreeds as well as with straight-bred cows.

Three kinds of crossbred heifers are being produced for this study in the Hereford herd at the Dixon Springs Agricultural Center. Hereford cows are being

Farm Tools May Wreck Phone Lines

General Telephone company's efforts to eliminate accidental cable cutting incidents are being expanded to include farm operators, according to B. L. Vandiver, Jacksonville Service Office Supervisor.

According to Vandiver, most cable cuts are caused by contractors, road crews or others whose jobs call for excavation work. However, new farm equipment such as chisel plows and sub-soilers have added a new hazard for the company's buried cables.

Chisel plows operate at a depth of 24 inches and sub-soilers, which are used to promote drainage, operate at a depth of up to 30 inches.

Vandiver stated "many telephone cables are located within the range of the new equipment." He urged farm operators to contact the company's service department before using the equipment where telephone cables are located.

THIS WEEK AT DIXON SPRINGS

Wool Pool
Wool growers may deliver wool to the Dixon Springs Wool Pool on June 5, from 1 p.m. to 10 p.m. and on June 6 and 7 from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., according to Carl Aaron, chairman of the Dixon Springs Wool Pool.

Aaron says that unbagged wool will be received only from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on June 6 and 7.

The charge for wool handling will be 2 cents per pound. The pool will be held at the Dixon Springs Agricultural Center sale barn at Robbs, Ill.

Planting Goes On
Rain one day-plant corn the next. That's how you can do it on pasture sods if you no-till plant. That's how it's done at Dixon Springs. Some of the corn at Dixon Springs is now up and growing.

Disease in Barley
Barley at Dixon Springs is diseased. It has barley yellow dwarf virus. The barley is dwarfed and the leaves are brilliant yellow.

The virus is spread in small grain fields by virus infected aphids feeding on the plants.

Control of the disease seems to be in the hands of plant breeders. They are working to develop disease tolerant varieties.

We can expect the disease to seriously reduce yields of barley growing at Dixon Springs.

Rabies
Though rabies is one of the oldest diseases affecting man, having been described before the 23rd Century, B.C., it still causes much physical and mental pain. It remains a fatal disease for which there is no effective treatment. Some 30,000 people each year must undergo the painful treatment following exposure to rabies.

The disease maintains itself in skunks, foxes, bats and other wildlife. Control of unvaccinated and unlicensed dogs and a good vaccination program in pets is the best way to limit danger to humans.

First aid to bite victims includes a thorough flushing of the wound with strong soap and water. All bites should be reported immediately to health and police authorities. The doctor of bite victims can give proper treatment against rabies following a period of observation of the biting animal or following a laboratory report on whether or not rabies is found in the animal.

Today, we have a vaccine to protect humans against rabies. Most experts agree that veterinarians, dog handlers, SPCA personnel, trappers and wildlife handlers should be vaccinated before exposure.

PORK OUTLOOK MOST UNUSUAL

The hog and pork situation is most unusual: Hog producers are making good profits, offsetting some of the severe losses they suffered last year. At the same time, consumers are receiving a larger-than-average supply of pork. These favorable conditions seem likely to continue well into 1973.

Recent prices received by farmers for hogs averaged around $22.50 a hundred pounds. Costs of production on many typical hog farms were around $19.50, so there was a profit of about $3 per hundredweight for the producer. While this is a good return, it will take a long time for hog farmers to recover the heavy losses they suffered in 1970-71.

Beginning in September 1970, producers incurred losses for thirteen consecutive months. During a nine-month period ending last June, their losses averaged nearly $4 per hundred pounds. That loss was equivalent to about 9 cents for each pound of pork sold at retail.

Reasons For The Losses
There were two reasons for the heavy losses incurred by hog producers. First, some farmers increased hog production too rapidly, which caused prices to drop sharply. Second, the blight cut corn production in 1970, which raised the cost of corn fed to hogs during 1970-71.

Commercial pork production in 1971 totaled 14.6 billion pounds, which was by far the greatest volume ever handled by the packing houses. This amount was sufficient to provide an average of 72.8 pounds of pork for each person in the United States. That was 15 percent more than the average amount for the previous ten years. This huge output of pork overloaded the market and depressed hog prices to disaster levels.

Some Farmers Dropped Hogs
While consumers were enjoying pork more often than they had for twenty-five years, a substantial number of farmers closed out their hog enterprises. By last December, pork output had begun to sag under year-before levels. Pork production fell short of the record year-before volume by 5 percent in December and by 12 percent in January. Since January, however, pork output has been only about 4 percent short of the record volume of last year.

Outlook For Coming Months
Prospective supplies of pork for the remainder of this year are only 3 to 5 percent short of the huge volume turned out a year ago. Consumer buying power is up about 8 percent from a year ago, and some of this increase will be spent for meats. But there will be more competition from other meats than there was in 1971. Beef output apparently will be up 4 or 5 percent, and the production of chickens is expected to be up 5 or 6 percent. (By contrast, there was very little increase in broiler production last year.)

Considering all these things, we expect hog prices to average around $23 per hundredweight for the remainder of this year. The average price may rise a dollar or two for the first half of 1973, and sag to near $20 before the end of that year.

4-H Club News Notes

The Lucky Lassies 4-H Club met May 6 at the home of Freda and Vicki Welker. Pledges were led by Freda Welker and Judy Tribble.

Roll was answered by 12 members and three visitors, Theresa Turner, Mrs. Neola Lockett and David.

Reports were heard. Girls were asked what they were going to bring to the bake sale May 13.

The radio program was played on a cassette so everyone could hear what was on the air that morning. Tina Runkel gave a talk on Cooking Practice Safety; Vicki Welker, Restaurant Etiquette; Lucinda DeFrate, Your Rights under the Law and Your Duties as a Citizen. The meeting adjourned and everybody listened to records and had refreshments.

The next meeting is May 20 at the home of Meline and Norma White.

Former Corn Husking Champ Sees A Future For U.S. Sunflowers

AUDUBON, Ia. — Thousands of acres in the corn belt are being planted to oilseed sunflowers this year, says Elmer Carlson, Audubon seed dealer who was world corn husking champion in the days when corn was picked by hand.

Carlson said sunflowers are now second only to soybeans in total world-wide oil production, followed by peanut, cottonseed, rapeseed, olive, sesame, corn and safflower oils in that order.

Under the U.S. farm program, Carlson said, the farmer is permitted to rent back his set-aside acres for $8-11 and acre and to plant those acres to oilseed sunflowers. He said this provision is enabling many farmers to plant sunflowers as a cash crop for the first time.

Carlson listed four types of sunflowers: the wild ones which Midwest farmers have fought as a weed, and sunflowers bred for human food, birdseed and oil production.

An American Native
Carlson said the sunflower is a native to the new world, but most genetic work and production has occurred in Russia and Romania, where plants have been bred that average 40 percent and more in oil content.

In contrast, Carlson said U.S. research is relatively recent and has been greatly aided by Russian findings and genetic work.

"Seed companies have been developing oilseed varieties, with much of this work being done in California," Carlson said. "Iowa State University has done virtually nothing in sunflower research. There is active work in sunflower research at the University of Minnesota, North Dakota State University of Texas and others. An information release from the University of Illinois this week tells of the great increase in sunflower acreage in that state."

Carlson is so convinced of a good future for oilseed sunflowers as a cash crop that he is offering agents of his seed firm a chance to win a free trip to the fifth annual World Sunflower Conference in France in July, and a visit to Russian sunflower areas.

"When they plant 10 million acres of oilseed sunflowers each year and we plant less than 5 percent as much, it's time we go over there and take a look," Carlson said.

Senate Sets Higher Bond For Elevators

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Alarm about mounting grain farmer financial losses through falling grain elevators helped win unanimous approval in a senate committee Tuesday of a bill to stiffen bonding requirements for elevators.

However, members of the Agricultural and Conservation Committee said they had some reservations about whether the bill struck at the cause of elevator failures. Therefore, they said, the bill would stand in the senate on amendment stage for at least a week.

The main thrust of the bill, said Sen. Clifford Lathrop, R-Carriage, the sponsor, was to increase the bond from $25,000 to as much as $100,000 and to deny the agriculture director the power to waive a bond because of the proof of other assets.

Gordon Ropp, Illinois director of agriculture, sounded the alarm as a witness.

"Another elevator has gone financially under, he said, 'to the tune of $900,000. We've had up to nearly a dozen in the last month."

Sen. Terry Bruce, D-Olemiss, whose district includes Noble where nearly 100 farmers lost more than $250,000 in grain and advance payments made to an elevator firm, said bonding firms do not pay off.

Bruce also said, "what it amounts to is the local grain buyer was playing the board of trade. The farmers are to blame themselves. They know the grain isn't there and there is speculation."

John F. Austin, superintendent of the state Department of Warehouses, said grain was a $2.5 billion industry. "I don't think we can let the producer of grain go without protection," he said. "Did the guy play the board of trade? If so, we've got to put it in the bond to prohibit it."

Sen. Tom Merritt, R-Hoopston, called the bill "a weak step" because the bond of $25,000, if there were an elevator failure in his district, "might average out to $50 a farmer."

May Plant 8 Crops On Set-Aside Acres

"Farmers who participate in the 1972 Feed Grain or Wheat Program may plant certain alternate crops on their set-aside acres by taking a payment reduction," announced R. G. Leavell, chairman of the Morgan County ASC committee.

"The farm payment in Morgan County would be reduced $10.20 per acre for all set-aside acres planted to the alternate crop," continued Leavell. The following crops that are permitted because they are considered in short supply are: 1. Castor Beans, 2. Crambe, 3. Guar, 4. Mustard Seed, 5. Plantago Ovata, 6. Sesame, 7. Safflower and 8. Sunflower.

"Some farmers in this area are considering experimenting with Sunflower on their set-aside acres," stated Leavell. Farmers interested should find out about the growing condition and tillage methods needed, where to market, etc. before experimenting, because there is an art or science to growing these crops just the same as raising corn or soybeans.

"There are only two important requirements involved at the ASCS office that farmers are to be cautioned about," continued Leavell.

First, when the farmer certifies his acreages of corn, soybeans, set-aside, etc. at the ASCS office, he should report that he is raising an alternate crop on set-aside acres. Second, he will need to report accurately by measurement the acreage of the alternate crops. Farmers may request measurement service for this. This is needed to determine the acreage that will be subject to the $10.20 per acre payment reduction. An incorrect report could cause the farmer to lose his entire program payment or receive a severe penalty.

"The payment reduction rates vary by county. Inquire at your local ASCS office about the details," the chairman concluded.

Pork Queen Contest, Barbecue

A queen contest and an outdoor meal should make an appealing program.

Russell Morris, president of the Morgan County Pork Producers invites everyone to attend their pork supper and queen contest on June 7, at the 4-H building on the Morgan County Fairgrounds, at 7 p.m.

The queen contest is open to residents of Morgan County who meet the following requirements: (1) Must have reached their 16th birthday on or before January 1, 1972 (2) Must reside on a farm where hogs are raised (3) Must be willing to represent Morgan county at the state contest in Peoria next January.

Diane Jones, 1972 Morgan County Pork Queen, received 1st runner up at the state contest in January 1972. Miss Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jones will crown the new queen. Any one interested in being a queen should contact Mrs. Wayne Tomhave at 245-0480.

Preceding the queen contest will be a meal with pork as the main ingredient. Potato salad, baked beans, coleslaw, bread, butter, and drink will complete the meal. The cost is $1.00 for adults and $.50 for children under 12. Ticket sales are limited to 200. Tickets may be purchased from pork producer or from the Morgan County Extension Office on East Morton Road. Tickets will not be sold at the door.

Commando Jumps into Matrimony

SINGAPORE (UPI)—Singapore army commando Maj. Chan Seck Sung literally dropped in at his own wedding. Chan, 27, a member of the Parachute Association of Singapore, was scheduled to make a 4,000-foot jump from an aircraft. It was also the day for his marriage to Miss Lim Hui Ai, also 27.

And Farmers Make Planting Progress

It's still too wet to plant corn in the northern and eastern parts of Illinois. But throughout the rest of the state farmers have corn planters in "high gear."

Here's the May 10 report from area agronomists and one Extension adviser.

Southern Illinois
"Last week was a good week for planting and tillage in our area," reports George McKibben, area agronomist at Dixon Springs Agricultural Center (DSAC) in Simpson.

"Here at Dixon Springs we're about 20 percent through with corn planting—all no-till," McKibben says. "We've had no problem planting upland with no-till equipment. May 9 was the first we were able to plow bottomland."

McKibben points out that at Dixon Springs and in surrounding counties, little plowing is done ahead of planting in any year because the land is mostly in pasture and hay.

All the forage crops—the grasses, clover, hay and alfalfa—are growing beautifully, he adds.

Eastern Illinois
"Most areas of eastern Illinois still can't be worked," according to Las Boone, U. of I. area agronomist at Champaign.

Some counties were hit hard with as much as five inches of rain on May 7 and 8. Other areas received only small amounts of rain.

With less than 20 percent of the corn planted, farmers should consider ways to speed planting by limiting tillage.

"They should do anything to save time and get the corn in," says Boone.

Western Illinois
"We've had a stretch of good weather, and as corn planting progresses the pressure of problems changes. At this point alfalfa weevils are the number one problem in Adams county."

That's the report from Ron Dedert, Adams county Extension adviser.

Dedert says the weevil problem is currently most severe in the southern and central parts of the county. Worms are just hatching in the northern one-third of Adams county.

"I've seen a number of fields with two or three worms per plant and 75 to 90 percent of the plants showing feeding damage," Dedert says.

"Most farmers who are aware of the problem have sprayed, and they report excellent control," he adds.

Mulvaney says northern Illinois farmers have had only four or five good days in the field this spring. Fewer oats have been seeded than planned. And consequently, Mulvaney expects to see more direct seeded alfalfa this year—seedings made without a nurse crop.

What They Thought Of Greeley

If you think the current national political scene adds up to a good laugh, go ahead and laugh. But the good old U.S.A. put on an even better and funnier one a hundred years ago. The Democrats of the south saw they didn't have a chance of electing a dog catcher the Carpenters were high in the saddle and in complete charge. But there were many dissident Republicans north of the Ohio river — most of them who had applied for office and had been turned down by President U. S. Grant. They were plenty sore.

A Change of Tune
It's fun to read the old papers and see what certain editors said about Grant before and after he declined them a place at the public test. Charles A. Dana, editor of the N. Y. Sun, bragged and bragged on Unconditional Surrender Grant while his application for superintendency of the N. Y. Customs office was hanging fire, and after another man got the job Dana used kegs of ink and tons of paper cussing the daylight out of Grant.

So these disappointed office seekers decided to "reform" the country and elect a "liberal republican." They put out a call for a convention May 1 in Cincinnati and Democrats flocked in from all sections of the country to see if they could get a piece of the action.

Actually, the Democrats got control of the convention machinery. The nominees were Horace Greeley, editor of the New York Tribune, and Gratz Brown, Democratic senator from Missouri.

It was only natural that Greeley should close out his last year on this earth as a bewildered, lost-in-the-woods candidate in a national election. He knew he was a sure winner, for every do-gooder and windbag in the country said they were supporting him to the proverbial T, and he was amazed and broken hearted when Grant beat him easily, 286 to 66.

The election was settled Nov. 5 and Horace Greeley died Nov. 29 at his farm near Pleasantville, N. Y.

Many, many newspapers, including the Chicago Tribune, supported the campaign of Mr. H., but the Jacksonville Journal certainly didn't and the editor, Lyman Beecher Glover, had fun and fun and fun during the campaign.

Here's an example from the May 11 issue:

VOX POPULI
What The People Say Of The Cincinnati Convention.

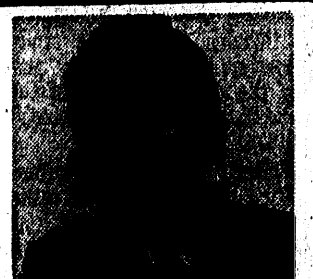

Since the Cincinnati convention the democratic papers have been quite full of letters from the people, for the most part, represented to be from leading republicans, who are supposed to support the Cincinnati nominees.

Not to be outdone in this particular, the JOURNAL has extended a grapevine telegraph into every precinct in Morgan county, and has received the following answers to these inquiries: What do you think of the Cincinnati convention? Will you support Greeley?

FRANKLIN, May 8, 1872
DEAR JOURNAL — I think the Cincinnati convention was a humbug. None of the democrats in this region will support Horace Greeley by a d-a sight. We understand that a good democrat called Andrew Jackson is again running for president, and you may rest assured that he will get all the democratic votes in this precinct, as usual.

BILLY WHY AT.
This reply purported to be from Col. W. J. Wyatt, a native of Franklin. He was the acknowledged leader of the Democrats in the precinct, and when he wasn't engaged in political wire-pulling he would tell of his experiences in the Winnebago, Mormon, Mexican and Civil wars.

BETHEL, May 8th
ED. JOURNAL: — Your telegram was received via the Catawba grape vine line, a little late. The delay was occasioned by a cow, which broke the circuit by gnawing the line in two, at a point about four miles east of this city. The hellish action in Cincinnati was supposed to be in the interest of the Greeley ring. We democrats in this region take no stock in Greeley. A man who would send an order for dough-nut seeds for early planting merits only the reprobation of the farming community. Very truly yours,

AN OLD DEMOCRAT.

Here Bethel's Old Democrat referred to a book written and published by Greeley a year earlier: "What I Know About Farming." The author didn't intend it to be humorous, but it was hilariously so, and the book had a good sale.

Greeley said it took the revenue from a successful daily newspaper to sustain a farm. One funny error caused great merriment: the scribe's handwriting was so atrocious that very few typesetters could fathom it out; the sentence came out to tell how vexed the country gentleman was over the slow delivery of a carload of post holes.

We'll go on with the survey: MEREDOSIA, May 7th
SIR — We had not heard of Greeley's nomination until your dispatch came to hand; it was read to us by a travelling man who is writing this reply, and when he told us about Horace Greeley, that he is one of them black abolitionists who are trying to set free them niggers down south, and make 'em equal to us, a perfect howl went up. We adjourned to B-'s grocery, and there took the oath never to vote for any man but A. Johnson, and if Andy ain't willing to run, give us any body to beat the dirty abolition Greeley. Set down this neck of the woods again Greeley.

SULPHUR SPRINGS, May 8th
Tell Billy Barnes, and them other fellers that are trying to make the democrats of Morgan County support Greeley, the old radical granny, that in the words of the great J. Strong, Esq., in the Cincinnati convention, "You have sold us out, but you can't make the delivery, d-a you!" The democrats of Sulphur Springs don't support their old political enemies, no matter if the bosses do crack their whip.

MURRAYVILLE, May 7th
I have voted the democratic ticket 35 years, and although I have eaten a great deal of dirt in my life, by orders of the leaders, it will be impossible for me to swallow a black republican like Horace Greeley. He was hung in effigy last evening, all the democrats in this precinct taking part.

Other similar expressions might be published, but these will suffice to show that the masses of the democracy are determined in their opposition to Greeley.

Yep, Glover was headed for a great deal of fun until the final vote was in.

WHAT'S THIS I HEAR ABOUT YOU THROWING LINUS OUT OF THE HOUSE?

THAT'S NOT LEGAL, YOU KNOW. HE'S PART OF YOUR FAMILY... LEGALLY, YOU CAN'T THROW HIM OUT.

OH, YES, I CAN, AND I DID! LEGALLY, A BIG SISTER CAN THROW OUT A YOUNGER BROTHER BECAUSE SHE'S BIGGER THAN HE IS, AND HE BUYS HER ALL THE TIME AND SHE CAN DO IT, AND I DID IT!!!

AND IF YOU'RE SMART, YOU WON'T GET INVOLVED!

I'M VERY SMART

System Fair, Healthy

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (UPI)—The chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, Herbert Stein, acknowledged Saturday that some companies probably would get "stuck" by the government's price controls. But overall, he said, the system is fair to businessmen and healthy for the economy.

Stein met with reporters after speaking to the Business Council, a semi-official government advisory group of about 200 top corporate executives, and he said members of the council had questioned him about the Price Commission's profit margin rule.

The rule allows a firm to increase profits by selling more goods, but places a ceiling on the amount it can earn by raising prices. The ceiling is tied to a base period—the average of the best two of the company's last three fiscal years.

"The profit margin ceiling will not hinder a big increase in total profits this year" and, despite the imposed limit, corporate profits should resemble those in a normal year of economic expansion, Stein said.

"I'm not going to say that some companies aren't going to get stuck ... some people are going to be unhappy (but) we have to look at the total effect."

On budget matters, Stein said the administration was making a "determined effort" to keep to a fiscal timetable which calls for slowing down government spending as the economy picks up steam.

"We're not going to allow the expenditures that were not made in fiscal 1972 to slip over into fiscal 1973," Stein said.

"We're going to exercise the authority of the President and OMB (Office of Management and Budget) to hold these things down."

Among the brief reports submitted by the business leaders, W. B. Murphy, president of the Campbell Soup Co., said that much-maligned food prices were not the cause—or even a big factor—in the rising cost of living. "It's just that people eat three times a day and everybody that eats is a voter," he said.

Murphy, asked about Commerce Secretary Peter G. Peterson's comment Friday that the Soviet Union was interested in U.S. help in establishing food processing plants there, replied: "I don't think there's a chance in the world of them ever letting an American food manufacturer over there."

In Washington, Chairman Wright Patman of the House Banking and Currency Committee said Saturday he would propose legislation to overhaul the wage-price control machinery and set up a new office of "Consumer Counsel." The Texas Democrat also said he would call a new round of hearings by his committee "to determine why the current program has failed to date."

Patman said he was convinced that "the great majority of our citizens do not feel that the program is either effective or equitable as presently administered."

The Office of Consumer Counsel in his bill would represent American consumers before both the Pay Board and the Price Commission, he said.

Dole Lashes Out At 'Sabotage' By News Media

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Republican National Chairman Robert Dole lashed out Saturday at what he said was "attempted media sabotage" of President Nixon's Vietnam policies.

The Kansas senator charged that the news media's "historic bias on the war has given it a vested interest in our defeat."

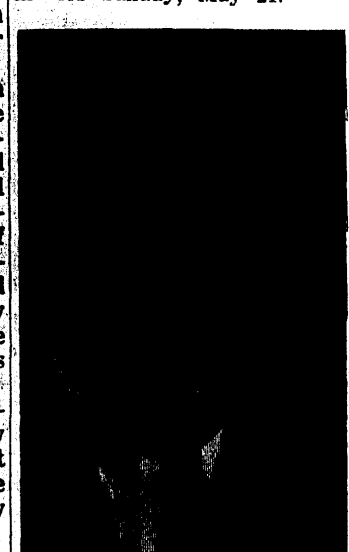

In remarks prepared for a convention of the Republican State Central Committee, Dole said, "The prisms of prejudice that news media always wears when it views the war is 'not only unfair and unprofessional, it is downright dangerous. It could cost lives.'"

Dole said "We get a lot of network news film on phony rigged demonstrations by professional activists who represent nothing but their own psychosis." He said the North Vietnamese monitor the news media to judge the "temper and the mettle of the American people and their President."

"If they believe the false picture of an embattled American President struggling to hold support for controversial actions," he said, "the North Vietnamese are going to miscalculate. They are going to make decisions that will lead to more bloodshed."

"In this critical hour," Dole said, "it amounts to an attempted media sabotage of the national policies of the United States."

The Rev. Marshall H. Ervin, pastor of First United Methodist church of Rock Island, will receive the honorary Doctor of Divinity degree from MacMurray College during the school's 121st commencement ceremonies Sunday, May 21.

Rev. Marshall H. Ervin

Rev. Ervin, a native of Cape Girardeau, Missouri, has had a distinguished career of service in the United Methodist church for nearly 30 years. He is a graduate of Asbury College with a BA degree and received his bachelor of divinity degree from Garrett Biblical Institute.

Rev. Ervin held pastorates in Perry Park, Owenton and Salvisa, Kentucky from 1945 to 1949, when he was called to First Methodist church in Divernon.

He served the Divernon parish for nine years, was minister of First Methodist church in Rushville from 1958 to 1966, and held the pastorate at First church in East Peoria until 1969 when he assumed his present post.

Rev. Ervin has served as district secretary of evangelism for the Jacksonville (1958-63) and Peoria (1966-69) Districts, as a member and executive secretary of the Central Illinois Conference's Board of Evangelism, and as chairman of the Conference Nominating committee. At present, he is a member of the Area Strategy and Development committee, the Illinois Area Committee on Reconciliation, and the Board of directors of the Preachers' Aid Society.

Active in civic programs, Rev. Ervin was honored for his service to the East Peoria Human Relations committee. He has been a Rotarian for 15 years and is a member of the Rock Island Rotary club.

Rev. Ervin is married to the former Robbie Williams. They are the parents of four children: the oldest of whom, Marshall L., is a graduate of MacMurray and currently teaching and coaching at Rochester (Ill.) High School.

Art, drama and music students of Armstrong Junior High School will present a Fine Arts program Tuesday, May 16 in the school facilities.

Art work will be on display Tuesday evening, beginning at 7 p.m. in the school media center and art room before and after the band concert and before the drama performance. Some pieces will be available for purchase.

During the band concert, which begins at 7:45, a slide show, using polarized light effects, will be presented by art students Guy Freesen and Gail Murphy.

Students from Team 8A, under the direction of Kathleen English, will present Wiley and The Hairy Man, a dramatic choral reading, as adapted by Jack Stokes.

The cast includes: Jeanene Cruzan, Brian Roegge, Heidi Franz, Jeff Verhoeff, Kathy Dalton, Debbie Burmeister, Joan Fernandes, Lisa Fulker, Carol Campbell, Cynthia Bailey, Becky Hickey, Mary Beth Pavlick, Jay Covey, David Birdsell, Jennifer Nevius, Sandy Bunfill, Bill Gregory, Clifford Garner, Malea Cox, Glennis Tippey and Brenda Irlam.

The concert band program will include compositions by William Latham, J. S. Bach, Bela Bartok and Saul Feldstein. The jazz band will play a Sandy Feldstein and Joseph Scianni work, and the ninth graders will present selections from Music Man.

Concert band members are comprised of the following, listed in alphabetical order:

Flutes: Janet Colton, Jeanene Cruzan, Sally Cummings, Kathy Dalton, Bonnie Dietz, Lori Ecker, Gina Henderson, Linda Klaus, Nancy Mack, Kerri Marshall, Ruth McCormick, Rhea McCulley, Anita Scrotter, Delana Tegader, Kathy Trent.

EPA Will Curb Discharges Of PCB Chemicals

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Environmental Protection Agency, acting on a federal task force report, said Saturday it would curb industrial discharges of PCBs, a DDT-like chemical used as a machinery coolant which has caused birth defects in laboratory rats.

The task force, representing eight federal agencies, recommended in a 181-page report that PCBs be "restricted to essential or nonreplaceable uses which involve minimal direct human exposure" but advised against an outright ban on the industrially valuable compounds.

The EPA said it would curb industrial discharges so that PCB levels in lakes and rivers do not exceed 0.01 parts per billion.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) already has proposed regulations designed to keep PCBs out of food, and to prevent food plant machinery leaks such as the ones which contaminated poultry feed with PCBs four times in the past 18 months. A total of 487,000 chickens and turkeys was withheld from the market because they ate the contaminated feed.

PCBs are an abbreviation for polychlorinated biphenyls, a class of chemicals used for 40 years in electrical machinery and in some plastics, petroleum products and carbonless carbon paper.

In laboratory rats, PCBs caused skin and liver ailments and birth defects. In addition, the task force said, the chemical was linked with "adverse effects on certain forms of animal life" which encountered PCBs in the environment.

Like DDT, which PCBs resemble chemically, the compounds are "persistent," meaning they retain their toxicity for years. "PCBs are widely dispersed throughout the environment and ... can have adverse ecological and toxicological effects," the task force said. It added there was no evidence that present PCB levels in the environment "constitute a threat to human health."

The task force said Monsanto Co., the only U.S. producer of PCBs, already had acted to limit sales of the chemical.

Rockefeller Upholds Liberal Abortion Law

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller vetoed a bill to repeal the state's liberal abortion law Saturday.

"I do not believe it right for one group to impose its vision of morality on an entire society," Rockefeller said, referring to right-to-life groups, Roman Catholic clergymen and others who had urged repeal of the law.

Rockefeller's action keeps in effect the two-year-old law which allows abortions on demand within the first 24 weeks of pregnancy. The repeal bill would have prohibited all abortions except when the mother's life was endangered.

Approval of the repeal bill last week by the legislature climaxed an intensive lobbying campaign, primarily by housewives and clergymen who opposed the present law and women's rights groups who said it should stand.

Rockefeller had told the legislature he would veto the bill. "I fully respect the moral convictions of both sides in this painfully sensitive controversy," the governor said in his veto message.

"The truth is that this repeal ... would not end abortions," he added. "It would only end abortions under safe and supervised medical conditions."

"The truth is that a safe abortion would remain the optional choice of the well-to-do woman, while the poor would again be seeking abortions at a grave risk to life in backroom abortion mills."

"The truth is that, under the present law, no woman is compelled to undergo an abortion. Those whose personal and religious principles forbid abortion are in no way compelled against their convictions under the present law."

"Every woman has the right to make her own choice."

SWISS FOOD IS SERVED NITE UNIT AT WHITE HALL

WHITE HALL — The White Hall Night Unit of Greene County Homemaker's Extension service held its regular meeting on Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Merlin Hunt with eleven members and two guests, Miss Barbara Farnar, acting home adviser, and Miss Jill Frank of the Patterson-Hillview Unit attending.

Miss Mae Nichols, chairman, presided and the meeting opened with the pledge of allegiance. It was announced the unit now has 20 members.

Plans were discussed for members to have charge of the table decorations at the annual meeting of county members, to be held at the First Baptist church, White Hall, on May 23rd.

Miss Farnar showed colored slides of Switzerland, which she had made during a recent visit, and cooked Swiss foods in a demonstration for the lesson "Understanding Other Cultures—Switzerland." The food made was Swiss fondue, potato dip, and Swiss bread prepared earlier, all of which was served as refreshments with coffee and iced tea.

The June meeting will be at the home of Miss Nichols with Mrs. Austin Wiley co-hostess.

Area Officials Heard At Prison Reform Hearing

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—The concept of community correctional centers received strong support from Peoria area officials at a hearing Saturday.

The hearing was the third in a series of six called by Peter B. Bensinger, Illinois Department of Corrections director, to determine feasibility and location of the community centers.

Peoria County State's Atty. Robert Calkins, citing the success of work release programs at Peoria State Hospital, said he believes the concept would work for a community correctional center as well. Calkins said the Peoria area has enough work opportunities to support work release.

Bernard Kennedy, Peoria County sheriff, suggested that such a center might provide area-wide detention facilities for the city, county and state.

Bensinger told the hearing that 90 per cent of state correctional facilities for adult men are more than 50 years old, and that they don't provide differential treatment for inmates. The community centers, which would hold 100-200 men each, are designed to provide differential treatment.

All 15 persons who testified at the five-hour hearing Saturday supported community centers.

MARSHAL GRECHKO, SYRIAN LEADERS HOLD DISCUSSIONS

By United Press International

Soviet Defense Minister Marshal Andrei A. Grechko and Syrian leaders Saturday held "fruitful" discussions in Damascus on military cooperation between the two countries, a Syrian government statement said.

Egypt's semi-official Middle East News Agency said Grechko will fly to Cairo Sunday for talks with Egyptian leaders.

In Cairo, Foreign Minister Murad Ghaleb met with Anthony Parsons, visiting assistant undersecretary at the British Foreign Office, to discuss the Arab-Israeli conflict, according to political sources.

The Israelis, meantime, continued to hash over the frustrated attempt by four Arab guerrillas to exchange a hijacked Sabena jetliner and 97 passengers and crew members for 100 jailed guerrillas. Defense Minister Moise Dayan said that never for a moment was Israel ready to bow to the demands.

The meeting in Damascus between Grechko and President Hafez Assad was the second in four days. Syrian government sources said Grechko also met again with Maj. Gen. Mustafa Tlas, Syria's defense minister. The Syrian government statement said the talks dealt with "promoting the relations of cooperation between the two countries in the military field."

It added the discussions were "fruitful."

No details were disclosed. But political sources said Grechko would discuss new supplies of Soviet weapons as well as Arab military forces in the confrontation with Israel.

TRINITY GUILD AT MEREDOSIA BUYS OFFERING BOXES

MEREDOSIA — Trinity Women's Guild, Trinity Lutheran church, met May 11th with Corrine Orchard the hostess. The lesson was given by Lorene Heitbrink. Nine members answered roll.

After reports thank-yous were read from Edna Telling, Beulah Naylor and Mrs. Palmer for Easter cards. A letter on a Day of Renewal May 23rd announced this to be at the Bluffs St. John's church.

The work committee is to get material for covering children's folding chairs. Thank-you offering boxes were ordered for the congregation by the Guild. A check was sent to the Lutheran World Relief for blankets.

June hostess is Dorothy Schlieber and leader is Wilma Williams.

Last Bodies Brought Out Of Silver Mine

KELLOGG Idaho (UPI)—Rescue crews Saturday brought out the last bodies of the 91 victims of the Sunshine Silver Mine disaster, leaving the survivors with their grief and the prospect of weeks or months without paychecks.

Nine funerals were held in small towns around the mine Saturday, as this town of 3,500 persons tried to adjust to the tragedy.

The fire that swept the nation's biggest silver mine last week wiped out nearly a fourth of the company's work force, and the loss to the monthly payroll of half a million dollars threatened the economy of Kellogg and nearby town of Wallace.

Some of the survivors said they never would return to the mines, which provide the chief source of revenue for the area in northern Idaho.

Kellogg, Wallace and the other nearby northern Idaho mining towns were quiet and much of life was outwardly normal. A group of Boy Scouts held a carwash, people mowed lawns and many businesses were open.

Small groups sat in coffee shops trying to figure out how and why the tragedy occurred. "It's a terrible, terrible thing," said a middle-aged man. "I feel so damned sorry for their wives and children."

Mayor Roger Fulton said "everyone is still pretty well shocked."

The 108 men who escaped from below ground, and the rest of the mine's work force, faced the prospect of at least a two-month layoff until the mine can reopen. One union official, Lawrence L. Marshall, said it could be as long as a year and a half until normal operations resume.

Mervin L. Chase, the mine's vice president and general manager, said the Sunshine Co. will try to keep as many miners as possible on the payroll while the mine is closed for investigation and repair. Other mines in the vicinity said they also would try to provide some jobs.

But many of the survivors said they had made their last descent a mile below the earth's surface in the mine. They said they would seek other jobs, and the United Steelworkers Union said it would ask Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus to institute a retraining program for those who want it.

Flood Death Toll Rises To Fifteen

NEW BRAUNFELS, Tex. (AP)—The death toll from a flash flood rose to 15 Saturday as more bodies were found.

Residents in this central Texas city of 20,000 and persons downstream awaited possible new flooding as more severe thunderstorms occurred in the swollen Guadalupe River's watershed Saturday night.

The 15 persons known dead included a person whose body was recovered Saturday after an Army helicopter spotted it, the Texas Department of Public Safety said.

Hours after the flooding Friday, authorities listed 20 to 25 persons as missing, but they said Saturday that some may have turned up without notifying police.

The flood, which raced through residential sections of the city of 20,000 before dawn Friday after a rain storm, caused an estimated $10 million damage, officials said. Heavy losses also were reported in nearby Seguin and Lake McKeeney.

Charge Nixon Deceiving Nation About Viet War

By United Press International

Two top Democratic party advisers, veteran diplomat W. Averell Harriman and former Assistant Defense Secretary Paul C. Warnke, said Saturday President Nixon is deceiving the nation about conditions in Vietnam and other critical areas because his foreign and military policies have collapsed in "a shambles."

"Instead of steady, constructive foreign policy and steady non-dramatic flow of accurate information to the American people and the Congress, the administration offers sporadic and deceptive briefings, sudden about-faces and a series of pre-election televised spectacles," the two Democrats charged.

As Harriman and Warnke made their accusation in a joint report to the 1972 Democratic Platform Committee, the three leading contenders for the party's presidential nomination battled for votes in Tuesday's primary elections in Michigan and Maryland.

Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota made his first swing through Maryland, where the bulk of 53 national convention delegates at stake were expected to go to Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota.

Humphrey and Wallace stumbled in Michigan, which will send 132 delegates to the convention.

McGovern, speaking to a crowd of about 2,000 in the Washington suburb of Bethesda, Md., coupled his traditional call for an end to the Vietnam War with promises to reform the tax system, as both Wallace and Humphrey also pledged when campaigning in Maryland.

Claiming that 40 per cent of U.S. corporations "did not pay one dime in federal income tax this year," McGovern said he would close many loopholes and require "everyone to pay their just share."

Humphrey, who spent part of the day touring a produce market in Detroit, said Wallace was running "very strong" in Michigan because of his stand against court-ordered school busing. But Humphrey said he too would make a good showing.

Wallace got a standing ovation from about 2,500 persons at a Michigan Jaycees state convention in Lansing after telling them that his rivals for the presidential nomination were to blame for many of the problems they now are offering to solve.

"Those who say they'll lower property taxes ought to," the governor said. "They're responsible for them being so high. The other candidates who say they'll take welfare loafers off welfare ought to. They are the ones who put them on there."

Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., also running in the Michigan primary, told supporters in Detroit that Wallace "is one of the cleverest demagogues of our time."

The Harriman-Warnke report, to be considered by the Platform Committee after it convenes Monday in Washington, said Nixon and his administration persistently have used "concealment and doubletalk" in handling foreign affairs and asked Congress "blindly to support policies in the formation of which it plays no role."

Harriman, who has held numerous high government positions including chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks, and Warnke, who served at the Pentagon from 1967-69, faulted the administration's foreign policy in nearly every part of the world but focused on Southeast Asia.

"Vietnamization, which can only perpetuate the war, is presented as a plan to end it," he said. "The administration proclaims the goal of obtaining the release of our prisoners while following a policy that condemns them to continuing captivity. Old and already rejected peace proposals are presented as new and hopeful initiatives. A military debacle in Laos is claimed as victory."

"Summing up ... as the administration enters its final months, its foreign and defense policies are a shambles," they said.

Harriman and Warnke are chairman of two committees of the Democratic Policy Council. Harriman heads a panel on international affairs and Warnke's group is responsible for arms control and defense policy.

Airport Chapels Proving Popular

By REV. DAVID POLING
One dictionary that we use defines "chapel" as "a place of worship subordinate to a church, especially in a college or hospital." While hospitals and colleges may head the list in number, military and prison chapels are everywhere present.

As the religious community becomes more and more institutionalized, chapels are bound to flourish as an extension of the church.

The newest chapels, rather the newest outposts where chapels have been established, are at the major airports. In New York, Boston and Chicago's O'Hare, there is a regular program of worship service and full-time counsel offered by clergymen. In each setting, the approach does vary, but the activity and ministry is definitely on the increase.

In New York, the Protestant Catholic-Jewish houses of worship form a dramatic cluster in the outer reaches of Kennedy. The architecture of the buildings and the central location is most appealing.

But Kennedy has traffic problems and one can hardly walk from any of the air terminals to the chapels without dashing across four-lane target areas. One must take bus or cab to reach the location, discouraging to those who have less than half an hour for such a visit.

At Logan Field in Boston, the chapel can be reached by a five-or-10-minute walk from almost any direction. Our last visit was during a Sunday afternoon in July — and the chapel was crowded, with a wedding in progress. Some 70 or 80 people had gathered for a Roman Catholic service and the priest and chapel was just what they wanted.

It appears that the airport chapels (there are only three fully staffed centers that we know of in the United States and none overseas) serve a resident community of airline personnel and staff as much as they assist the travelers.

At O'Hare, the chapel is four levels down in the basement, surrounded by steam pipes and air-conditioning vents. Yet a lively, attractive worship center has been created and attendance is good.

At O'Hare, the ecumenical touch is what counts. Protestants and Catholics share fully the same facilities, with the Community of Our Lady of Loreto served full-time by Father John J. Keough.

Our last Sunday attendance was during the winter. The services were given good publicity over the public address system of the airport and at least 100 showed up for the 1:10 p.m. mass. Here again, it seemed that baggage handlers, car rental clerks and air line staffers were the majority of those present.

One does not recall railroad stations having chapels — although Traveler's Aid was always ready and waiting. The airports serve thousands of people an hour at the larger terminals and many of these are families and individuals in great trouble. Some are hurrying to a loved one close to death. Others are returning from a funeral or family tragedy.

Often the chaplain at Kennedy or O'Hare is the first clergyman to give immediate and personal comfort to someone in trouble. It is not a bad slogan: Support Your Local Airport Chaplain. They are establishing an essential and creative ministry to traveling mankind.

Louise Witham President-Elect Of Auxiliary

The Amvets Auxiliary to Post 100 met May 9 at the Post home with president, Louise Witham presiding.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: president, Louise Witham; senior vice-president, Marie Hart; junior vice-president, Mary Biggs; secretary, Lucy Skillwell; treasurer, Kathleen Laughery; chaplain, Hazel Seigfried; sergeant-at-arms, Viola Charlesworth.

A motion was made to give a donation to Division three Auxiliary to be used for the King's Ball held at the U.S.O. center at Rantoul, Illinois, June 8. The Auxiliary also made its regular monthly donation to Peaceful Valley Youth Ranch at Carlinville.

The next meeting will be May 23.

Mrs. Meek, 83, Of Greene, Dies; Funeral Monday

CARROLLTON — Mrs. Ruth Felme Meek, 83-year-old life-time resident of the Carrollton area and the past 14 years at Carrollton, died Friday morning at Decatur Memorial hospital in Decatur.

Mrs. Meek was born at Carrollton June 8, 1888, daughter of Prof. David and Mrs. Autah Stout Felme. She was married to Alva B. Meek in 1914 and he preceded in death.

Two sons, David of Decatur and James of Bloomington, survive. There are five grandchildren and one great grandchild. One brother and one sister preceded in death.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Monday at Hires Funeral Home with Rev. Wayne Hoxsie officiating. Interment will be in City cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 2 this afternoon with the family meeting friends 6 to 8 p.m. The family suggests those wishing to consider memorials to the Heart or Cancer funds.

Corn Sprouts Seen In Cass

BEARDSTOWN — A few farmers in the area have corn sprouting, but the majority are still busy these days getting the seed into the ground.

The river is falling after reaching a two-year high above 17 feet, and fields that have been too wet to plant are now drying out fast.

With continued favorable weather there will be no damaging delay in corn planting. Some farmers in the area, especially those on bottom ground, no longer believe it to be imperative to plant by May 1. A number even count the last of May "early enough."

Prospects for a bumper crop again this season seem bright, and the countryside looks good these days with freshly conditioned fields shining darkly.

Burlington To Build Bridge Lift In Cass

BEARDSTOWN — A 323-foot vertical lift bridge is to be built over the Illinois river here this spring by the Burlington Northern Railroad Company.

The new span will displace the old bridge, which has been declared a hazard to navigation.

The new $4.5 million dollar span will provide a 55-foot clearance at full lift and will take 27 months to complete.

It will be constructed of self-weathering steel which forms a protective rust-like coating of ferrous oxide, eliminating the need to paint the structure. It will replace the old 200-foot swing span which was built in 1902.

Rail service will be interrupted during the last two weeks of construction while barges switch old and new spans. During this two weeks, change-over rail traffic generally will be routed through Quincy to Alton, then east to rejoin the BN main-line near Centralia.

Evangelist Will Speak In Park At Tent Crusade

The King Is Coming Crusade Society, in conjunction with many local pastors and lay people, will be conducting a tent crusade from May 16 to 27, according to Robert Kessinger, the crusade chairman.

The crusade will be located at the old ball diamond at Nichols Park with evangelistic meetings beginning at 7:30 p.m. each night.

General Shoup, a recipient of the Congressional Medal of Honor during World War II, held the top Marine Corps post during the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations, retiring in 1963. Since that time, Gen. Shoup has been active in numerous educational, business and civic projects.

He is currently an active sponsor of the National Council of Business Executives' Move for Vietnam Peace and New National Priorities.

A native of Indiana, he joined the Marine Corps following graduation from DePauw University in 1926. He served as a company officer, instructor and regimental operations officer in China, Iceland and several U.S. bases prior to assuming command of the Second Battalion, Sixth Marine Regiment at the outbreak of World War II.

He attained the rank of lieutenant colonel upon his naming as assistant operations and training officer of the Second Marine Division in 1942.

His later service during World War II included command of forces ashore Tarawa, and as chief logistics officer of the Marine Corps' divisional plans and policies headquarters in Washington, D.C.

He became commanding officer of the Fleet Marine Force in the Pacific in 1947, chief of staff for the First Marine Division in 1949, and commanding officer for the Marine Basic School in 1950.

Middle Class Blacks: Tokens Or Leaders?

These are the ones who have made it. A few blacks moving into white jobs and white neighborhoods; a puny vanguard; a slim statistic to bait the national conscience; a small black beachhead on the white man's beach. Look out, Archie Bunker, here they come.

Through five administrations and the Warren Court since World War II, the door has cracked a little and they came through. They emerged from a black middle class into a white middle class. Some blacks call them tokens, house niggers. They still cannot belong to the New York Athletic Club. They no longer desire the local Elks. They are midway between two worlds. They survive knowing wherever they go they stand black against a white background.

They live in a no-man's land. They are torn between the plight of the poor they have left behind and the affluent district array of the suburbia they have entered. They look for friends in the new world and try to keep those in the old. They seem to be a bridge between the two, and sometimes they are. Sometimes they are not.

They are mostly products of black colleges. They know more of black history than their ghetto-bound brothers. Yet they identify with white goals. They are amazed at the social progress in the South. They despair of social inertia in the North. They have a fine, ironic ghetto humor that helps them survive.

The blacks are something new for the white world to contend with. In his forthcoming book, "The Black Migration," George Groh sums up the escape of 2.5 million blacks from the bottom ranks of poverty in the 1960s. "Even more dramatic is the rise of the black middle class. It has largely escaped press and public attention, but the middle income urban blacks now comprise a larger group than the hard core ghetto poor. . . . In the decade just ended the employment of black professional and technical workers soared 131 percent. There was a 67 percent gain among black officials, proprietors and managers, and a 67 percent increase also of foremen and craftsmen. The increase in the combined categories amounted to nearly 750,000 jobs. Such thrust, moreover, is growing stronger."

The Census Bureau counts a three-fold increase in the number of non-white families with $10,000 or more in purchasing power. Blacks now total 7 percent of all college enrollments, closer to the 11 percent they comprise in the general population. No one has a count on how many blacks work in white companies on the executive level, or how many have moved to white suburbs. But they are there nevertheless. Whites work for them. And they work for whites. They are moving in next door and down the street. Their kids play with white kids. Blackness, they say, has been put upon them by the white man so they wear it and they flaunt it. Or they just endure it.

Or they fight it. Joe Scott's father used to tell him, "Listen. You're a Scott first, an American second and a black third. Remember that." Today Scott remembers it, but now he alters it to read, "I'm a Scott first, a black second and an American third." Joe Scott, to get where he is now, a top scientist in a top industrial laboratory, had to pass through a world where he was a black first, Joe Scott second, an American third.

When he was very young in the 1920s, Jim Plinton dreamed of small airplanes in the big sky. Trouble was it was a white sky. Today, having helped integrate the sky, Jim Plinton, airline vice president, hires blacks to captain America's airliners, and black stewardesses to serve coffee, tea and milk.

Al Campbell is a science teacher in a prestigious Eastern school system. He grew up in a segregated South where the signs told him where he could or could not go. He took a job in the integrating North where he lived with whites and found more subtle, more cruel limits. When he searched for an apartment for his young family, the building superintendent took one look and said, "We're not hiring." Campbell said he wasn't looking for a job, but a place to live. He finally got the apartment, with the help from the local human rights organization in Great Neck, N.Y. Even then one of his neighbors stood in his way. As he approached the front door he heard someone call out, "Here comes the nigger." Campbell looked around and asked, "Where?"

When the man who called out threatened to move out, Campbell talked to him. He said that Long Island wasn't really very big and if he moved too far out he'd end up in the Atlantic, and if he did, then, "I'd have to get a raft, because we're comin'." The man moved to a New Jersey suburb, where now he has a black as a neighbor.

When Jim Plinton joined Eastern Air Lines, he was assigned to the Miami headquarters with two other new vice presidents. He sent his white wife ahead to house-hunt and she found just what she wanted. But the builder backed down. By the time Plinton reached Miami the next day the builder had a change of heart. The real estate lady said, "His conscience was bothering him." Plinton didn't believe it. Before the day was out, Plinton discovered that the builder was also putting up homes for other two Eastern executives, both white. "I know the answer to this buy," he told his wife, Kathy. "It's not a change of conscience. It's about a quarter of a million dollars."

The black man learns that money and position talk in the white man's world. As head of two research groups at RCA Laboratories, Princeton, N.J., Joe Scott appreciates or disapproves in the purchase of instruments that cost as much as $200,000 apiece.

Once his staff wanted to buy a microscope that cost $2,000. The salesman brought it into the laboratory for demonstration. Scott came in a trifle late and one of his staff asked the salesman to show Scott the microscope. The salesman looked at Scott and said he was busy, to wait. Scott waited a while and finally said, "Look, Sonny, I haven't the time to stand out here. I'll see it later." He went back to his office. About half an hour later there was a knock on his door and the salesman entered saying, "I understand you have to sign for this. I'd be happy to show it to you."

"I scheduled him back about two months later," Scott said flatly. Identify for the black in a white world is a problem in itself. Too often he is only a silhouette. For Dr. Charles Thomas, college professor and psychologist, it took the riot in Watts to awaken him to that fact.

He and his wife had been pleased when they were brought to the University of Oregon campus in 1966. They were the only black family on the faculty.

Yet he didn't consider himself a token, the "campus nigger." "We were much more exotic than that. We went to the faculty dances, the Elks club, the country club. And there were people standing in line to dance with us. It was the first contact for many of them."

Watts interrupted this sojourn into the white world. The initial embarrassment and indignation gave way to disdain, regret, remorse, joy, guilt. "And the guilt is the kind of thing like, 'Why am I here in this sterile community?' So we came home to Watts, California, where we'd never been before."

In Watts, Thomas counseled, taught, and learned how to be part of the black world again. "I saw something called black power bloom. I saw something called black consciousness flourish. I saw beauty where I had never seen it before. I saw competence where I never expected to find it. I also saw agony."

Now Thomas heads the Third College, an ethnic studies program, on the University of California's San Diego campus, through which passed Angela Davis and an ethnic manifesto called the Lumumba-Zapata demands. He lives in a white neighborhood, Middle America by the sea. But he doesn't socialize with his neighbors and he always asks himself, "What have I done today that's black?"

While many middle class blacks choose to confront the white world in the suburbs, or in competition with whites in business, Thomas thinks the black has to withdraw from the white world until he understands the value of being black. "Blackness is a being and becoming process. You are not born that way. You have to work at it the same way you work at being a man."

Joe Scott disagrees. "If I go off in a corner and spend my whole life being black I don't think the world will progress to the point where people are just considered people."

Most blacks who make it are second generation middle class. They came from strictly-run families of some means. There was a constant insistence on education and religion. Youngsters were directed toward the professions because they would never make it working for the white man.

Jim Plinton is 57. In the affluence of their family life, young Jim Plinton didn't relate to his black neighbors. But when his father wanted him to go to Yale to study medicine, a brother-in-law stepped in, warned that the boy was losing his black orientation. So instead he was sent to a black college, Lincoln, in Pennsylvania. There, "I found a lot of black brothers who could do everything I could do and do it better."

been a Negro all my life. If the obstacles didn't worry him, they didn't worry me. And he said, 'Good man, let's have a crack at them.'"

By a combination of charm and persistence, Plinton helped crack the color barrier in the Army Air Corps. Joe Scott is 37. He grew up in an Atlantic City ghetto, the son of a doctor. He remembers having to walk by a white school to get to a black one. But he was the first black to attend the white junior high school, with a little help from his godfather, who was president of the board of education. He entered Lafayette College, a white school, but switched to Lincoln University his second year, not because of discrimination, but because of finances.

"I never had the picture that blacks could or couldn't do things because they were black," Scott says. "All I noticed was the difference between the schools, between Lafayette and Lincoln, the availability of material things. Still I had the feeling that Lincoln was the better school because you had to do without things or make them yourself."

Maceo Nance Jr. is the president of South Carolina State, a black school. He believes black schools are the best incubators for blacks. "Blacks have always believed in their churches, their lower schools, their colleges. Now the lower schools are integrated and they're talking about merging the churches. If that happens what does the black have left? If that happens, again he's thrown into a minor role. People need something of their own. We dominate this school by color. So we feel comfortable. As for blacks who go elsewhere, it's not how many are accepted into white dominated schools, but how many are successful in them."

There is a kind of black esprit in black institutions. And signs of black consciousness—the Afro hairdo, the exaggeration of black qualities. "We're going to reach a point where black people accept themselves the way they are—kinky hair, fat lips, broad noses," Nance says.

Ironically, however, many of the blacks who have entered suburbia want their youngsters to go to the dominant white colleges, not because they are better, but because the credentials are. It's easier to get a job with a degree from Michigan than from South Carolina State.

There are other problems in living with whites, grossly different from the old ones. In Mobile, Ala., as a child Al Campbell remembers being invited to a movie by a white friend, and having to sit in the balcony while his host sat downstairs. He remembers being pushed around, being knocked off his bicycle by whites riding in a car. "You couldn't fight back."

Today he worries about his youngsters and more subtle acts of discrimination. One occurred in the apartment house hallway where a very little white child threw a ball down the stairs and told Campbell's daughter, "You go get it, you're colored." Or when the school cafeteria attendant automatically gave her a free lunch pass because she was black and obviously then too poor to buy her lunch.

Maceo Nance remembers when a new dime store was built in Columbia, S.C., and for the first time two new drinking fountains were installed side by side, one labeled white, one colored. Before that there had been none for Negroes. "It was a real big deal. Unless you grew up in our world you'd have trouble understanding how appreciative we were for those two fountains."

His children do not have to be satisfied with those small conveniences.

So here they are, one foot in the black past, one in the white future. Uncle Toms? House niggers? They get it from both sides. Jim Plinton still gets angry stares from some whites in the company cafeteria, senses when an unfriendly associate cooperates with him guardedly. Maceo Nance senses that white legislators are less at ease than he is when they discuss school budget problems. On the other hand, Al Campbell gets static from black friends who remained in the ghetto, who say he is running away from the problem. He patiently explains that there is no running away. The problem follows you.

Joe Scott, who shunned white lab coats for a black one when he first came to the RCA labs, admits that his position tends to be a social narcotic. "It's so pleasant, so pleasurable to be accepted, to function without restraint, that you need something to remind you once in a while to get back out and get involved."

Notice Of Private Sale Of Common Stock By Executor

The undersigned Executor under the Will of EDWARD D. BERGER, late of Rural Route 2, Beardstown, Illinois, and now deceased, hereby offers for sale pursuant to authority granted Executor under terms of decedent's Will five (5) shares of FARMERS TERMINAL GRAIN COMPANY common stock to the highest and best bidder or bidders. Bids are to be in writing with information contained therein as to the name of the prospective purchaser, the proper name or names of the party or parties to whom the stock is to be transferred, the amount bid per share, the number of shares desired to be purchased if less than all five shares, and the correct mailing address of the purchaser. A certified or cashier's check payable to ARLO SCHUMACHER, as Executor under the Will of EDWARD D. BERGER, Deceased, for 20% of the total price bid for the shares sought to be purchased shall be submitted with the bid.

Such bids are to be enclosed in a sealed envelope and mailed to Executor's residence at Rural Route 1, Chapin, Illinois 62628, and are to be postmarked not later than May 15, 1972.

In the event two or more bidders submit the highest bid or bids, the bid first received shall take priority as to purchase. Executor expressly reserves the right to select such bid or bids as will obtain for the Estate the highest aggregate price for the shares, either separately or in the aggregate, and to accept or reject any and all bids. Checks received from unsuccessful bidders will be returned unnegotiated to such bidders within a reasonable period of time after close of the sale.

No bid once made shall be revocable without the express consent of Executor and the balance due on the purchase price bid by the successful bidder shall be paid to Executor within ten days subsequent to closing of the sale period.

ARLO SCHUMACHER, as Executor under the Will of EDWARD D. BERGER, Deceased.

TRACT #III

The West Half of the Northeast Quarter, and the East Half of the Northwest Quarter, except a strip of land sixty (60) rods wide north and south and forty (40) rods wide east and west out of the Southwest corner thereof, all situated in Section Nine (9), Township Seventeen (17) North, Range Twelve (12) West of the Third Principal Meridian, Cass County, Illinois, excepting from said described tract eleven (11) acres, more or less, described as: beginning at a point forty (40) rods East of the Southwest corner of the East Half of the Northwest Quarter of said Section Nine (9), and running thence East 10.75 chains, thence North 5.75 chains, thence West 7 chains, thence North 4.76 chains, thence West 9.90 chains, more or less, to a point directly North of the point of beginning, thence South 10.8 chains, more or less, to the point of beginning; all of said Tract #III being made expressly subject to easements, covenants, restrictions, and roadways of record and as now located, and to rights of drainage districts in and to such portions of said premises heretofore taken or conveyed away for drainage purposes, including recorded and unrecorded drainage easements, if any.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION OF REAL ESTATE: TRACT #I consists of 335 acres, more or less, of which approximately 256 acres are tillable, 71 acres are in timber, of which a substantial portion appears desirable for building sites along U.S. Route 67—Illinois Route 100, and 8 acres in roadways, drainage ditches, and waste areas. There are no improvements of any material value.

TRACT #II consists of 155 acres, more or less, of which approximately 11 acres are tillable, 36 acres are in timber, some of which area appears desirable for building sites along U.S. Route 67—Illinois Route 100, and 3 acres in roadway drainage ditches, and waste areas. There are no improvements.

TRACT #III consists of 134 acres, more or less, of which approximately 13 acres are in cultivation and 3 acres in timber, drainage areas, and roadways. There are no improvements.

LOCATION: TRACT #1 is located approximately three miles south of Beardstown, Illinois, portions of which are situated both on the East and West sides of U.S. Route 67—Illinois Route 100; TRACT #II adjoins TRACT #I on the South and extends South to the North side of a county road intersecting said routes and running in a East-West direction; TRACT #III is located approximately four miles South of Beardstown and can be reached by going South on said routes to the county road indicated, and thence East two miles on such county road.

TERMS OF SALE: Cash, meaning 20%, to be paid to Executor at the time of sale with the balance due, together with any adjustments in purchase price as hereafter provided, on or before thirty (30) days from date of sale. Sale will be by the acre based upon the total acreage indicated as contained in each tract. 1971 real estate taxes, due and payable in 1972, will be paid by Executor. 1972 real estate taxes shall be paid by Purchaser. Executor will furnish Purchaser a merchantable abstract of title or, at Executor's option, title insurance in the face amount of the purchase price said title insurance, if furnished, to be made expressly subject to customary exceptions as to laterals, feeder lines and other drainage rights. Sale of each tract is expressly made subject to rights of the present tenant or tenants in possession on an annual crop-share farm-lease basis. Drainage District taxes due and payable for 1972 have been paid by Executor. All drainage taxes for 1973 and subsequent years shall be paid by Purchaser. The Purchaser of each tract shall have the option to take the estate share of crops planted or to be planted on the described respective tract provided purchaser shall repay to Executor on or before thirty (30) days after the date such amount as Executor may have heretofore expended for seed, fertilizer, and other farm crop expenses as to the respective tracts for the 1972 crop year. Should the purchaser of any tract not desire to take the estate share of 1972 crops on such basis, the estate shall retain its share of crops on the subject tract for the 1973 crop year. Immediate possession of each tract will be given purchaser subject, however, to the right of the present tenants in possession as above set forth, excepting however, such tracts, if any, as to which the purchaser does not desire to take the 1972 crops and make repayment to the estate of expenses attendant thereto, which said tracts will be retained in possession of Executor until removal of 1972 crops.

For inspection of the premises or further information concerning the said interested parties should contact the Auctioneers or Executor.

Citizen Committee Plans City Manager Referendum Effort

A committee called "Citizens for Better Jacksonville Government" is currently in process of circulating petitions among Jacksonville voters to secure a referendum on changing the city government from the present mayor-aldermanic type to the managerial form.

The committee so far consists of about 35 persons from throughout the city representing what is described as a wide range of occupations and interests.

Lee Roy Jackson, Jr., has accepted the chairmanship and Mrs. Elizabeth Ziegler vice chairman and secretary. Mr. Jackson is a real estate salesman and Mrs. Ziegler is on the faculty at Illinois College.

Characteristics Of City Manager Government

Several distinctive characteristics of the managerial form of city government have been supplied by the citizen committee.

1 — The legislative and policy making authority is the mayor and four councilmen sitting as one body. The mayor presides and votes on all matters as if he were a councilman, but he has no veto power.

2 — The administrative head of the city government is a city manager qualified by training and experience who is appointed by the council for an indefinite term and may be discharged by a simple majority vote of the council at any time. He must be appointed without regard to his political beliefs and need not be a resident of the city when appointed.

Powers and Duties
The city manager has the following powers and duties:

- 1 — To enforce the laws and ordinances within the city.
- 2 — To appoint and remove with appointments to be made upon the sole basis of merit and fitness.
- 3 — To exercise supervision over all departments.
- 4 — To prepare annual budget estimates for the consideration of the council.
- 5 — To attend council meetings and take part in discussions but with no right to vote.
- 6 — To recommend to the council for adoption such measures as he deems necessary or expedient.

The mayor as well as councilmen are strictly part-time. All salaries, including that of the manager, are fixed by the council.

Need Clothing For Burned Out Ripley Family

BEARDSTOWN — An effort is being made to secure clothing and other help for the family of Mrs. Ileen Cassidy of rural Ripley as the result of a fire that destroyed their home and contents.

It is believed the early morning fire Wednesday was caused by an exploding oil burner. Clothing is needed for adults and children and those wishing to donate may contact Mrs. Helen Chapman of Rushville, telephone 322-3610.

Damage to the home was estimated at $15,000 and there was no insurance. The loss included $3,000 in musical instruments and $400 in cash which had been kept in a billfold.

CELEBRATE MASS FOR J. F. PETERS AT NEW BERLIN

NEW BERLIN — Requiem Mass was celebrated for Joseph F. Peters at 10 a.m. Saturday at St. Mary's Catholic church here with the Rev. Paul Hebenstreit officiating.

Palbearers were Don Davenport, Tom Frank, Tom Peters, Boleslaw Dzierwa, Harold Peters and Jack Kloppenburg.

Burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

The McCullough Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Names of others will be announced as soon as the membership of the committee is completed, according to Jackson. Mr. Jackson said he would welcome anyone who would like to serve on the committee.

The petitions will be filed and presented to the Circuit Court at the proper time, and if found in compliance with the law, the court will order the city to submit the proposition at a special election to be held later.

Plans include a referendum in late September or early October. Putting the referendum on a separate ballot for city voters in November was described as "too confusing."

If the majority vote in favor of the proposal it will become effective, and next winter at the regular times for nomination and election of the city officials, a mayor, four councilmen, a city clerk, city treasurer will be elected at-large on a "non-partisan" ballot. They will take office May 1, 1973.

Jackson described the purpose of the committee as "providing a framework within which greater administrative efficiency and economy will be achieved for the benefit of all citizens."

He contended, "the existence of such a governmental framework will encourage qualified and sincere citizens to seek elective office."

Jackson said interested citizens who have not already signed the petitions may do so at the public library, city clerk's office and county clerk's office, plus several business firms in the city.

A minimum of 600 signatures will be required.

Those Guys 3 Years Ago?

By J. B. MARTIN
"I'm not entirely opposed to the city manager form of government. No doubt it has some very good points and other points that are not so good," Mayor Dan F. Lahey declared.

"But where were all these fine, interested citizens three years ago when the council stripped me of all my power?" he asked.

The citizen committee promoting a city manager form of government is predicating the success of such a referendum at least in part on the lack of progress and dissension which has marked the Lahey administration.

Lahey admitted that the success of such a proposed referendum would have to be born by both himself and the members of the city council.

The citizen committee contends that it would be easier to change the form of government than to change the people handling it at the present time.

If the referendum passes by majority vote, the present aldermen and mayor would be out of a job. Some would simply end their terms of office, half the council would have their terms terminated.

The change to a non-partisan government would eliminate party labels, according to Lahey, "but not politics." The Mayor said he really didn't know all he should about the city manager form of government, but doubted that it would cost any less. "It would probably cost more," he said.

At least one alderman, Donald Votsmier, said he couldn't see where it would be any more economical, although it might be more efficient.

Generally, as proposed by the committee, a strong manager would be installed to administer city government, buffered from the citizens by a mayor and four councilmen elected at-large.

The city clerk and treasurer would run for office on an at-large basis much the same as they presently do. They would not have political labels such as Republican or Democrat. Under the city manager form, both the clerk and treasurer could become an appointive office, though no plans are underway for that at the present.

Several objections have been expressed by members of the two political parties and some members of the council. Generally, their objections center around the belief that their power will become less meaningful in the structure of city government. Others might view the same thing as a positive point for the new system.

Mrs. Mason Dies Friday at 82; Funeral Today

Mrs. Mary Della Mason, 82, lifelong resident of Murrayville, died at 4:42 p.m. Friday at Passavant hospital. Recently she had been living with her son on route three, Jacksonville.

Mrs. Mason was born in Illinois May 15, 1889, daughter of Jack and Rachel Johnson Whitlock. Her husband, William Thomas Mason, died in 1960. One son, Donald F. Mason, Jacksonville route three, survives along with one grandchild. A brother and a sister preceded in death.

The deceased was a member of the Murrayville Baptist church and former member of the Murrayville RNA.

100th Birthday Open House For Mrs. E. R. Wood

A long-time resident of Morgan County, Mrs. Elizabeth Ransom Wood, will reach her 100th birthday on Tuesday, May 23, 1972.

Until a month ago, Mrs. Wood lived alone; after a recent fall, and a short stay at Passavant Hospital, she is at home with a companion. Except for failing eyesight, she is in good health for her advanced age.

Born in Pike County, Mrs. Wood came to Morgan County in 1885 and has lived at Pisgah, Murrayville and Alexander. Her husband, William J. Wood, died in 1938, and four daughters have also passed away. Her son, Dr. William Ransom Wood, president of the University of Alaska, plans to visit her for her birthday, along with his wife and daughter Karen. Mrs. Wood has 7 grandchildren, 7 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild, Terry Peterson, of California.

Friends are invited to an informal Open House Sunday, May 21 between 2 and 4 p.m. at her home in Alexander. No gifts, please.

Local Native, Frances Cox Suddeth, Dies

Word has been received here of the death early Saturday of a Jacksonville native, Mrs. Frances Cox Suddeth, at Memorial hospital in Springfield. She was 6 years old.

She was born Aug. 31, 1906 in Jacksonville, daughter of Jeremiah C. and Zella Savage Cox. She was a graduate of Monticello College at Godfrey and a member of the First Presbyterian church at Springfield and the Nancy Jane Mackey Circle of the King's Daughters.

Mrs. Suddeth is survived by her husband, James B. of Springfield; one son, Richard S. of Tulsa, Okla., a granddaughter, Melanie Jean of Tulsa, a sister-in-law, Mrs. Richard (Mary) Jess of Jacksonville and several cousins.

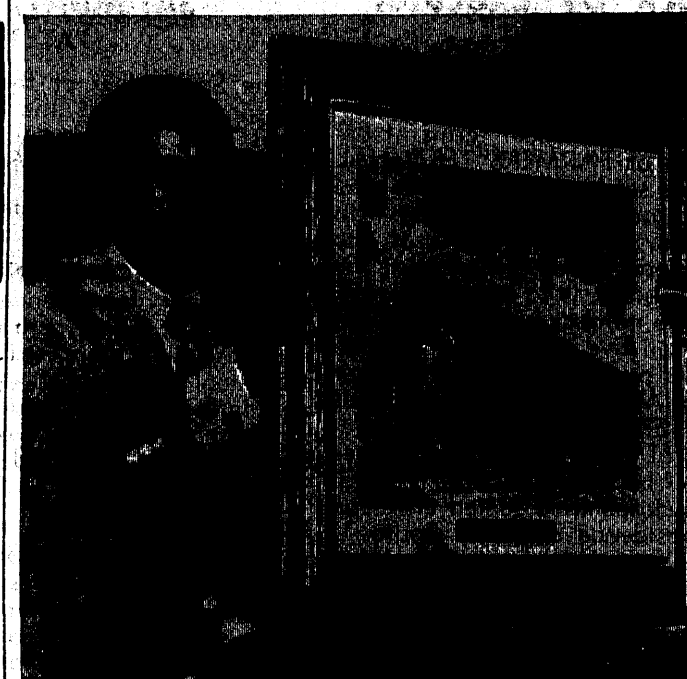

Friends may call at the Boardman-Smith Funeral Chapel in Springfield from 4 to 6 p.m. today. Funeral services will be private. Burial will be in Oak Ridge cemetery in that city.

Science Knowledge To Be Knowledgeable

By JOHN B. MARTIN
The president of the American Chemical Society recommended to an international gathering of scientists, by proxy Saturday, that today's youth must have the science education necessary to know what scientists are doing with the enormous power they possess.

Dr. Max Tishler, in an address prepared for delivery at the dedication of the million dollar MacMurray chemistry building as the Percy Lavon Julian Hall of Chemistry, said that "if there is hope for survival and a sane world, it must spring from the youth and the power it has developed on the campuses."

Dr. Tishler was unable to be present for the symposium but his prepared address was read by Dr. Robert Miner, a longtime friend of both Tishler and Dr. Julian. Tishler spent 33 years at Merck and played a major part in the development of sulfa drugs, vitamins, penicillin, streptomycin, cortisone and others.

Dr. Tishler was sick with a common cold and could not be on hand.

More than 100 scientists from all sections of the country attended a two-day symposium on new developments in chemical contraceptives, hormones, vitamins, and other "miracle" organic drugs and food supplements. They represented universities, government and industry.

The conference featured a testimonial dinner to the renowned black scientist Percy Lavon Julian of Oak Park, Ill., and the naming of the newest MacMurray College building in his honor.

Dr. Julian is internationally recognized for his pioneering research in the development of cortisone, sex hormones, soya protein, and the fire fighting foam that has saved so many lives.

In Jacksonville, Dr. Julian's research has played a big part in the development of processes and products in such industries as Anderson Clayton Co. Mobile Chemical Co. has one of the world's largest computerized warehouses with a fire-fighting system developed to fill the entire warehouse with foam within seconds. The foam would not damage the merchandise. Most fire departments are equipped with a foam generating device for fighting some types of fires.

Dr. Julian's research in the chemical oral contraceptive field, or "The Pill" has helped thousands of families throughout the world.

One letter received by Dr. Julian may be a clue to a medical discovery to be announced within the next few weeks. Dr. Julian's research in the field of cytological biophysics, Institute for Medical Research, took time to jot down his appreciation for Julian's help in the late 40's and early 50's as well as his wisdom, knowledge and optimism. Moore would like to be in Jacksonville but time is essential. He indicated he found what may turn out to be the first virus that causes a human cancer. He is working mainly with the etiology of breast cancer.

Dr. Julian holds more than 100 chemical patents developed in university and private research and in his years with the Glidden Company of Chicago. He is the author of more than 150 scientific papers and has received countless awards as a scientist and humanitarian.

Dr. Julian has taught chemistry at Howard University, West Virginia State College and Fisk University. He has directed his own company as the world's largest processor of an essential ingredient for vitamin D and is now head of Julian Associates, Inc., a research organization he founded.

His wife, Dr. Anna Johnson Julian, is a trustee of MacMurray.

Dr. Julian's response at the dedication was an insight into his ability to work with people and his sense of humor. Commenting on the previous speakers' remarks, he said, "I feel as though I have been elevated to Heaven and all that remains is to announce that the family requests no flowers — but a check to MacMurray would be acceptable."

He went on to express his appreciation for the honor and the presence of his fellow scientists.

One visitor easily recognized at the dedication was former Illinois Governor William G. Stratton who attended as a private citizen and longtime friend of Percy Julian. Stratton named Julian to the state welfare committee during his administration.
